G.O.P. AWAITS MELLON'S MOVE

PENN DELEGATES' ACTION MAY DECIDE NOMINEE SELECTION

Senator Watson's Claim That Pennsylvania's 79 Votes Will Not Go To Hoover Cheers Coalition Against Him, But Cabinet Officer's Forces Continue Supremely Confident Of Victory Not Later Than Third Ballot—Lowden's Arrival Bolsters Anti-Hooverites' Morale—Coolidge Talk Persists.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9 — (I. N. S.) — The anti-Hoover allies, desperate, determined and exceedingly bitter, stormed into action on all fronts today. And tonight, on the eve of the convention they were more confident than ever of their ability to "stop Hoover."

It is a claim, of course, that is hotly disputed by the Hoover managers. They are sticking doggedly by their claim of a nomination on the second ballot, certainly not later than the third, and no amount of hammering by the coalition seemingly can dent them.

There were a number of developments today that cheered the battling allies. One was the arrival of ex-Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, who is second to Hoover in actual delegate strength, with a militant and aggressive farm drive. Another was the arrival of Senator Guy D. Goff of West Virginia, to join the coalition against the secretary of commerce. Still another, and more important than all, was "word from Pennsylvania" that, reports to the contrary notwithstanding, Andrew W. Mellon would not throw his bloc of seventy-nine Pennsylvania votes to Hoover.

This "word from Pennsylvania" was industriously circulated by Watson headquarters. Where it came from was not disclosed; how authoritative it might be was not revealed, but there it was, you could take it or leave it, that "Herbert Hoover never will get more than fourteen votes out of Pennsylvania on any ballot."

Watson Is Confident.

The genial senator from Indiana himself assured callers that he has "all the assurance a man can have that Andrew W. Mellon will not cast the Pennsylvania vote for Hoover."

This was the development that so cheered the hard pressed allies. It inspired Ruth Hanna McCor-

C. R. GERMAN IS INJURED WHEN CARS COLLIDE

In a collision at Sixteenth and R streets at 7 o'clock Saturday evening, C. R. German, Route 2, West Lincoln, sustained painful injuries to his knee and minor bruises. The accident happened when a car driven by F. H. Barber, 1424 G street, smashed into the side of the car which Mr. German was driving. The automobiles, however, were only slightly damaged.

NEEDLEWORK OF MRS. COOLIDGE A 'DRAFT' DENIAL

WASHINGTON, June 9—(O. N. S.)—On the famous Lincoln bed in the white house is a bedspread which might be of considerable interest to the delegates now assembling in Kansas City for the republican national convention.

It is a spread which Mrs. Coolidge personally knit while summering with the president at Swampscott, Mass., in 1925.

The workmanship would not be the object of prime interest to the politicians, although Mrs. Coolidge is an expert with the needles having won honorable mention in a national knitting contest several years ago with an anonymous contribution.

Rather, it would be the inscription inlaid in the spread. That inscription—made three years ago, and two years before the president, from Rapid City, S. D., publicly announced he did "not choose to run,"—reads:

"Calvin Coolidge, August 3, 1923—March, 4, 1929."

It is knit in under a centerpiece embodying the presidential eagle, approximately bordered, and it was intended, even then, for historical addition to the white house with an authentic legend.

Less than six months after President Coolidge had been inaugurated in his own right he had decided to step out of office at the expiration of one term, and his wife had knit the dates of his tenure into a lasting souvenir of the administration, it would seem from this epigram.

Atlantic Hop On Sunday Unlikely

TREPASSEY, N. F., June 9—(INS)—A late weather forecast tonight, indicating that there would be northeast winds and rain tomorrow, again held up the projected flight to England of Miss Amelia Earhart, Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon, who are anxiously awaiting favorable conditions to hop off in their tri-motored Fokker monoplane Friendship.

SAYS SENTIMENT AGAINST HOOVER RUNNING STRONG

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9—(U. P.)—C. B. Steward, secretary-treasurer of the farm bureau federation of Nebraska, reached the republican convention today and reported he had found sentiment against Herbert Hoover increasing in all parts of the corn belt. Opposition to the secretary of commerce is by no means confined to the farmers, Steward said, but also is found among the business and professional men.

Gale Strikes Capital; Loss About Million

WASHINGTON, June 9 — (I. N. S.)—Sweeping across the eastern section of Washington late this afternoon, a freakish tornado that lasted for five minutes injured six persons and did more than $1,000,000 damage. The Anacostia naval air station and the army station at Bolling Field were in the path of the gale.

Fourteen airplanes were destroyed or badly damaged at Bolling Field. Weather bureau officials at Bolling Field said the wind attained a velocity of 100 miles an hour. A heavy downpour of rain immediately preceding the wind storm prevented employes of the field getting the planes under shelter and safely moored.

Sheridan Injured At Swimming Pool

When he slipped while coming out of the shower bath at the municipal swimming pool Saturday evening about 6 o'clock, W. L. Sheridan, electrical apprentice in the Burlington shops at Havelock, sustained a long and deep gash on the left side of his head, and a sprained hand. He was taken to the office of Dr. W. H. Slattery, who took several stitches in the scalp wound and ordered Sheridan taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital for an X-ray of his hand which revealed that the hand was only severely sprained.

THAW ELECTS TO LAND IN FRANCE

Changes Mind On Channel Trip and Goes to Paris By Auto.

CHERBOURG, France, June 9—(I. N. S.)—Harry Thaw, who was barred from entering England, left the liner Aquitania when it arrived here this afternoon and started for Paris in an automobile.

"I plan a very quiet visit and a very quiet homecoming, probably on June 27," Thaw told International News Service.

Thaw had changed his mind while crossing the Channel, as he announced before leaving Southampton that he would return to the United States immediately, without stopping in France.

FOUR SOUTHERN CROSS AIRMEN REACH SYDNEY

MINDS CHANGED AT LAST MINUTE

Thousands of Enthusiastic Brisbane Admirers Bid Farewell.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., June 10—(Sunday) (U. P.)—The trans-Pacific monoplane Southern Cross arrived here at 3:10 p. m. today (9:10 p. m., Saturday, Pacific coast standard time) from Brisbane.

The plane made the distance of approximately 500 miles from Brisbane in four hours and twenty minutes flying time.

Perfect weather prevailed throughout the trip and the Southern Cross with a light load of gasoline, made much better time than on the three long hops in spanning the Pacific from California to Australia.

A great crowd was waiting at the airdrome to welcome the crew of the Southern Cross, which in a little more than a week had flown nearly 8,000 miles—7,351 of which lay over the open Pacific.

The arrival in Sydney was a homecoming for Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, commander of the Southern Southern Cross, and Capt. Charles T. P. Ulm, relief pilot.

Acclaimed As National Heroes.

Today they returned to their native city to find themselves acclaimed as national heroes and greeted with an enthusiastic welcome.

For hours the crowd had been waiting to greet the two Australians and their American companions of the trans-Pacific flight, Harry Lyon navigator, and James Warner, radio operator.

At first the two Americans had planned to leave the expedition at Brisbane, but a short time before the departure from that city Captain Kingsford-Smith and Captain Ulm prevailed upon them to accompany the Southern Cross to the end of its journey.

Leave Brisbane.

BRISBANE, Australia, June 10—(U. P.)—(Sunday)—The Southern Cross, with her full crew aboard, took the air again today on the last leg of its epochal flight from California to Australia.

The giant blue and silver monoplane flashed past thousands of eager watching eyes at 10 a. m.

NEW CHAIRMAN TO BE NAMED

Politicians Speculate As To William M. Butler's Successor.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9—(I. N. S.)—The pending retirement of William M. Butler, personal friend of President Coolidge, as republican national chairman tonight aroused considerable discussion as to who will be his successor.

The winning candidate naturally will choose the new chairman, but the lobbies in all the downtown hotels were filled with groups which eventually discussed the individual possibilities. There appeared more doubt as to who would succeed Butler if Herbert Hoover were nominated than in the case of any other candidate. The Hoover potentialities for Butler's job were C. Bascom Slemp of Virginia, Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work, James W. Good of Iowa, his chief manager, and George W. Akerson, Now Hoover's personal assistant.

The new chairman if Senator James E. Watson is nominated undoobtedly will be Bert M. Thurman of Indianapolis, his manager. David W. Mulvane of Kansas, likewise would be first choice for the job if Senator Charles Curtis won the nomination. The post probably would go to Clarence F. Buck of Illinoise if Former Governor Frank O. Lowden were the convention's choice. The speculation ran the gamut of a dozen names on the hyothesis that President Coolidge would be nominated for another term.

Butler will retire not only as chairman, but as a member of the national committee as well, as soon as the convention adjourns. His post as committeeman will be taken by Louis K. Liggett of Boston, head of a chain of drug stores.

$10,000 DAMAGES ASKED BY BOY, 7, HURT IN CRASH

For injuries received when his father's car collided with one driven by James Roucis, Harold R. Smith, 7, sued in District court Saturday for $10,000. The accident happened at Thirteenth and H streets on May 24. The boy suffered bruises and cuts, it is alleged.

TYLER MAY GO TO SACRAMENTO

SUPT. H. E. TYLER.

Of the Havelock public schools who has received an unofficial offer of a position in the junior college at Sacramento and expects to hand in his resignation to the board of education Monday.

If the board accepts and Mr. Tyler signs the new contract, he will take up his duties as psychology instructor about September 1. The offer was made through I. H. Linder, former superintendent at Havelock who will be vice principal of the Sacramento senior high school next year.

Mr. Tyler has been in Havelock five years as principal and superintendent. His three-year contract has one more year to run. He is a graduate of Doane and has a master's degree from the University of Nebraska.

Fall Speeds To Home at El Paso

PASADENA, Cal., June 9—(INS)—Quitting his sick bed here, Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior today was speeding to his home in El Paso Tex., where he was called on a matter of private business.

The former member of the cabinet, according to his announced plans, will remain in the Texas city for two weeks. He plans to return to the Las Encinas sanitarium here, where for the past two months he has been recuperating from a breakdown.

Naval Flier Killed

NEWPORT R. I., June 9—(INS)—Seaman H. E. Riker, who was seriously injured today when the navy airplane from the cruiser Conord crashed at Jamestown, near here, was still alive tonight, although little hope of his recovery was offered. He underwent an operation for a fractured skull at the naval hospital.

The plane crash resulted in the death of Lieut. Homer N. Wilkins, the pilot. He was thrown from the plane and died shortly after being removed to the hospital. Riker was inside the plane and was driven forward with a terrific force when the crash came.

No Chance For Dry According To Dr. Butler

KANSAS CITY, June 9—(INS)—Senator W. E. Borah's efforts to hammer into the republican platform a militant, bone dry plank are going to meet with strenuous opposition.

This much became assured today with the arrival in Kansas City of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of New York, President of Columbia university and at times an outspoken critic of his party.

"Any candidate committed to the Anti-Saloon league program will lose every state between the Merrimac and the Potomac," he said. This would include most of New England, New York, New Jersey, Deleware and Maryland.

Dr. Butler also was impressed with the seriousness of the agricultural discontent. This same discontent, he said, existed in 1924 and it resulted in the casting of 5,000,000 votes for Robert M. LaFollette, most of which came from the republican party.

WILL ROGERS A RIVAL OF WALES

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9—(AP)—The dangers of horseback riding were explained tonight by Will Rogers, comedian, who was injured in a polo game this afternoon at country club field.

"It's a lot more dangerous than zooming about in an airplane," he said. "I expect to be fully recovered tomorrow."

Rogers escaped injury when the airplane in which he was a passenger fell in Wyoming while he was en route to the republican convention here. He received abruised when the horse fell in the polo game.

MISSOURI RIVER ASSOCIATION TO BE FORMED HERE

Eight States Expected Send 2,500 Delegates to Conference.

ORGANIZATION TO HELP MAKE SURVEY

Building of Reservoirs to Control Floods Will Be Discussed.

Plans were completed Saturday afternoon at the Lincoln hotel for the organization of a Missouri River Basin association, at a conference here, the tentative dates for which have been fixed for July 20 and 21. The action was taken by a committee of the Nebraska association for the conservation, control and utilization of water resources. The committee follows: Frank D. Tomson, Lincoln, chairman; Frank Real, McCook; J. J. Halligan, North Platte; Robert Perry, Holdrege; C. G. Wallace, Hastings; Andrew Jensen, Minden; and R. E. Campbell, Lincoln, president of the chamber of commerce. Prof. Clark E. Mickey of the university also attended.

According to the preliminary arrangements the congressional delegations, governors, and state engineers and others interested in water resources will be invited from Montana, North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska, and Kansas. Oklahoma also will be asked to send similar delegates, that state already having an organization to one now functioning here. It is believed 2,500 will attend.

The purpose of the organization is to devise plans for co-operating with army engineers in making a survey of the tributaries of the Mississippi river with a view to building reservoirs as part of the system of controlling floods.

To Survey Tributaries.

A survey of the rivers tributary to the Missouri also is to be made. This will be done under the direction of the district engineer's office at Kansas City, at the head of which is Major Gordon Young.

FUNERAL F. M. HALL TUESDAY

Prominent Attorney Dies Saturday After Illness of But One Week.

Devoted Much Time to Schools, Church and to Cause of Art.

Funeral services for Frank M. Hall, 76, prominent Lincoln attorney who died at 2:15 Saturday afternoon at his home, 1039 South Eleventh street, after an illness of one week, will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the First Presbyterian church with Dr. Paul C. Calhoun officiating. Interment will be in Wyuka. The body is being held at Roberts' chapel.

Mr. Hall had been a resident of Lincoln since his matriculation at the University of Nebraska in 1876. During the fifty-two years that he resited here he had built up a reputation as one of the outstanding corporation lawyers of the state and had also found time to devote to his church, to the schools and to the cause of art.

He was born in Morgan county, Illinois, January 27, 1852, the son of James and Ellen Hall He received his education in Nebraska, at the Peru state normal college and at the University of Nebraska.

Mr. Hall was admitted to the Nebraska bar in 1880 and on June 15, 1881, was united in marriage to Anna E. Reid of Hamburg, Ia., who survives him. He had practiced law in Lincoln continuously since 1880, specializing in corporation law. He served as president of the Nebraska State Bar association in 1917.

Head of Law Firm.

According to H. H. Wilson, who was a felow student, Mr. Hall left the university at about the middle of his course and became affiliated with the firm of Cobb and Marquette. Shortly afterwards Cobb was made a supreme court justice and the firm of Marquette, Deweese and Hall was formed. Upon the death of his partners some fifteen years later Mr. Hall associated himself with Genio M. Lambertson in the firm of Lambertson and Hall. Later he became affiliated with Hall, Woods and Pound, which firm was superseded by that of Hall, Cline and Williams. He remained at the head of this organization until his death.

In addition to his activities as an attorney Mr. Hall was a director of the Lincoln Traction company, the First National bank, the First Savings bank, the First Trust company and the Morris Transfer company.

On May 4, 1909, Mr. Hall was elected to membership on the Lincoln board of education. He re-

GOVERNMENT TO NIP BOOTLEGGING AT KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9—(I. N. S.)—The federal government today wielded a bludgeon against bootlegging activities in Kansas City during the republican national convention by obtaining forty-five temporary injunctions against liquor selling at as many drug stores, soft drink parlors, barbecue stands and private residences. The injunctions were signed by Judge Albert L. Reeves of the United States District court.

Seventy additional prohibition agents will be here for the convention, it was announced.

FARM FIGHT AT CONVENTION IS UNKNOWN ISSUE

Equalization Fee and "What Farmers Desire" Face G.O.P. Leaders.

Both Factions Uncertain As To Meaning Farm Bureau Action.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9—(I. N. S.)—The widespread republican battle over agricultural relief turned tonight from a fight over incorporating an endorsement of the "equalization fee" in the republican platform to a row over what the farmers themselves desired.

Former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois and Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, presidential aspirants and chief proponents of the McNary-Haugen bill, declared the farmers still stood by the equalization fee principle of farm relief. Both denied the American Farm Bureau federation had abandoned the equalization fee when it requested the republican party to place agriculture on a parity with industry and commerce, but without specific mention of the McNary-Haugen bill.

Secretary of Agriculture W. M. Jardine, one of Herbert Hoover's managers, meanwhile declared the Coolidge administration now could stand "shoulder to shoulder" with the farmers in their battle for farm relief, since the equalization fee had been discarded. He interpreted the federation's action as putting an end to the long fight for the McNary-Haugen bill and pledged the administration's assistance in getting some other legislative relief at the next session of congress.

With these conflicting views as to what the farmers want, it appeared the farmers themselves may

Radio Stations Asked Be Quiet As Nobile Sends

WASHINGTON, June 9—(U. P.)—Chairman Ira E. Robinson of the federal radio committee in a statement tonight asked all short wave radio stations on frequencies near to that of Gen. Nobile's dirigible, the Italia, to remain absolutely silent so that Nobile's expected messages may be picked up.

FIND NO TRACE OF COAST GIRL

Wide Search Being Made For 11-Year-Old Hollywood Child.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 9—(I. N. S.)—The most sweeping kidnaping search since the William Edward Hickman case was launched by the Los Angeles police department tonight for little Betty Lawton, 11-year-old school girl, who has been missing from her home in Hollywood since 1 p. m., Friday.

Fears that the child had been kidnaped were voiced by the police following the report of her disappearance made by the father, Oswald G. Lawton, wealthy building contractor and architect.

Betty Lawton started from her home to the Chermoya school, two blocks away, after having lunch with her mother, Mrs. Genevieve Lawton She never arrived at the school and never returned home.

Late this afternoon hundreds of policemen and detectives, assisted by Hollywood Boy Scouts and other volunteers, were combing the Hollywood hills and conducting a house to house canvass for possible clews.

THREE KILLED IN A KANSAS STORM

WICHITA, Kas., June 9, (INS)—Three are dead and many slightly injured as the result of a tornado which struck near Caldwell, Kas., last midnight, according to delayed reports reaching here. The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Williams and their 3-year-old son, of Little Sandy, Okl. Total property damage was estimated tonight at one-half million dollars.

AIRSHIP WRECKED BY GALE, BUT ALL ABOARD ARE SAFE

Eighteen Members Of Ill-Fated North Pole Exploration Party, Missing Since May 25, Definitely Located By Radio Messages About Thirty Miles North Of Northeast Land—Relief Ships Expected To Return Them To Civilization Within Few Days.

ROME, June 9—(U. P.)—Regular wireless communication was established late last Saturday night between Citta di Milano and the Italia, official advices received here said.

The Citta di Milano and the crew of the stranded dirigible exchanged long messages and the commander of the Citta di Milano instructed the captains of the relief ships Braganosa and Hobby as to measures to be taken for relief work.

THE WEATHER.

CHICAGO, June 9—The weather outlook for the period from June 11 to June 16, inclusive, follows:

Upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys: Occasional showers in southern and central portions throughout week, but less likely in northern portions; temperature near seasonal normal in southern portions at beginning.

Nebraska: Showers Sunday and Monday; warmer in west portion Sunday.

GOFF SAYS FOR HIMSELF; ALSO AGAINST HOOVER

KANSAS CITY, June 9—(INS)—The anti-Hoover coalition was strengthened today by the arrival of Senator Guy D. Goff, West Virginia's favorite son candidate for the republican presidential nomination.

"Coalition?" said the West Virginian. "Certainly I'm for it, and with it. I'm for my own nomination first and last and if the coalition can help me I'm naturally for it."

Senator Goff took a dig at Secretary Hoover.

"I was a republican 200 years before I was born," he said. "I didn't have to wait until eight years ago to find out how I was going to vote."

Goff said the delegates from West Virginia would go "where wisdom dictates" in the event of his own elimination.

"I am not a stalking horse for any man or any candidate," Goff said. "I'm for myself and I am against Herbert Hoover.

HOOVER TO DEPEND ON RADIO.

WASHINGTON, June 9—(I. N. S.)—Arrangements for the installment of a powerful radio receiver in the office of Secretary of Commerce Hoover were completed today so that he may miss no detail of what takes place on the floor of the republican convention at Kansas City next week. Hoover, it was stated at the commerce department, will hear most of the convention returns over his office radio, with little interruption of the mass of routine which passes over his desk daily. At the secretary's home also are several radio sets.

Secretary To Coolidge Off To Convention

WASHINGTON, June 9—(U. P.)—Everett Sanders of Indiana, secretary to President Coolidge, left today for the Kansas City republican convention. His departure revived speculation as to reported messages from the president dealing with the "draft Coolidge" movement. Sanders will stop at Terre Haute, Ind., and is expected in Kansas City Monday.

AUTO DAMAGED WHEN HITS PIER

Accident Gives Rise to False Report Man Was Killed.

A coupe owned by Don Fleck, 25, 1331 J street, was considerably damaged when it plunged into the concrete pier underneath the railroad bridge five miles west on O street about 10:30 o'clock Saturday night.

First reports to Lincoln police were that one person had been killed and several injured in the accident, but county and state officers found this to be untrue. Later Saturday night, Rev. E. Fleck, the young man's father, was notified that his son was not hurt and that only the car had been damaged.

To Proceed at Once

MOSCOW, June 9—(U.P.)—The official Russian rescue expedition decided tonight to proceed at once to the relief of the Italia, on receipt of word that the dirigible had been located definitely.

The relief committee got in touch with the Italian government and began studying charts to settle on the best way to reach the Italia with all possible speed.

LONDON, June 9—(I. N. S.)—Now that the approximate location of the long missing Nobile expedition has been fixed, belief was expressed tonight, based upon late advices from Kings Bay, that the members of the exploration party will be on their way back to civilization within four or five days unless ice floes prevent a vessel from reaching them.

There are three ships at Spitzbergen which might be used for the rescue of the eighteen stranded explorers—the supply ship, City of Milan (Citta di Milano) which was used as the Nobile base of the balloon Italia; the whaler Braganza, which is under charter to the Italian government, and the ice breaker Hobby, which carried Lieut. Lutzon Holm, Norwegian aviator, to Spitzbergen.

The Citta di Milano was in communication with the Nobile expedition during most of the night and most of today. Gen. Umberto Nobile, head of the expedition, reported that all the members of the party—eighteen in number—were alive.

According to advices from Kings Bay the Italia was forced down by a gale on May 25 on a great ice

WOODMEN PLAN RAINBOW PARADE

Huge Street Procession Will Be Feature of Encampment.

A. R. Talbot Anniversary Celebration Will Begin June 17.

Plans have been completed for the Rainbow parade which will be an outstanding feature of the Modern Woodmen of America encampment and athletic tournament to be held in Lincoln, June 17 to 21.

The Rainbow parade will take place Wednesday afternoon, June 20, and will be followed by a special stunt night program at Capitol Beach. The encampment begins at 4 o'clock Sunday, June 17, and a full program has been arranged for the next five days closing Thursday with the finals in the athletic tournament.

One of the purposes of the encampment will be the celebration of the silver anniversary of A. R. Talbot's election as head consul of the society, he having first been elected to office at Indianapolis in 1903. No encampment was held in 1927 that more time could be devoted to the coming affair.

Among the speakers who will address the Modern Woodmen are F. R. Korns, director of the arganization; S. R. McKelvie, publisher of the Nebraska Farmer, E. E. Murphy, director; E. J. Burkett; and Verne Hedge.

Lincoln business men are co-operating with officers of the organization and store windows and buildings will be decorated in red, white and green, the M. W. A. colors. Any business house not having made arrangements for decorations can do so by notifying R. H. George, president of the committee, at B1313.

The Rainbow parade with Capt. Trev E. Gillaspie as marshal, Capt. John E. Curtiss and Maj. W. E. Kelso as aides will start from Lincoln Hotel headquarters at 1 p. m. Wednesday, June 20, and the following will be the line of march: Ninth and P streets, South to Ninth and O streets, east on O street to Tenth, south on Tenth to M street, east on M to Thirteenth; north on Thirteenth to N street, east on N to Seventeenth, north on Seventeenth to O street, west on O street to Eleventh, north on Eleventh, passing the reviewing stand at chamber of commerce continuing north to R street, east on R to Twelfth street, thence north to the Nebraska memorial stadium, when the bands and foresters will be reviewed by Commander-in-chief, A. R. Talbot, Gen. M. R. Smith and the head officers. This ceremony will be open to the public. Address of welcome by Mayor Hedge. Speaking by head officers and prominent woodmen. Program conducted by Supreme Organizer Ralph E. Johnson as master of ceremonies.

Following the Rainbow parade and the program at the stadium will be the stunt program at Capitol beach for the public. The 185 piece band from Sedalia, Mo., Madison and Omaha bands and Lincoln drum corps will have a part in this program and the most popular young lady will be crowned queen of the silver anniversary celebration Many other amusing and entertaining features will have a part in the big Stunt night program.

The Rainbow parade of bands, forester teams, head officers, members, athletes, handsome floats and burlesque costumes will be made up in the following order:

First division: Escort of police, Sedalia band, automobiles containing M. W. A., head officers and city officials.

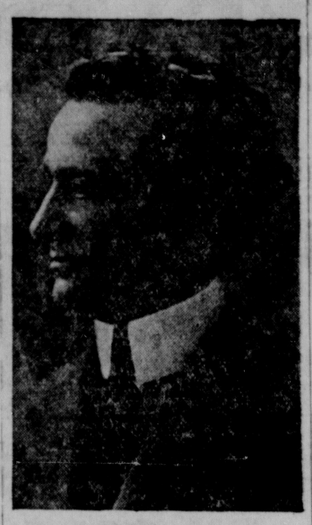
VICE PRESIDENT POWER COMPANY



GEORGE A. LEE.

Lincoln attorney who has been elected vice president and general counsel for the Iowa-Nebraska Light and Power Co. He is a member of the law firm of Hainer, Flansburg and Lee.

FURNACE CASE IN DISTRICT COURT

Judge Must Decide Whether Heating System Belongs to House Or to Dealer.

Whether a furnace belongs to the house or to the dealer who has a special contract with the purchaser concerning it is the unusual legal question argued before District Judge Broady Saturday and taken by him under advisement.

L. T. Houser built the house and bought a heating system from Splain & Firestein under an agreement that title to the outfit should remain with them until final payments had been made. Then the Occidental Building & Loan association started foreclosure proceedings on the house. To keep the furnace dealers from removing the plant immediately, they claimed that it should be viewed as a fixture not to be taken from the premises. They asked, therefore, that Splain & Firestein be enjoined from removing the furnace.

This question has not arisen in Nebraska before and in other states has been decided in various manners. Judge Broady indicated that he thought the furnace men had equity on their side, but that he would look further into the law before deciding.

LEE IS ELECTED POWER OFFICIAL

Becomes Vice President and General Counsel Iowa-Nebraska Firm.

George A. Lee of Lincoln has been elected vice president and general counsel of Iowa-Nebraska Light and Power Co. Mr. Lee is a member of the law firm of Hainer, Flansburg & Lee. The Iowa-Nebraska company serves Lincoln and approximately two hundred and fifty cities and towns in Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska with electric light, heat and power.

Mr. Lee was formerly first assistant attorney general and chairman of the railroad and public service commission of the state of Washington. Later he served as counsel for the interstate commerce commission with residence in Washington, D. C. For the past several years he has been general counsel for the Iowa-Nebraska company and its associated and predecessor companies. Mr. Lee is an outstanding authority in the middle west upon public utility law and utility matters and problems generally. The newly bestowed position and title will make no change in his plans or residence. He will still continue his law firm with location and residence in Lincoln.

GROCERS WILL HEAR SHAPPEE

Chain Store Competition Will Be Discussed By Chicago Man.

Chain store competition will be discussed by D. B. Shappee of Chicago at a meeting Tuesday evening at the Chamber of Commerce of retail grocers in Lincoln and this vicinity. All interested are invited to the meeting which will begin at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Shappee, who is considered one of the leading merchandising experts in the country, is connected with the merchandising department of the W. F. McLaughlin & Co., of Chicago, coffee dealers. The talk will deal entirely with merchandising, however, with no sales proposition being presented. Mr. Shappee recently was one of the principal speakers at the Michigan State Grocers association convention.

The main topics to be discussed by Mr. Shappee are: chain store conditions in this country; what to expect from chain competition in Nebraska; and what is being done throughout the country to meet the situation.

The McLaughlin company is sponsoring the talk in an attempt to protect its own business and to help the retail grocer meet the new competition according to Fred Willson, of the merchandising department of this company. The company has extensive interests in Central America and Brazil which it must protect by retaining its market through the retail grocers according to Mr. Willson.

Mr. Willson with the local representative, H. H. Kendall, has been in Lincoln the past week making a survey of local stores. He declared that he was impressed favorably with the conditions in a number of stores and with their merchandising programs but that he found room for improvement in others.

Grocers were urged to put aside their petty arguments and prejudices and get together for at least the one occasion to hear an address pertinent to their problems by Mr. Willson.

The program at the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, at which Mr. Shappee will be the only speaker, has been arranged through President John Maser and Secretary Roy Ford of the Lincoln Retail Grocers and Meat Dealers association.

MONEY RATES CONTINUE HIGH

Call Loans Mount to 7 Per Cent, a New High Since 1921.

Wall Street Continues to Find Many Advocates Of Higher Prices.

BY W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, June 9—(I. N. S.)—Contiuance of high money rates in the call loan market, as well as in time markets, this week was a handicap to both the stock and the bond markets. Instead of the expected relaxation in call loans over the month-end, the banks renewed their demands on this market, and the rate went up to 7 per cent, again establishing a new high rate since 1921. Time loans were available only at the highest rate in more than six years, despite the fact that outside banks and American corporations were ready to pour a good volume of funds into the money markets.

The increases in freight car loads, steel and motor car outputs and buying of copper and other important commodities at a time of year when contraction is usually looked for, was a matter of much encouragement to those on the constructive side of all markets. Notwithstanding the sensational advances in prices of industrial stocks on the big board, Wall street finds many advocates of higher prices for the bulk of stocks of well-managed American corporations. An occasional reaction or "shake out" must always be reckoned with, but these have been comparatively rare in the last year or two.

Predicts Renomination of Coolidge

Political factors will doubtless exert a powerful influence on the stock market over the next few weeks, particularly if harmony is lacking in either of the important conventions of the major parties this month. Though Wall street has no favorite candidate, the renomination of Calvin Coolidge is confidently predicted in important financial circles, and in fact a large share of the credit for the current rise in stock prices has been attributed to that fact.

Cool weather and excessive rainfalls in wide areas retarded crop growth and retail trade this week, according to Bradstreet's weekly survey of business conditions. But underlying conditions in agriculture were improved, despite the slowness in the movement of cotton and other agricultural products to the consuming centers. Automobile manufacturing was well maintained, with a good increase in the employment rolls of the Ford, General Motors and other well known producers.

Industrial stocks were unable to make much progress against the handicap of profit taking and short selling in all sections of the market. The 7 per cent call loan rate was unexpected, in view of the completion of the June bank settlements, but the banks sent hurried calls into the call loan market, and relief from outside sources was not forthcoming in as large a quantity as in previous week.

Bond Prices Drop.

High grade bonds, including United States government war bonds and post-war treasury issues, dipped to the lowest prices of the year this week, as the result of the tightening of the money market. Secretary Mellon bid 3⅞ per cent and 4 per cent for short term treasury notes, against 3⅛ per cent on the last previous issue of government financing. New issues of home and foreign bonds in the outside market topped $225,000,000 for the week, one of the largest weekly aggregates of the year.

With the exception of wheat, which declined sharply near the week-end, commodity prices were generally steady. Bradstreet's food index number for the week was $3.34 unchanged from last week, and comparing with $3.26 a year ago.

Bank clearings aggregated $13,578,000,000, an increase of 26.4 per cent over the corresponding week of last year.

Grains Close Irregular

CHICAGO, JUNE 9—(INS)—Grains closed irregular today. Wheat was 1¾ to 1⅞c higher, corn ¼ to ⅜c lower and oats unchanged to ½c higher.

For the week wheat was off 4⅜ to 5⅜c, corn 2 to 4c and oats ⅝ to 1c.

Favorable weather over the northwest was responsible for the decline in wheat, longs unloading at every opportunity. Rains relieved whatever drought distress there was in the winter wheat territory.

A slight recovery resulted later, however, with moderate buying on firmness at Liverpool and the Government crop report, generally construed at bullish.

Winter Wheat 73.6

The winter wheat crop was placed at 512,252,000 bushels by the government, based on a condition of 73.6 per cent of normal June 1. Last year's production was 522,000,000 bushels. The condition of the spring wheat crop on June 1 was 79 per cent, but no production was forecast. The condition was much lower than private estimates.

Foreign crop news continues bullish, many complaints of cold wet weather being received. Canadian visible stocks last week increased more than 2,000,000 bushels and marketings continue to run large. Cash demand remains fair.

Favorable weather and weakness in wheat depressed the corn market. Foreign news was bullish, but export demand poor. Buying demand was light, especially from the outside.

Hogs Finish Higher

CHICAGO, JUNE 9—(INS)—Hogs finished 10c higher than a week ago, yearling steers and heifers gained 25 to 40c, cows dropped 15 to 25c while lambs eased as much as 75c to $1.

Demand for hogs was fairly active and prices managed to hold up fairly well in spite of larger receipts. Arrivals during the week numbered 188,000 against 164,000 last week and 189,000 a year ago. Top for hogs was $10 late in the week, with 270 lb. heavies at $9.95. Most of the medium to good grades cashed at $9.50 to $9.90.

Yearling steers met with an exceptionally strong demand and prices had little difficulty in soaring. One load topped the week's list at $15, highest of the season. The bulk of the yearlings moved at $14 to $14.75. The best weighty steers sold steady at $14.80. Week's receipts totaled 51,000, compared 38,000 last week and 57,000 a year ago.

Heifer Prices Mount.

A good demand existed all week for fat yearling heifers and prices moved up to the highest point of the year. A carload sold at $14.75 and many were bought at $14 to $14.50. Plainer and heavier heifers sold at $13 to $14. Cows were slow, sale at $9 to $11 for fat classes and $7.59 to 9 for light and medium weight grades of plain quality. Calves declined 75c to $1. Best heavy selections moved at $14.50 to $15.50.

The lamb market was at the high point of the year when the week started, but declined sharply under the weight of liberal receipts. Receipts during the week were 69,000 against 44,000 last week and 46,000 a year ago. Top early in the week was $19.35 for Idaho lambs, while at the close the same kind sold at $18.50. Good to choice lambs finished at $18 to $18.50 and the medium to good at $17 to 18. Ewes sold 50c lower at $6 to $8.50.

Chicago Cotton Lower.

CHICAGO, June 9—(I. N. S.)—After holding steady during most of the week, cotton prices eased and closed 4 to 12 points lower. Trade was rather light. The market continues to be a weather affair.

Today's closing prices were from 2 points lower to 4 higher. July finished at 2046; October 2024; Dec. and January 2021; March 2020.

Battle Seemed Ended.

Since the federation spoke without naming the "equalization fee" the battle over a farm relief plank seemed ended. The Coolidge administration and Hoover campaign leaders were willing to draft any sort of plank which left out specific mention of the equalization fee.

The Watson-Lowden-Curtiss-Dawes farm leaders were forced to cancel their fight for such a plank when the federation spoke as it did. Consequently both sides were drafting farm planks, pledging relief and equality for agriculture without saying how it shall be accomplished.

The farmers will attend the convention and undoubtedly will have their inning in the sun. Indeed, they may even steal the thunder of the convention by a spectacular descent on the Convention hall. Their leaders predicted 100,000 farmers would be in Kansas City by Tuesday, "to demand justice and fair play for agriculture." Almost all of the farm invaders will come here by automobile from fourteen midwestern states. Several long caravans of motor cars were reported already on the road from the Dakotas and Nebraska.

Fee Heart of Bill.

The equalization fee principle which caused al the trouible, was the "heart" of the McNary-Haugen bill. Under terms of this measure, the farmers would have financed a governmental corporation, created to export all surplus crops, by levying a fee against all sales of any commodity thus exported. The fee would have been collected from the farmers whether they liked it or not but all were expected to benefit by sharp increases in the price for that commodity due to elimination of the surplus crops.

"I stand for the equalization fee," said Lowden. "I will fight for it until somebody offers something better. The American Farm Bureau federation endorsed it by demanding legislation which would distribute the burden of relief costs upon all producers. That's the principle of the equalization fee and by that I stand."

Senator Watson expressed the same sentiments. He said he would not abandon the equalization fee principle and declared it would have to be written into the farm relief plank.

The Jardine statements echoed throughout the day by other Hoover leaders, put an entirely different construction on the situation.

Jardine Says Pleased.

"No one could be more pleased than I by the action of the American Farm Bureau federation in adopting a resolution that discards the equalization fee and the price fixing principle of the McNary-Haugen bill", said Jardine, "I can accept the bureau's recommendation that legislation immediately be enacted which will place agriculture permanently on an equal basis with other industries, with the understanding that the unconstitutional equalization fee and governmental price fixing ideas are things of the past. The administration vigorously worked for, and will continue to do so, legislation which will accomplish this end."

Jardine said the bureau's cooperation would "make it easy" for the administration to get farm relief legislation at the next session of congress.

"The unconstitutional equalization fee has been the single factor which has made it impossible heretofore for this major farm organization and the administration to work shoulder to shoulder" he added, with the aid of the farm bureau I see the way clear now to secure helpful, rather than harmful legislation.

Jardine suggested Legislation giving "the farmers the opportunity to organize for themselves and run for themselves powerful commodity marketing organizations." He said such organizations would give agriculture, the game effective abrgaining power that other industries "and give the farmers the equality they demanded.

Farmer Caravan Awaited.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9 —(UP) —The farmers' caravan —the Lowden group of agriculturalists — formed two committees today designed to aid the stop-Hoover movement.

The first committee—known as the executive group—will campaign to convince delegates they should not vote for Hoover. The second—or program committee—will arrange rallies designed to combat Hoover in the next few days.

Several speakers maintained Hoover could not carry the farm belt. On the other hand there were general agreements that the farmers ought not to bolt the republican party.

One hundred thousand farmers, according to an estimate of Governor McMullen of Nebraska to the United Press, will be here in the "farm caravan" next week to aid in getting their farm plank wishes before the republican convention. Farm caravan headquarters estimated the total crusaders would be 50,000 to 60,000 and the opening announcement at the farmers' Lowden session that auto bearing crusaders had just left North Dakota brought cheers.

McMullen told the United Press before the session convened that the crusaders will want a proper farm plank, and he felt the American farm bureau federation plank —not mentioning the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill nor the equalization fee specifically—would receive their support. In fact, he held that the federation plank in reality does endorse the McNary-Haugen measure and the equalization fee.

Asked if inclusion of this plank in the republican platform might not be regarded as a "slap at the administration," McMullen retorted that he regarded the "administration" as composed of both the republican party and the president.

"The party has twice endorsed the McNary-Haugen bill," he said, "and we feel it is proper to endorse this again. That need not be regarded as a slap at the administration, even though Mr. Coolidge has manifested difference in views than that of the party."

The farm caravan folks said their meeting this afternoon was designed to create an extensive farm organization and said that Frank Lowden of Illinois is their choice for the nomination.

Caravan headquarters said responses to broadcasting of the appeal for the "march on Kansas City" had brought indications that 50,000 to 60,000 would be here next week. Just where such a number will be cared for in already overcrowded Kansas City was not entirely evident, though headquarters said there are 20,000 accommodations for the tillers of the soil here; that there is an amusement park where 45,000 farmers' autos can be parked and where 45,000 farmers could "camp out" during their stay.

The most specific information vouchsafed at headquarters was that reservations have been made for 1,200 caravaners at Omaha for Sunday, and that this group would be on hand here Monday. The campaigners are coming chiefly from the Dakotas and Minnesota, it was said.

"Equality for agriculture," is the caravan's slogan. If this can be attained, the farmers will be happy, it was said.

Coolidge's Name Bobs Up.

As the farmers' meeting gathered, there was much private discussion as to whether "Coolidge will accept." None seemed to have an answer for this question, and the delegates proceeded on the theory that their choice, Lowden, "can win," as the Lowden badges say. As the meeting progressed, the afternoon newspapers came in reporting a bumper crop of wheat in Kansas—with 158,000,000 bushels forecast for this year, as compared with 116,000,000 bushels last year.

Havelock's New Motorcycle Officer

Mayor Fred Hall, of Havelock, has announced the appointment of Jack Williams as regular officer on the police force of Havelock. He will patrol the two state highways, the D. L. D. and the Cornhusker that passes through Havelock, as well as the two mile strip of Cotner boulevard within the corporate limits, on a motorcycle. G street, being paved from the extreme west border or Forty-eighth street of Lincoln now, formerly Warren avenue of Uni. Place to the east boarder of Havelock, where it connects with Cotner boulevard, will also be patroled by the new officer, the mayor stated.

Third Reading of Little Symphony Ordinance Monday

An ordinance bringing the Lincoln Little Symphony orchestra under the control of the city council and making it a municipal organization, will be up for third reading at the council meeting Monday afternoon. Passage of the ordinance makes Sunday afternoon concerts in one of the theaters possible next winter.

It was only by the city taking over the orchestra and making it a municipal enterprise that the Sunday afternoon concerts could be brought about. The ordinance does not open the way to privately operated orchestras inaugurating a series of entertainments for profit.

Charles Folsom of the army engineering staff will be in charge.

Appropriations for the work have been made, one and a half million coming from the rivers and harbors bill, and a half million from the flood control legislation. The first $70,000 is already available for the first year of work along the Kaw, Platte and Yellowstone rivers. The apportionment from the flood fund has not yet been made.

The committee which Saturday initiated the conference, was authorized in resolutions approved at a recent meeting of the Nebraska association at Kearney. After setting out the reasons for conserving and controlling the water resources of the basin, the resolutions read as follows:

That this association use its influence and direct its energies to the end that a meeting be called in the immediate future of representatives of the various states located within the drainage basin of the Missouri river and its tributaries for the purpose of co-operating with all governmental agencies having to to do with the problems relating to the drouth control, conservation, control and utilization of these waters, that a comprehensive plan of the development may be adopted involving forestation, protection of wild life, construction of reservoirs to prevent great losses to agriculture by drouth as well as floods by supplying water storage for irrigation and power, thus regulating the stream flow to prevent silt contributions and contribute to water supplies, sanitation navigation and other common uses of water.

Want Planks In Platforms.

That we urge our delegates in both the republican national convention and the democratic national convention to insistently demand that a plank be embodied in their respective platforms clearly and emphatically committing each party to the policy of solving the problems of conservation drouth and flood control by the establishment of reservoirs in the upper regions of the Missouri and other tributaries of the Mississippi river, to conserve those surplus waters during the flood periods thereby prevention drouth losses on the semi-arid great plains and reducing the danger and losses into the lower stretches of these streams, particularly the Mississippi river

And further the utilization of the water conserved fo rirrigation and power purposes, that the natural resources may be protected and developed for the needs of the nation, and its steadily increasing population and its prospects for enlarging world commerce.

That this association lend its aid and co-operation to the United States district engineer's office at Kansas City, Mo., in their studies and surveys of the Missouri river and its tributaries in Nebraska, now being made or to be made in the state of Nebraska under the provisions of the rivers and harbors act of January 21, 1927, and the Mississippi river flood control act of the last congress.

Ask State Appropriation.

That this association recommend to the governor and legislature that they make legislative provision and appropriate funds for the purpose of co-operation with the United States engineers' office, the United States department of agriculture, the United States department of the interior or other governmental agencies in matters pertaining to stream measurements and topographical surveys in order to meet federal aid for these purposes and to receive the benefit therefrom.

That we are in favor of the national government appropriating through the flood control legislation sufficient funds for the construction and maintenance of flood water reservoirs, in or adjacent to the rivers of the arid and semi-arid regions with the object of lessening the drouth in the great plains and the floods in the navigable rivers into which the waters of such regions finally find their way, and for the purpose of increasing the flow of such rivers during the time of scarcity of water, and equalizing the flow of the waters of said rivers, and we are also in favor of the national government making sufficient appropriation for the purpose of constructing ditches to convey the flood waters of the rivers draining the arid and semi-arid great plains onto the divide or highlands of the fertile agricultural lands of said plains for the purpose of storing water as a national economic safeguard.

We urge our senators and representatives to use their best efforts to bring these conditions about.

Rev. Peterson Lands a Big Catfish

One of the most enthusiastic followers of Izaak Walton in Nebraska is the Rev. C. H. B. Peterson, 2013 G street, who has been completing his work on a master's degree at the University of Nebraska.

Rev. Peterson has not found it necessary to go outside of Nebraska to indulge his love of fishing. The photograph shows him with a 26-pound catfish which he caught on the Blue river last summer while camping at Horky's park. The same day Rev. Peterson caught six other catfish, giving him the limit.

The big fish in the picture gave him an exciting fight before he was able to land it. He got it on a throw line near the Burlington bridge but before he could bring it into his boat, it had towed him for more than a half mile.

LINCOLN NEARLY "WEEDLESS" CITY BAIR DECLARES

There are fewer weeds to be seen in Lincoln this year than ever before, according to Commissioner Bair, head of the public health department. People started cutting them early, he said, and by the time he intends to start notifying those who have not cleared their premises, June 15, there will be few to cut. Where the city cuts the weeds the cost is assessed against the property and collected as taxes.

An inpection will be made later in the summer, and on August 15, notices will be sent to all who have not cut their weeds at that time. This is part of the cleanup campaign just preceding the state fair.

Rock Island Aids Chamber Efforts to Obtain Convention

According to Secretary Whitten the chamber of commerce has the support of the Rock Island railroad in trying to bring to Lincoln in 1929 the national country life conference. A letter from Arthur W. Large, agricultural agent for the Rock Island lines, to Mr. Whitten, says that the writer has written the director of agriculture of West Virginia, soliciting that officials support.

Among other things the carrier representative pointed out that Lincoln is a city of 75,000 and the only one in America where the schools and colleges are populated with 25,000 students. His letter also pointed out that Nebraska is in the heart of the agricultural district of the nation.

No matter who is nominated or elected, business can't be very good unless we observe the old law of "Live and Let Live," and perhaps it should be "Live and Help Live."

First Anniversary Week

June 10th to 17th

One Year of Progress:

On June 10, 1927, we acquired ownership control of this company.

On January 1, 1928, we introduced the completely new line of Graham-Paige motor cars which we returned to the industry to build.

Within three months of their introduction, this company enjoyed the greatest single month's business in its eighteen years' history.

Sales for the last three months exceeded those for the entire year of 1927.

To the public, which has made this progress possible, we express our gratitude and sincere appreciation.

One year ago, in our initial message, we said:

"The public expects motor car executives to keep abreast of the times and make their product constantly better. We shall earnestly strive to do so."

We believe you will find Graham-Paige motor cars abreast of the times—in engineering, in fine appearance and finish, and in ability to deliver genuine satisfaction.

You will find in the four-speed transmission (with standard gear shift) an engineering advance which results in distinctly improved performance at all speeds—a new motoring experience.

We invite you to ride in and drive a Graham-Paige and form your own conclusions as to the quality and substantial value of these new motor cars.

CHURCH PEOPLE TO CELEBRATE

Organization at Clatonia Sixty Years Old This Month.

(Special to The Star.)

CLATONIA, Neb., June 9—On June 17 the Methodists at Clatonia will celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the organization of their church, which took place in June, 1868. From then until a few years later Clatonia was one of the points of "Lincoln city mission," composed of Centerville, Clatonia, Olive Branch or Salt Creek and Swanville.

The celebration will be as follows: Opening service Saturday afternoon. Rev. Ed. Sallenbach of Friend, a former pastor of the Clatonia church will deliver the address. Sunday morning 9:30 to 10, class meeting; 10 to 11, children's and young people's hour. Rev. H. A. Hohenwald of Humboldt will be one of the speakers. At 11 o'clock, sermon by Rev. A. O. Hinson, district superintendent, Beatrice district. In the afternoon a number will speak on experiences in Pioneer Days, the organization and growth of the church. Stereopticon address in the evening; pictures of pioneer members and former ministers to be thrown on the screen. The Kiwanis glee club of Beatrice will sing in the evening. Special music at all services.

GRANT NOTES

(Special to The Star.)

GRANT, Neb., June 9—Funeral services were held last Monday for Mrs. Charles Eppler, 69, who died Sunday after an illness of two weeks. They were conducted by Rev. Lichty, assisted by Rev. Bandy and interment was in Fairview cemetery. Mrs. Eppler was a pioneer of Perkins county.

Last Saturday evening Miss Bernice Fent and Harold Corl were married at the residence of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Corl, the ceremony taking place in the presence of a small group of friends. Both parties are residents of Grand Island and have returned there to make their home.

Wheat in some parts of Perkins and adjoining counties will make a bigger crop than the record breaker of last year, according to "Bill" Edwards, local land and insurance agent, who has traveled over practically all of the territory. Mr. Edwards also says that the corn prospects were never better at this season of the year.

ALUMNUS MEMBER PHI BETA KAPPA

FREMONT, Neb., June 9.— Dr. Holmes Dysinger, dean of Western Theological seminary and professor of philosophy at Midland college here, was initiated Saturday as an alumnus memoer of the Phi Beta Kappa chapter at Gettysburg college, Gettysburg, Pa., Dr. Dysinger who last fall celebrated the 57th anniversary of his entry into the teaching profession, has been a member of the Midland faculty for the last 28 years. He was formerly president of Carthage college, Carthage, Ill., for eight years

BOWERS RE-ELECTED.

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., June 9—The Adams board of education has re-elected J. L. Bowers superintendent for another term. Practically all of the old corps of teachers was re-elected. The new ones are Miss Dora Catchpole of Eckley, Colo., Miss Rueh Blodgett of Adams and Ray Johns of Bloomfield. Mr. Johns will act as coach during the coming year.

TOPS STEER MARKET.

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., June 9—J. C. Plucknett, stock raiser living near De Witt, marketed twenty-five yearling steers at Kansas City this week which averaged 752 pounds. They brought the top price, $13.25 and $13.50 a hundred.

NEBRASKA GIRL PRINCE'S BRIDE

Former Russian Noble Now New York Auto Dealer.

(Special to The Star)

NEW YORK, June 9 — Charlene G. Scott, 23, the daughter of Jay C. and Louise Smith Scott, of Central City, Neb., where she was born, and Peter Chernoborodorf, 30, son of Milchel and Princess Alexandria de Jaesolin Chernoborodorf, obtained a license to wed here Friday and announced they would be married here Saturday at the Madison avenue Presbyterian church by the Rev. Buttrick.

Mr. Chernoborodorf, who gave his present address as 157 West 120th street, this city, was born in Russia. He is in the automobile business.

Fremont Will Have Fine New Hospital

Lutherans Raising Money For Edifice To Be Built In the Near Future.

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb., June 9—A new Lutheran hospital costing $200,000, to be erected on the Lutheran grounds on East Military avenue, is practically assured, as a result of the first week's subscription campaign. With less than half the territory in Fremont covered, the subscriptions have reached nearly $50,000.

Fremont is pledged to $75,000. The Lutheran church and churches of the surrounding districts are pledged to raise $125,000. Work in the country districts is progressing slowly, owing to the fact that the farmers are busy with their crops, but in the field covered the responses have been liberal. Workers who met today were enthusiastic over the prospect. Signs were that Fremont would go over the top in less than a week.

MANY AT BIBLE SCHOOL.

(Special to The Star)

MILFORD, June 10—The first week of the Evangelical daily vacation Bible school here closed Friday with an enrollment of 99. There are five teachers besides Rv. Willaem G. Rembolt, the pastor, who is in charge. They are: Miss Verna Fosler, Miss Mildred Fosler, Miss Bernice Llapply, Miss Nellie Whitaker and Mrs. J. E. Yost.

NOT TO MARCH ON CONVENTION

Farmers of Western Nebraska Not Interested In Politics.

Wheat Crop and Trainloads of Combines Take Up Time.

(Special to The Star.)

SIDNEY, Neb., June 9—If 20,000 farmers from Nebraska march on Kansas City to the republican convention they will be recruited from other sections of the than the western counties which make up the great wheat country.

A survey during the past few days by disinterested parties have failed to find any interest whatever in what the political parties are doing, either at Kansas City or Houston.

Plenty of rain, coupled with three solid trainloads of combine harvesters received in Cheyenne, Deuel and Keith counties during the past two days have given the farmers more to think about than politics, according to those best informed on the situation.

Practically every farmer in these three counties was at Sidney, Chappell or Ogallala yesterday and today to help stage the celebration welcoming the trains. Band concerts, balloon ascensions, street, dances, fireworks and speech-making turned the two days into regular fourth of July celebrations.

The combine trains into Sidney, and Ogallala were each more than a half mile long and the one into Chappell was nearly as long. The shipments are valued at approximately $200,000 and practically every combine was sold before the trains were unloaded. The trains were sent from Independence, Mo., and unloaded by local dealers. Additional trains are to be sent into adjoining counties during the next seven days.

PLANT MANY BEANS IN PLATTE VALLEY

Hundreds of Acres Being Utilized and Prospects Good For An Immense Crop.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., June 9—Farmers of the North Platte valley are finding bean growing a profitable branch of farming. In Morrill county alone, there are 800 acres of pinto beans planted this year, which is indicative of the vast acreage of beans in the ground over the entire panhandle region of the state.

A co-operative company of farmers has been organized. This co-operative supplies seed to the farmers, as well as furnishing the necessary implements to planting, threshing, grading and sacking the beans.

The co-operative in Morrill county has furnished bean growers with 11,400 pounds of beans. Elmer Morehead, of south of Alliance, has planted 230 acres, and J. F. Young, of Northport, 175 acres.

The bean outlook is splendid this year and indications are for a large crop. The stalks are several inches in height and are well leaved.

GETTING READY FOR IMMENSE HARVEST

Trainloads of Combines and Other Machines Coming Into This State Daily.

(Special to The Star.)

ENDICOTT, Neb., June 9—As an indication of what the wheat harvest is expected to be in central and western Nebraska this year, dealers are purchasing large shipments of harvester combines and threshers in advance.

A special train consisting of fifty carloads of harvester combines from the Missouri river cities, where factories and distributors are located, passed through this place on the Grand Island railway today, en route to Hastings and beyond to be in readiness for the coming harvest. A like shipment on a special train went west through here on the same railroad Friday for western Nebraska.

The wheat in this vicinity is heading in splendid form, and, although the heads are considered slightly smaller than in former seasons, the grain seems to be of good kernel and the stand is heavy.

To Bury Fremont Man Who Drowned Near Former Home

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb., June 9—The body of Ralph Rexroth, 29, former well known Fremont boy, who was drowned in the Big Horn river in Wyoming last week, was taken to Jireh, Wyo., for burial. Services will probably be held Sunday, according to word reaching Ralph's mother, Mrs. George Rexroth, who is at the home here. A sister of Ralph was buried near Jireh many years ago when the family lived on a homestead in Wyoming.

Ralph Rexroth while employed with a bridge crew, fell from a bridge a week ago Thursday into the Big Horn river. His father and brother went from Fremont to assist in the search for the body.

GOING TO EUROPE.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., June 9—Mrs. Matie Butcher, pioneer resident of Wymore, left Friday for New York City, where she will visit her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lund, and the middle of June the trio will sail for Europe, where they will make an extended visit of the continent, returning late in July. Mrs. Butcher is the only remaining member in Wymore of the first graduating class of the Wymore schools, the class of 1888. Mr. Lund is an instructor in a New York school.

BIRTHDAY DINNER.

(Special to The Star)

FALLS CITY, Neb., June 9—In honor of the seventy-sixth birthday of Fred Ernst, early settler of Richardson county, a dinner was served Thursday evening. He was born June 7, 1852, at Baden, Germany, and has lived in the county 48 years. He is a retired farmer and in excellent health.

WEAVER TO SPEAK TO VIRGINIA CLUB

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., June 9—The annual banquet of the Virginia commercial club wil be held next Tuesday evening, June 12, at which A. J. Weaver wil give an address. Wives of the members of the club will serve the banquet. A program of music and readings will be given during the evening. It is expected that about 200 will attend the affair.

TEACHERS RETAINED.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., June 9— Miss Esther Gretzinger, who has been teaching in the Steele City schools the past two years, was re-elected this week for another year at an increase in salary. She will attend summer school at Peru. Bernice Gretsinger, a sister, who teaches near Steele City, has also been re-elected for another year at an advance in salary.

PRINCIPAL AT HAIGLER.

(Special to The Star.)

STELLA, Neb., June 9 —Prof. J. M. Boyle is elected principal of the school at Haigler, and he and Mrs. Boyle will go there the last of August. They are now in Lincoln, where Mr. Boyle is attending state university. He was the principal at Stella for two years.

PUT ON PAROLE FOR ONE YEAR

Youth Causing Death In Car Accident Given Sentence.

(Special to The Star)

TECUMSEH, Neb., June 9—Judge Frederick Shepherd of Lincoln today sentenced Raymond Heltzel, found guilty by a jury in the Johnson county District court of manslaughter, growing out of an accident on the highway in which Orville Mathers of Syracuse was killed, to parole labor to a local farmer, Robert McPherrin, for one year.

Heltzel is not to leave the farm at any time except upon duty for his employer or to accompany him to church and can have no company on the farm.

He can drive an automobile or truck on business for his employer for the year, and at the end of that time he is forbidden to operate a motor driven vehicle under any circumstances for two mbre years.

CRETE NOTES

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Neb., June 9—A new 4-H calf club was organized here by Prof. Glack of the state college of agriculture at the Doane Hill Dairy farm. There are fourteen members in the club, who are required to hold six meetings before state fair time. The boys are Albert Hengen, Earl Reeves, Harold Holroyd, Frank Hier, William Rall, Raymond Holroyd, George Nave, John Edzards, Malcolm McMillan, Ewin Edzards, David Speedlin, Joseph Lorenz, Carl Patz and Leonard Rull. The officers are Albert Hengen, president; George Nave, vice president; William Rall, secretary-treasurer. A number of the boys already own calves and all will before the next meeting.

Home grown strawberries are now on the market here and are of fine flavor and good quality.

Mrs. Lydia K. Andrews of Lincoln will give the annual thank offering address for the Woman's Foreign Missionary society at the Methodist church Sunday.

The largest Campfire girls camp will open here at Horkey's park next Tuesday. Over 650 girls have registered with the young people's assembly, which opens about June 16, and with the boys' groups at Camp Strader, there will be a large number of young people here all summer.

Fred Farnbruch and Reinhold Schrein will go as delegates to the national Walther league convention at Milwaukee on July 16 to 19. They will represent this zone, which includes Lincoln, Crete, Walton, Eagle, Pleasant Dale, Malcolm and Kramer.

Mrs. Anna Louise Morford has been elected from William Lewis camp, Spanish war veterans, as delegate to the state convention at Grand Island, June 13 and 14.

WHEAT SPOTTED IN GAGE COUNTY

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., June 9—Wheat fields in some sections of the county are beginning to turn and with favorable weather will be ready to cut about July 1. In some fields the crop is short, having headed out when it was not much more than a foot high, while in others it is waist high and gives promise of a heavy yield. The estimated average over the county will be from 13 to 16 bushels to the acre.

GO TO CONVENTION.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., June 9. —Beatrice will send a number of republicans to the national convention at Kansas City.

Among those who will watch the proceedings of the big meeting are G. W. Steinmever, R. J., and J. M. Kilpatrick, J. S. Elliott and Robert Pease, postmaster. L. H. Laughlin of this city, is a delegate.

ABOUT PEOPLE

One hundred chairs were presented to Capital Lodge No. 1, I. O. O. F., Friday night by Charity Circle No. 1 of Charity lodge No. 2, Degree of Rebekah. This is the second gift of the circle, a suite of lodge furniture having recently been presented. The presentation took place at the meeting at the Odd Fellows hall following a short program. The committee in charge of securing the gift was composed of Julia Welch, past president of the state assembly; Mary E. Stukesbury, past assembly marshall, and District Deputy President Ella Hatch. Folowing presentation of the chairs, cake, coffee and ice cream were served and dancing was enjoyed.

The Capitol school playground opened Tuesday evening and had an attendance of 250 the first week. The opening evening the boys played baseball, the girls, games. Kathryn Dunne was chosen editor and W. Paul sports editor again this year. Margaret May is chairman of the entertainments to be given every Friday night.

Farragut Women's Relief corps met Saturday afternoon inthe Elks hall with President Emmogene Downey presiding. The national treasurer, Josie C. Bennett of Harvard, was a visitor. Announcement was made of the Flag day program to be held Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the red rooms at the Y. M. C. A. and of the kensington to be held Friday at Gooch's mill.

A delegate both to the Methodist church conference and the republican national convention at Kansas City. Harry H. Murphy of Barnesville, O., has been vsiting relatives in Lincoln between meetings. Until Friday when he returned to the convention city he was staying at the homes of his cousins, Mrs. A. B. Gadd, Mrs. E. G. Bourne and Mrs. Charles Wilson.

A baritone recital was given at the Quinn chapel, A. M. E. church, Friday evening by Carl Diton of Philadelphia, president of the National Association of Negro Musicians. Mr. Diton presented Italian, German and Frnech numbers and closed his program with three American spirituals. Mr. Diton who is also an accomplished pianist, organist and composer is completing a tour of the country. Miss Cleopatra Ross, graduate of the school of fine arts at the University of Nebraska, played the piano accompaniment.

The Enumerators will hold a meeting in the east club room of the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening.

Deaths

Mrs. Ethel A. Robb, 52, died at 4:30 Saturday afternoon at a local hospital. Her home was at 1017 South Seventeenth street. She is survived by her husband, Dr. Joy W. Robb; one son, Donald of Lincoln; her father, W. W. Scannon of Auburn, Neb.; one sister, Mrs. Grace Andresen of Auburn; and three brothers, Dr. C. A. Scannon of Beatrice, Harry Scannon of Friend, and Ed Scannon of Concord, Calif. The body is being held at Castle, Roper and Matthews' chapel pending funeral arrangements.

Word has been received in Lincoln of the death of Sadie E. Bowers, the wife of J. S. Bowers, a former Lincoln business man, which occurred Saturday morning at Indianapolis. She had been a resident of Lincoln for thirty-five years, leaving here with her family to drive to Florida last fall. At Indianapolis she was taken ill and has been in a hospital there until the time of her death. She is survived by her husband; one son, Ralph, who accompanied his parents on the trip; and one grandson, Freal Nelson of Lincoln. The body will be brought to Lincoln, arriving Monday morning, and will be taken to Roberts' chapel pending funeral arrangements.

Funeral services for Frank M. Hall, who died at 2:15 Saturday afternoon at his home, 1039 South Eleventh street, will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the First Presbyterian church with Dr. Paul C. Calhoun officiating. Interment will be in Wyuka. The body is at Roberts' chapel.

Funeral services for Prof. George Elliott Howard, who died Saturday morning at his home, will be held at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon at Roberts' chapel. The body will be taken to Omaha for cremation.

Funeral services for Gade Gilmore Maddy, who died early Saturday morning, will be held at 2:30 Monday afternoon at the Christian church at Bennet with Rev. Herbert Swearingen officiating. M. W. A. lodge No. 1276 will be in charge of services at the grave in the Bennet cemetery. The body will be at Castle, Roper and Matthews' chapel until 1 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Funeral services for Clarence C. Pointer, who died Thursday evening at a local hospital, will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Spain and Schnel's chape with Rev. W. W. Robinson officiating. The body will be taken to Bellvile, Kas., for further services and interment.

Funeral services for Ernestine Gadke, who died Thursday morning, will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. R. Waln, with Rev. A. Matzner officiating. Interment will be in the Lincoln Memorial Park cemetery. The body is at Wadlow's chapel.

Funeral services for Harry W. Adams, who died Wednesday evening, will be held at 2:30 Sunday afternoon at the Bethlehem church, eight miles northeast of Havelock, with Rev. J. O. Lonnquist officiating. Interment in the Bethlehem cemetery. The body is at Wadlow's chapel.

Funeral services for John Reiter, who died at Denver, will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Hodgman's chapel. W. J. N. Robertson, junior vice-commander of Charles A. Fraley post No. 1450, V. F. W., will be in charge. Military services wil be held at the grave in Wyuka. Members of Charles A. Fraley post and members of the auxiliary are requested to meet at the post headquarters at 1:30 Sunday afternoon to attend the services in a body.

The body of Mrs. Carrie Larson, who died Friday afternoon, is being held at Hodgman's chapel pending funeral arrangements.

The body of William P. Houston, who died Thursday morning at a local hospital, is being held at Morey's chapel pending funeral arrangements.

EARLY RESCUE OF ITALIA CREW NOW EXPECTED

Floe Not Stationary.

An exchange Telegraph dispach from Copenhagen said that the startling news had been received there from Kings Bay that the floe upon which the Nobile party landed was not stationary, but was drifting with the polar currents.

This telegram quoted the commander of the Citta di Milano as saying he had re-established communication with the Nobile party by wireless at 11 o'clock this morning. At that time General Nobile gave their position as 80 degrees and 15 minutes north, and 22 degrees east. At 8:30 last night the position of the Nobile party had been given as 81 degrees north and 25 to 30 degrees east.

It was held to be posible, however, that a mistake had been made in the calculations.

A Central News dispatch from Kings Bay said that the Italia, which was caught in a terrific gale, was torn to pieces after the crew and the explorers had escaped. It is assumed that the wireless apparatus and the supplies on board the Italia, including the navigation instruments, were removed from the balloon before it was battered to ribbons.

Confirmation Received.

There had been some doubt whether the messages picked up by the Citta di Milano and the station at Kings Bay really emanated from the Italia. The commander of the supply ship asked confirmation and the wireless operator with the Nobile party forwarded certain signals to prove the authenticity of the messages.

Advices from Kings Bay tonight said that there was wild rejoicing among the members of the Italia's crew who remained at that place when the Italia set out for the North Pole on May 23. Among those who remained behind was General Nobile's brother. He never lost hope and even after a fortnight had dragged by he was confident that the party would be found safe and sound.

RIVAL FORCES AT K. C. AWAIT MELLON'S MOVE

mick, the feminine Foch of the allied group, to assert with great positiveness:

"Herbert Hoover is stopped. He is finally and definitely stopped. One of the best indications of that is the fact that his own men are now starting to talk of Coolidge."

This Pennsylvania talk worried the Hoover managers more than anything that has happened since the republicans first began to drift into Kansas City. Ever since Secretary Mellon stated in Philadelphia several weeks ago that of all the candiates who have presented themselves Hoover comes nearest to the Coolidge pattern, the hard working managers of Mr. Hoover have counted seventy-nine votes from Pennsylvania in their column.

They were burning up the wires between Kansas City and Washington and Kansas City and Pittsburgh tonight seeking denial of the Watson claim.

Hoover Needs Mellon's Aid.

It is mathematically possible, of course, for Hoover to be nominated without a single vote from Pennsylvania. But it is exceedingly unlikely. For one thing, the votes themselves are arithmetically needed; for another, the tremendous moral influence and support of Mr. Mellon is very necessary.

The Hoover managers can count up to 450 votes without any from Pennsylvania and New York. Beyond that they cannot go—at least, to any convincing degree. New York offers them only twenty-six or twenty-eight votes. Pennsylvania's seventy-nine are vital if Hoover is to cross the 545 nominating mark on the second ballot.

George K. Morris, the New York Chairman, arrived today with word that "New York will give Coolidge sixty votes on the first ballot unless he stops us." He added that New York would also give Mr. Coolidge sixty votes on the second ballot and each succeeding ballot "unless he stops us." It might be noted that thus far Mr. Coolidge has not issued any orders against it.

I'm in favor", went on Morris, "of the movement that is under way to go right ahead with the nomintaion of Calvin Coolidge. He has never said he would not take the nomination. After all, the republican party has done a good deal for him, and I do not believe he is a man without gratitude. The president doesn't have any trouble making himself understood when he wants to be understood and he never has said he would not run.

"But, if he won't take the nomination after it is given him then there is only one thing left to do—nominate Hoover. Certainly the republican party cannot nominate a man who would be regarded as a repudiation of the Coolidge administration, and that goes for Dawes and Lowden."

This statement from the New York leader both alarmed and cheered the Hoover managers. After all, they don't really know whether Mr. Coolidge would turn down a nomination if it were offered him. He has never said he would and some of them are afraid he wouldn't But most of them are confident that he is "unavailable" and for that reason they extracted considerable satisfaction out of the New Yorker's assertion that it must be Hoover after Coolidge.

The statement from the New York chairman made it certain that Coolidge will receive some 150 votes on the first ballot, maybe more. Lowden has approximately 230, and there are enough scattered among the favorite sons, Watson, Curtis, Goff, Norris, Borah, et al, to constitute a blockading majority unless Mr. Coolidge eliminates himself. Moreover, there are among the Hoover delegates a group of perhaps 150 that the professional politicians describe as "fluids". That is they are for Hoover so long as it appears Hoover is to be a winner, but if he isn't a winner in three ballots they may become exceedingly nervous and transitory. The black and tan delegates from the south, many of whom are federal office holders, are included in this group. Their political and business existence depend upon their ability to ride with a winner.

Governor Lowden came into Kansas City today like a prairie cyclone Within two hours after he was off the train he addressed the assembled press of the country and declared the issue of farm relief was the biggest thing confronting the party. It is even more paramount, he said, than any candidacy, including his own.

"Unless the republican party is prepared to meet fully and squarely the demand for agricultural equality with industry, I don't want the nomination," he declared.

"If this convention will meet this problem squarely, both in platform and candidates, then I am perfectly willing to go back to my farm happy, irrespective of whether I am the nominee or not."

The corn belt candidate did considerable fencing with his newspaper questioners. They asked him whether the renominations of Mr. Coolidge would be regarded as a rejection of the farmers' demands by this convention. After considerable delay and sparring he replied that he would not so regard it, irrespective of the fact that Mr. Coolidge vetoed the McNary-Haugen bill in blistering terms.

Says Not Fair Question.

The same question was asked using Hoover's name instead of Coolidge's.

"That," said Governor Lowden, "Is not a fair question."

Lowden made it clear that he is willing to stand or fall on the agricultural issue. He is for the equalization fee, lock, stock and barrel, and he intends, he said, to fight for its inclusion in the platform, that insures a pretty fight.

mained on the board for six years, serving one year as president. He was a member of the Nebraska State Bar association being president of the organization in 1917.

Mr. Hall was always intensely interested in civic improvement. He was chairman of the committee in charge of erecting the bronze statue of Abraham Lincoln, by Daniel Chester, on the state capitol grounds. He was also head of the group which erected the Temple building in connection with the University of Nebraska. He was a member of the University club and of the chamber of commerce. He also was a thirty-third degree Mason.

Art Association President.

The history of the Nebraska Art association is vitally connected with Mr. Hall's passion for art. When the Hayden art club, the forerunner of the Nebraska Art association, was organized at the home of Sarah Moore on May 28, 1888, Mr. and Mrs. Hall were among the charter members. Both were very active in the organization and also in the later Nebraska Art association which was formed in March 1900.

Mr. Hall served as president of the latter organization each year from 1900 to 1905 and again for the last three or four years of his life. One of the outstanding art exhibits to be sponsored by the Nebraska Art association was that which was on display from December 26, 1900 to January 16, 1901. Due to the efforts of Mr. Hall sixty paintings were brought to Lincoln directly from Paris, as well as sixty of the outstanding works of the best American artists.

Mr. Hall had been a trustee of the First Presbyterian church for the past forty years. He was a member of the committee that selected Dr. Paul C. Calhoun, the present pastor, being one of the men who found Dr. Calhoun at Council Bluffs after Mr. Hall had spent considerable time visiting and listening to clergymen in Chicago, Kansas City and several eastern points.

Church Monument To Hall.

He was a member of the building committee of the new church since its organization in 1925.

"The First Presbyterian church structure is a monument to Frank M. Hall in a good many ways," according to E. J. Faulkner.

"He insisted upon having Ralph Adams Cram, the greatest Gothic architect in America today, design the edifice and went to Boston to secure his services for the church. He wanted the structure to be a masterpiece and it is today as he desired it except for the tower. It was a disappointment to him that the church was unable to build the tower, not only because of the inspiration such architectural construction gave him, but for what it might give others. He had hoped to build the tower later.

"Mr. Hall inspired others who were working for the church. He was a good executive, always listening to what others had to say. His opinions were concisely stated and inspired others to continue with the work.

"He went into the building of the church heart and soul. His sense of the artistic was a real aid in determining decorations and furnishings of the building. He also was instrumental in erecting a better and more complete church for the money available than the committee had hoped."

(4 p. m. Saturday, Pacific coast time).

At the last minute Navigator Harry Lyon and Radio Operator James Warner, American members of the gallant crew, were prevailed upon to make the last stretch, a 500 mile hop over Australia soil to the final goal, Sydney. They had demurred previously, saying the reception in Sydney was planned for Australians and they did not wish to intrude.

To the lusty cheers of the thousands who had crowded the airdrome hours before the scheduled starting time, were added shouted words of commendation for the sportsmanship of Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and Charles T. P. Ulm for insisting their companions on the hazardous over-water flight of 7,300 miles should share in the final glory.

Crowd Increases.

The crowd increased as minute by minute the flight was delayed.

Since their landing at 10:15 yesterday (4:10 p. m., Friday, Pacific coast standard time) the city has been in a festive mood.

A holiday spirit pervaded the downtown district, breaking the usual Sabbath quiet. The names of the gallant Australians and their American companions were called again and again as the populace retold each other the now familiar tale of the successful conquest of the Pacific ocean.

In special editions newspapers proclaimed the flight as the most important move in years to strengthen the ties of political, social and economic relations of the two continents.

Awaited at Sydney.

SYDNEY, June 9—(UP)— When the Southern Cross lands in the midst of an enthusiastic throng here late today, Sydney will greet all four of the valiant airmen who blazed the air lane from the United States to Australia.

A last minute message from Brisbane announced Radio Operator James Warner and Navigator Harry Lyon have been prevailed upon to continue the flight through to its final destination.

The Americans had previously announced they would not accompany Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and Charles T. P. Ulm on the trip to Sydney. A message was received early today from the Americans saying they "had no intentions of offending the good folk of Sydney", and promising they would follow their companions either by boat or train within a few days.

Australian sportsmanship insisted they should continue to the final welcome. Newspaper comment was strongly in favor of their going on.

Just before the flight was scheduled to start Lyon and Warner finally agreed

Sidelights Of The K.C. Convention

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9—(I. N. S.)—This enterprising city of 400,000 is all dolled up—and pepped up—tonight, as it joyously goes about the business of extending a real western welcome to the hordes of delegates pouring into Kansas City from all parts of the nation to attend the republican national convention which opens next Tuesday.

Kansas City knows how to do it. They've had one other big national convention, in 1900, when William Jennings Bryan was nominated on his famous "16 to 1" platform.

The streets are ablaze with color, old Glory flying from almost every building. Bunting, Streamers, candidates' pictures, "Welcome G. O. P." signs—all these contribute to the mass effect and the impression Kansas City is intent upon making on the visitors.

From far-of Hawaii came five delegates this evening, California, with its Hoover enthusiasm, arrived this morning. New York, Maine, Pennsylvania, Oregon, Florida, Georgia, New Mexico—these and the others will be here by Monday.

Convention hall is ready for the big doings. Its 12,800 seats are in place. Decorations have been hung, and state flags and emblems placed. The wires of the press associations and the newspapers have been cut in close to the speaker's platform. Radio apparatus has been installed. Off to one side are scores of wires run in by the two big telegraph companies.

The platform is on the side, in the center of the building, and faces the east—a huge pine deck, raised six feet above the floor. On it, are oak chairs and pine tables. At the front and center is a small projecting platform 8 feet by 10 feet. Here the speakers will stand. A many-second microphone will carry the voices to the amplifiers above so every one may hear. Directly across from the platform is suspended from the roof a temporary gallery for photographers.

On the theory that some of the visitors might enjoy an occasional drink, bootleggers were observed by this correspondent skirting about hotel lobbies and rooms interveiwing prospects in low whispers and passing out cards with mysterious messages written across them.

The federal government, however, wielded a bludgeon upon the heads of the bootleggers today. No less than forty-six temporary injunctions against liquor selling were handed down by Judge Albert L. Reeves. They were directed against hooch selling at drug stores, soft dring parlors, barbecue stands and private homes. A call has been sent out for seventy additional prohibition agents and forty-five more injunctions are to be issued Monday!

"72" the greatest fact in motor cars today

From low Price to high, all engineering today takes its cue from Chrysler—yet what are the facts?

Run the gamut of cars, from low to high, which seeks to emulate Chrysler—and still the Illustrious Chrysler "72" runs easily away from them all with all the honors of flashing, efficient performance!

However much they seek to act like Chrysler "72"—to ride and drive and accelerate and glide like Chrysler "72"—the Illustrious "72" continues to leave them all in the rear in brilliant behavior.

There is no escaping this plain fact—that as motor car manufacturing exists today, anyone who pays as much as, or up to a thousand dollars more than the price of Chrysler "72," for another car unmistakably gets less. That is the one great important fact in motor car buying today.

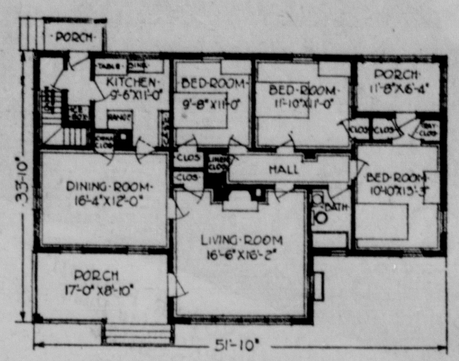
Practical in Design and Good Anywhere

THE TALLASSEE—DESIGN A626

BUNGALOWS appeal to housewives largely because of the fact that they are step savers, the rooms all being upon one floor with no stairs to climb in reaching them. Usually they are conveniently arranged, made easy of access from the one to the other, and there are no cut-up and slanting ceilings, such as are frequently encountered in some of the popular types of cottages.

No other type of home offers such an endless variety of treatments. Bungalows differ in style according to the section in which they built. The one which is desirable in California is entirely impractical in New England, where winters are cold and long. California bungalows have no heating plans, no basements and usually the walls are lightly built.

There is a type of bungalow, however, which might be termed, for want of a better classification, the general utility sort, which is good in nearly every section. The walls are of common brick, eight inches in thickness usually, although it may be built in some sections only four inches thick, with roof of clay tile or asbestos shingles, to increase its safety from fire.



This one is of that type, the brick being laid in Flemish bond, the one bond of them all which makes for the most substantial wall. It has basement and heating plant and all the usual equipment, conveniently arranged. A comfortable living porch and an appealing inclosed sun room. It is long and low and cozy, seeming to have just grown out of the ground where it stands.

Every room is large and well lighted. It will always be cheerful. Living and dining rooms are large. The kitchen just large enough. There are three bed rooms and a bath. All the average family needs.

The Common Brick Manufacturers' Association, Cleveland, Ohio, can furnish complete drawings for this design. Leaflet on brick construction sent upon request.

The house built of Yankee Hill Brick always says, "worthwhile folks live here."

Links Down York's Dukes In Dazzler On Diamond

Cholcher's Single Ends Battle in 12th

Big Bam Crashes Liner to Left Field And Only Run of Brilliant Game Trickles Over Home Plate.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

A pastiming duel quite as gloriously delightful as ever was staged upon the greensward of anybody's ball yard—a veritable epic from the first pitch until the game-deciding run trickled over the home platter—was served to Nebraska league patrons Saturday afternoon at Landis Field.

York's Dukes and Lincoln's Links were deadlocked for eleven innings in a scoreless fray, but in the twelfth frame the Links broke through with the winning marker, dropping the curtain on the most thrilling diamond drama of the season at the local park.

Otto the Big Bam.

Catcher Otto Cholcher, the big Bambino of the Lincoln lineup, punched the base hit which brought home the bacon. Pitcher Cliff Spickerman was perched on the second sack in the twelfth when Otto whammed a line single to left, whereupon Spick rounded third and sped to the plate well in advance of the outfielder's heave.

The battle was a sparkler in every department, being featured by brilliant pitching by Spickerman and his slabbing rival, Schanke, and punctuated by a dazzling defensive on the part of both aggregations.

Browne and Nadler.

Manager Browne, at short for the Links, and Nadler, covering the keystone cushion for the Dukes, were in fancy fettle, the manager handling an even dozen fielding opportunities without a skip and Nadler accounting for eleven. A shoe-string catch by Don Riley in the left garden gave the proceedings an extra touch, while Baltzell was present with a scintillating catch in deep right.

Herman Cholcher also was in the picture with a stunning display at the first corner, as was Harry, guardian of the initial sack for the Dukes.

Outstanding Pitching.

But the pitching easily was the outstanding achievement of the afternoon. Schanke, though frequently in danger, was equal to every crisis until the Links broke through in the twelfth frame, while Spickerman hurled effectively and superbly in every inning. The Norton, Kas., graduate had the Dukes completely under his thumb. Two of their four hits were flukish and during the 12 rounds only three York runners advanced along the paths as far as the second sack, while not one of the Dukes cultivated the acquaintance of third.

Baltzell Out at Plate.

The Links threatened in the sixth, the ninth and the tenth, shoving runners around to third but lacking the punch to hammer Schanke's fast-breaking curve for the needed blow. Schanke's danger was acute in the tenth, when he issued three free trips to first, but Nadler's dazzling throw to the plate headed off Baltzell and prolonged the struggle.

The twelfth opened auspiciously for the Links, when Spickerman pried off the lid with a clean single to right. Davison, up to sacrifice, popped to Schanke and Browne hoisted to Brockhorn in left.

Then Comes Otto.

The strain was telling on the husky York pitcher and Don Riley, playing the string, worked his way to first on a free pass. On the

CARDS BACK IN THIRD POSITION

Giants Run Wild In Second Frame To Win Game.

NEW YORK, June 9—(I. N. S.)—Continuing their game of leap-frog with the Cardinals, the Giants jumped back into second place today by trimming the Cards, 8 to 3. The Giant win divided the series evenly and made it twice in four days that the locals have taken second place back from the Cards. Score:

TORO VICTOR IN CHICAGO DERBY

Throng of 50,000 Looks On As McLean Colt Flashes Ahead.

ARLINGTON, PARK, Ill., June 9—(I. N. S.)—Toro, Edward B. McLean's great three-year-old son of the Porter, won the American derby today. Misstep, the favorite, was second and Solace was third. Stroling Player finished fourth. The winner was ridden by Eddie Ambrose.

Misstep and Irish Pal set the pace and the early speed of Irish Pal forced Misstep to such a pace that he weakened in the final drive. Toro was kept under restraint behind the leaders until straightened out for home, when he came with a great rush and was going away at the end. The time was 2:05 4-5.

The derby was the climax of a fine day of sport that attracted 50,000 spectators, the greatest crowd that has witnessed a race in the Chicago district since Boundless, with Snapper Garrison up, won the rich classic in 1896 during the World's fair. Toro paid $15.44.

Belmont Won by Outider.

BELMONT RACE TRACK, New York, June 9—(U. P.)—One of the mots sensational turf upsets of the season was scored here today when J. H. Cosden's Vito, a 10 to one shot, captured the rich Belmont Stakes before a record crowd of 35,000, defeating Harry Payne Whitney's highly favored Victorian. Vito won by three lengths from Gifford Cochrane's Genie, with the Wheatly stable's Diavolo third.

BROWNS MOVE UP TO THIRD PLACE

St. Louis Trims Mack's Team; Passes Indians In Flag Chase.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 9—(I. N. S.)—After being held hitless by Southpaw Walberg for five innings the Browns put on a storm in the sixth inning when they scored five runs to take the lead. Miller's homer tied up the game in the first of the eighth, but two runs in the last half of the frame gave Howley's club a 7 to 5 victory and third place in the American league race. The Indians dropped to fourth place when they lost to the Yankees. The score:

Retires as 'Big Ten' Coach.

The decision of Dr. John W. Wilce to resign as football coach at Ohio State university after the 1928 season, leaves but two of the real veteran coaches in the Western conference, Alonzo Stagg of Chicago and Robert Zuppke of Illinois. Stagg is the oldest, with Wilce and Zuppke next, both coming in 1913.

When Wilce steps out next fall he will have ended a career of 16 years as coach at Ohio State. In the past years he has won three conference titles and finished in the runner-up position an equal umber of times. A number of All-American stars were developed under his guidance most famous of which are Chick Harley, Pete Stinchcomb, Ed Hess and Leo Raskowski.

Wilce went to Ohio State from the University of Wisconsin, where he was graduated. He led the Buckeyes to their first championship, in 1913. In recent years he was severely criticised by the alumni and fans for the failure of the team to make a better showing. Some demanded his resignation. But Wilce, sticking it out, as he did, proves that he is not one to quit under fire.

He plans to devote his entire attention to the practice of medicine and teaching upon his resignation.

The passing of Wilce marks the departure from the football fields of the second of the four old wizards of the Western conference. Fielding H. Yost, the mentor of Michigan, quit as active football coach of the Wolverines last fall. With Wilce soon out of the picture only Zuppke and Stagg will remain.

These four—Wilce, Yost, Zuppke and Stagg—have dominated "Big Ten" football fortunes for many years. Theirs were the great teams of the middle west and they themselves ehe kings of coaches.

During the past winter, University of Nebraska authorities sounded out Dr. Wilce on the subject of serving the Cornhusker institution as curator of athletics and physical education, his term of service to begin when the regents shall have made provision for a "bigger athletics" program. Recent approval by the regents of the proposed plan makes it possible that the Cornhusker authorities may renew the negotiations with the present Ohio mentor, who is to step down and out at Columbus after the 1928 school year.

JONES HOMERS TO SMASH TIE

Fairbury's Third-Sacker Hits for Circuit and Beats Buffaloes.

FAIRBURY, Neb., June 9—Jones, Fairbury's third baseman, broke up a pitchers' battle here today by hitting a home run in the ninth inning with nobody on and none out with the score tied at 4 to 4, to win, 5 to 4, from North Platte. VanFlee pitched well until the seventh, when he walked two men. Edwards relieved him and blanked the Buffaloes, but North Platte reached him for three runs in the eighth and ninth. Gleason pitched a good game for North Platte, but Fairbury bunched three hits in the eighth for two runs. Both teams fielded without a miss. The score:

Hornsby's Tribe In Twin Defeat

BOSTON, June 9— I. N. S.)—The Pittsburgh Pirates took both games of a doubleheader here this afternoon when they won a nightcap from the Boston Braves by a score of 6 to 3. The Bucs had won the opener, 6 to 2.

The second was totally devoid of homers, five being clouted in the first game. The Pirates broke Roger Hornsby's home run streak. The "Rajah" had hit five home runs in five consecutive days. He hit his eleventh home run today which left him, at least temporarily, in possession of the honors of the National league. Score:

Fistic Plums Passed Out to Friends of Commish

Gotham's Glove Czars Face Charge Showing Favors to Their Pets

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, June 9—Plaintive shrieks are piercing and disturbing the ozone which embraces the prize rings of New York.

Wailing and moaning is not a new thing in the fight racket, but this time the voices are not those of fighters, managers and the sucker public.

The referees and judges, those without a so-called "pull," are camped on the mourners' benches and sobbing aloud.

It seems, according to some of the ignored officials, that if you haven't a "friend in court," the pickings are very small indeed.

Plan Fails to Function.

Favoritism of the rankest kind is alleged by those disgruntled officials. They insist that only those who have the "right track" get the fancy salaried jobs, while the re-decreeing and judging at the small-paying clubs is their only portion.

The commission, according to its original plans, works its referees and judges on what might be termed an equitable plan; it assigns all its officials in rotation to the big championship battles, where the wages paid are infinitely higher than is doled out by the smaller clubs.

But that plan, say the unhappy ones, apparently has been overlooked.

Case of Magnolia.

Some officials repeat at big bouts, while others get nothing but an occasional job at a small club—or no job at all.

For instance:

Louis Magnolia, who is rated as one of the best referees in the city, was assigned the job of referee in three championship fights—all in one week. That meant three healthy cash pickups for Magnolia, while all the other referees sat around and mused over the unkind wallops of fate—or something like that.

Two Big Shots In Week.

In one week the commission assigned the following judges to two big shots each:

Flynn, Mathison, Kelly, Barnes and Patrick.

That may not mean anything to you, but it means plenty in the lives of the small army of judges who got no work at all.

Why were those five favored twice in one week while some others never got a chance? It's hard to say. But one bloke, in an open squawk, explained it like this:

Explaining the "Pull."

"Flynn is Farley's brother-in-law."

"Kelly is an intimate friend of Farley's."

"Patrick is a pal of one of the members of the commission."

"Barnes has political affiliations."

"Mathison, almost as old a man as Billy Muldoon, the other member of the commission, has been Muldoon's friend and newspapers booster for many years."

If this favoritism be true, as Barkis said, the boys seem to have cause for a squawk, for it's a tough racket at best, this judging and refereeing.

BRITON PLANS TRY AT RECORD

Campbell Coming Over to Seek Speed Mark On Florida Sands.

BY J. C. OESTREICHER.

LONDON, June 9—(I. N. S.)—Because it would involve too great a risk to life, the Royal Automobile club has banned the proposed attempt of Capt. Malcolm Campbell to regain the world's automobile speed record oh the sands of Pendine, Carmarthenshire, Wales.

In consequence of this action, Captain Campbell has decided to return to America for the attempt. He is determined to make every effort to win back the record which Ray Kreeeh, the American racing driver, took away from him at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Captain Campbell was bitterly disappointed at the action of the club.

Campbell Determined.

"There are risks to life in all these attempts," he said. "If I like to take the risk, I do not see why the R. A. C. should stop me. Now I shall have to go abroad, which means additional expense and trouble. However, at all costs, I intend to get the record back."

In announcing its decision, the R. A. C. stated the following grounds for its refusal.

"The Pendine sands are unsafe for the speeds now reached by cars attempting world's records for the mile and kilometer. The stretch available—seven miles—does not give room for acceleration, or for a car to pull up with safety when the mile is completed. The sands will not be safe until cars are designed to acelerate and stop more quickly."

Decision Is Final.

The Pendine sands have already claimed one life—that of Parry Thomas, one of the greatest British racing drivers, who was killed in March, 1927. Signor Forresti, the Italian, attempting the same record, narrowly escaped death when his ca skidded and overturned.

The sands vary in condition from day to day and are exceedingly treacherous.

The pronouncement of the R. A. C. is final, for no international record in this country is valid unless electrically timed by one of the club's representatives.

TEX SUDDENLY DISCOVERS TOM

Rickard Slow to Decide Heeney Worth While In Ring Racket.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, June 9—(I. N. S.)—It is pleasing to learn that Tex Rickard looks upon Tom Heeney as such an eligible challenger for the heavyweight championship in July because the time was not so far distant when Rickard took Heeney for an order of boloney and, in the circumstances, he would hate to have an impression like that confirmed. They say Tex is never wrong; so naturally there is nothing to worry about. Heeney must be a great fighter. Even Tex says so. He is awfully difficult to please on a matter of this kind.

Tex Converted.

Rickard's sudden "conversion" to the Heeney cause this spring was, of course, only one of the remarkable story. They couldn't get Rickard to walk across the street to look at Heeney only one year ago. Tex, at the time, was bizz-bazzing with the boys in the front office. He was too smart to walk across the street to look at the New Zealander.

"I awsked him to give the lad a look," John Mortimer complained almost teafully at the time. "All I awsk is that he look at Tawm in his 'tries'."

But Tex didn't want to see Heeney in his "tries," probably being under the impression that the latter had something to do with the young man's apparel. It was Jess McMahon, in fact, who finally dropped around to the St. Nicholas rink to see what it was all about. His visit led to another interesting sidelight on the situation at that time.

The Heeney board of management had askd Tommy Loughran to "work" with Tom the day before and Loughran had given him the veneering of his life. Midway through the second round, Heeney dropped his hands, braced himself in a corner of the ring and declined to be a party to the further proceedings.

"I'm all befuddled," he is alleged to have observed with some degree of abstraction. "Let me go to my corner."

To Go Easier.

Loughran much disturbed that he made Charley Harvey's specimen look like a tramp, promised to "go easier" with him the next day. Loughran was a little behind his scheduled appearance the next afternoon and Heeney was waiting for him in full ring costume.

He was hastening toward the ring when overtaken by Harvey, who was trying to be forceful and confidential at the same time.

"Don't go in there, Tommy," he said. "I know we asked you to do it, but we don't want you in there with him today. Jess McMahon is here to look him over and we don't want him mussed up."

The upshot of the matter was that Heeney got on in a Garden preliminary a few nights later. He won on a technical knockout over Charley Anderson, the first-class fifth-rater, and the riot was on.

I don't know whether Rickard decided that night that Heeney was a great fighter. Maybe it was later. However, I wouldn't say that he never decided the matter at all, for, in that case, he would be fooling himself badly now and I know Tex would be right miffed at himself if he ever found out about it.

GREW UP IN RING.

Jimmy McLarnin, western lightweight, literally grew up in ring togs, having been the possessor of four amateur boxing medals before he was 15 years old.

Baseball Averages.

American League.

Atop the list of American league hitters this week, the fans find the name of Goslin, outfielder of the Washington club. He comes to the fore with a batting average of .420, according to the latest averages, a figure acquired in 30 games. He has made 34 hits in 81 times at bat and six of his hits have been home runs. Young Mr. Foxx, catcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, is second with .417, but he has been in only 19 games.

In point of service—43 games—Shortstop Kress of the St. Louis Browns still has a noteworthy mark of .370, but this figure represents a drop of 14 points in the week. His closest rival is Outfielder Fothergill of Detroit, who has climbed to .363 in 38 games. First Baseman Fonseca of Cleveland and Outfielder Barnes of Washington, who threatened Kress a week ago, both lost ground and are now tied with .342.

In fact, this is a triple tie, the third member being Babe Ruth. The Yankee slugger lost 17 points in the week. He got one home run making his total 19. Gehrig also got one homer making 11 and he made his batting average .353, a loss of 6 points.

Ty Cobb Registers Gain.

Ty Cobb checked his slump. The veteran aded five points to his average making it .314. His teamate on the Athletics, Tris Speaker went the other way and dropped to .272. He fell behind Harry Hielmann batting ace of other years who is still hitting .279.

There is no chasing the Yankees out of the leadership in team hitting .313, a loss of only one point in the week. The Cleveland Indians are a weak second with .288. The Athletics are third, three points behind. The Athletics also threaten the lead of the Boston Red Sox in team fielding. They are only two points apart, The Red Sox leading with .977.

Young Mr. Grant of the Cleveland club is now tied with the veteran Coveleskie of the Yankees for the pitching leadership. Each has won four games without a defeat. Grant added a victory to his string in the past week, while Coveleskie was at a standstill. However, the tie existing between Pipgrass and Pennock of the Yankees is much more impressive. Each has won nine games and lost one. American league statistics follow:

National League.

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Boston Braves, is showing the rest of the National league how to bat and keep it up. The recognized batting leader of the older circuit added 21 points to his average in the past week, according to the latest averages. This almost maintained his streak of a week ago, when he climbed nearly 50 points.

Hornsby still leads all the regulars. Outfielder Callaghan of Cincinnati is still tied with him at the .418 mark, but Callaghan has been in 11 less games. Hornsby has made 61 hits in 146 times at bat. In the past week he went to bat 15 times and made nine hits. He added four doubles and two home runs to his score. His 16 doubles and eight homers make quite a mark to shoot at.

There are four batters ahead of Hornsby on the list, but none of them has seen much service. First Baseman Grantham of the Pirates has not had a chance to better his .384 average and Catcher Picinich of Cincinnati is crowding him with .389 acquired in 33 games. Outfielder Ott of the Giants lost seven more points in the past week. This gave Outfielder Douthit of St. Louis a chance to climb ahead of him with average of .372. Douthit has made 77 hits in 297 times at bat and has hit for exactly 100 total bases.

Paul Waner Slumps.

Outfielder Paul Waner of Pittsburgh dropped a little more in the week. He is now hitting .358 Brother Lloyd is hitting .323. Forty-seven players are hitting .300 and better. Five are in the .400 class and two pitchers, Dawson of Pittsburgh and Haid of St. Louis, are hitting exactly .500.

The Pirates did some hitting as a club in the week. They added four points to their team average, making in .297 to lead the league. The Cardinals are a good second with .292. Cincinnati is tied with the Giants for third place with .284, although the latter team gained five points in the week. Fielding honors are shared by Cincinnati and Chicago, the Reds and Cubs leading the league with .975. The Cardinals are third with .971.

Ten pitchers remain in the unbeaten class and Sheriff Blake of the Cubs is no longer on the list. He lost a game in the week. Clark of Brooklyn now surpasses him with six victories and one defeat. Haid of St. Louis and Donohue of Cincinnati have won two and lost none each.

Here and There In BASEBALL

Eleven Birmingham players are hitting .300 or better and their team average is .333.

A slump hit "Tilly" Walker, former big league outfielder, in the South Atlantic association last week, and he dropped 0 points in batting.

First basemen are doing the hitting in the Mississippi Valley league. Andrews of Marshalltown is hitting .454 and Hendee of Rock Island is second with .410.

Big league scouts have been told about Outfielder Layden of the Canton club in the Central league. He is increasing his batting average weekly and it is now .422.

Who said his tribulations would hurt Raish Hornsby's batting? He made three homers, three doubles and two singles in 15 times at bat last week.

Bigelow of Birmingham has a musical sound and the Southern association outfielder hti a shade under .500 last week, which was music to the ears of the management.

Starting his fifth big yearue year, Jimmy Foxx, Athletics' star catcher, is now hitting .412. Not bad for a lad of 20.

Lou Gehrig has passed Babe Ruth in batting but he is still shy several home runs.

Infielder Strip of the Columbus club runs to sevens. He has hit 7 triples, 7 homers, 7 sacrifices, stolen 7 bases and is batting .437 for the cellar American associatfon club.

GRAHAM-PAIGE HAS BIRTHDAY

Year Ago New Car Conceived; 30,000 Produced In 5 Months.

Graham-Paige dealers everywhere are celebrating the first anniversary of the three Graham brothers' entry into the passenger car field. The Grahams acquired ownership control of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car company on June 10, 1927; on January 7, this year, they presented the first passenger car to bear their name, and the company became the Graham-Paige Motors corporation.

Since January 7, the Grahams have written another chapter in motor car history, for under their guidance car sales have already become virtually three times as great as in 1927, and every record for production and shipping in the 18 years' history of the factory has been shattered by the new line. In the first five months of last year, production was 10,665 cars; this year, under the Graham management, the production passed the 30,000 mark on June 1, less than five months after the introduction of the new cars.

On the accepted theory that the general public is always interested in success, every Graham-Paige dealer in the United States and Canada is inviting motorists to visit his salesroom; and to make clear the reasons for the quick rise of the Graham-Paige in popular favor, the dealers are making anniversary demonstrations this week. J. C. Higgins of Lord Auto Co., 1644 O street, who represents the Graham-Paige here, is enthusiastic over the success of the new line of cars, and wants to show everybody the advantages of the four-speed transmission.

"Undoubtedly, all those who have actually experienced the difference in motoring that results from the internal-gear four-speed transmission, have readily accepted it as a great advance in automotive construction," said Mr. Higgins. "On the other hand, those who have not had this experience cannot appreciate the value of the new-type transmission, because nothing else has ever given the advantage of having two high-gear drives."

AUTO NOTES

How Rear Axle Is Strained.

The most severe strain that can be placed on the rear axle or driving gear is to try to get out of a mud hole by backing up a little and then plunging forward in low gear.

An Efficient Radiator.

The front of a radiator should be free from dirt, license plates and signs. Also, the back of the radiator should be unobstructed so that nothing will impede the circulation o fair.

Steering Knuckle Play.

Play in the steering knuckle, due to a worn kingpin or knuckle yoke, may be taken up by reboring the yoke and fitting bushings. Much front wheel wobbling is caused by looseness in this joint.

Causes of Unsatisfactory Brake Linings.

Driving abuses, drum scoring, grease or oil on the lining, too limited braking area, excessive and unnecessary generation of heat, are the various causes of failure of brake linings to wear satisfactorily.

Warped Cylinder Blocks.

Cylinder blocks and heads are frequently warped. Clearance at the valve stems should be made the final adjustment after tightening down all bolts, thus avoiding the difficulties of valve being off their seats.

Properly adjusted headlights are of vital importance to safety in night driving.

It is dangerous to take a chance in traffic and at crossings when the engine is cold. Power is necessary in an emergency and an engnie that is not warmed up has a habit of stalling.

PACKARD
—the safest place to buy a used car
All Makes ~ All Prices ~ Easy Terms

EVERY Packard dealer is, in a degree, the custodian of the priceless reputation which the Packard Company has built up over 28 years.

In selling you a used car we dare not risk this reputation. It is the most valuable asset the Company possesses.

So when you buy a used car from us—whether it be a Packard or some other make, whether it be priced at $500 or $2,500—you may do so in full confidence that you will get your money's worth. The car will be exactly as represented.

That is an important point to consider in buying any used car. In buying a new car you can rely on the name of the maker. But when you buy a used car you must depend upon the judgment and business standing of the dealer from whom you buy it.

Seek out a strong and reliable dealer when you invest in a used car. Packard dealers would not be Packard dealers if they were not strong and reliable.

We allow a fair price for used cars—and we sell them at a fair price.

CONOCO Ethyl Gasoline stands head and shoulders above all other motor fuels in this market. True, it has its imitators. Jogging along behind every outstanding product are the "Me Toos" and the "Just as Goods." But in the final analysis, Conoco Ethyl Gasoline sets the standard of motor fuel performance.

The veiled charges that Ethyl Fluid is destructive to engine parts are, of course, ridiculous. Any intelligent motorist knows that the Conoco name would never be associated with any product which was other than a real contribution to motoring satisfaction.

Conoco has a reputation to maintain and it does it as never before in offering you Conoco Ethyl Gasoline—the fuel of extra knockless miles.

AMATEUR GOLF

Edited by GREGG McBRIDE

Plans are being completed for the staging of the eleventh annual state championship tournament of the Nebraska Women's State Golf association that will be held at Eastridge club, June 18-22. Interest among the feminine golfers is keen this year and a record entry list is expected.

Eastridge In Shape.

Recent rains have placed Eastridge course in fine shape for the tourney. The Lincoln club will be entertaining its second state tourney as the Nebraska open was played at Eastridge last summer.

The program of the women's championships calls for the 18-hole qualifying round Monday and title play in four flights opening Tuesday, June 19. Special contests on the tourney schedule are club team event and low putting score for the qualifying round Monday; approaching, putting and driving contests Tuesday and a two-ball mixed foursome Thursday.

Lincoln Women Officers.

Three Lincoln women are officers of the state association. Mrs. R. R. Livingston is president, Mrs. Lavater Thompson is secretary and Mrs. Carl Weil is treasurer.

Tourney at Friend.

The Friend Country club will sponsor an open tournament, Sunday, 17. The tourney schedule calls for a 9-hole qualifying round, 9-hole elimination play and 18-hole championship match.

This will be the sixth annual open tourney of the Friend club, meets in the past seasons having attracted over 100 players from Clay Center, Geneva, Crete, Seward, York and Lincoln.

The Friend club has a 2,800-yard golf course with excellent fairways. Prizes have been provided for the medalist and winners and runners-ups in all flights. The tourney is a one-day affair and the entry fee is $2.

North Platte Meet.

The seventh annual western Nebraska open golf tournament will be held at the North Platte Country club, June 17 to 20. Qualifying rounds will be played the first day.

Nelson Plans Tourney.

Flights for all contestants and a fine prize list have been planned for golfers who journey to Nelson to compete in a golf tournament, Sunday, June 17.

There will be nine holes to qualify, nine holes elimination and 18 holes final play. Qualifying cards must be turned in by 10:30, no qualifiers to start after 9:15 a. m. The committee in charge of the tourney includes I. J. Wehrman, R. R. Lockwood and J. A. Greenwood.

Golf Compet at Orleans.

The Orleans Golf club will sponsor an open tournament, June 19. Prizes will be awarded in all flights with the qualifying rounds June 16 and 17. Orleans has a nine-hole course.

Nebraska League.

New names have crowded to the fore in the race for individual batting laurels in the Nebraska State circuit. Where Pember of McCook was making pace last week, the present leader is Malone, Grand Island shortstop, who has banged at a .500 clip in the seven games he has played since joining the Islanders.

Ranking next to Malone are Wallace, Norfolk catcher, with .462 in five games and Charlie Bolen, York right fielder, with .457. Shiell, first-sacker for McCook, has stepped ahead of his teammate by pummeling his way to an average of .444. Pember, however, ranks well up with a mark of .431.

Lass High in Homers.

Lass of Fairbury, whom Lincoln had, but failed to keep, heads the State loop in homers, with four to his credit. Pierpoint of Grand Island tops them all in doubles, with nine, and Baltzell of Lincoln divides the laurels with Lass and Pierpoint in hammering three-basers, each having harvested three. Felhaber, Norfolk, is top man in sacrifice hits, with six, and Owens, Beatrice, is making pace in stolen bases, with eight.

Fairbury has slugged its way to the front position in team batting. The Fairchild tribe has a neat mark of .308, with McCook close up at .304. The Links are next to last with an average of .247, being only one point ahead of Grand Island.

Links Lead Defensively.

In fielding, however, the Links lead the league with a defensive average of .970, an exceptionally high mark in class D company. As in team batting, Grand Island brings up the rear in fielding, the Islanders' average being .917.

Four pitchers—Harrington, McCook; Wilkus, Norfolk; Shafar, Beatrice, and Rhoades, North Platte—have perfect pitching records of two victories and no defeats. Bekwith of York, however, is the rightful leader with four victories and one defeat. The following statistics include games of Sunday, June 3:

NATIONAL LOOK WELL WEEK JUNE 9 to 16

"LOOK WELL WEEK" had its inception last year, and the response and co-operation received from the public was so great and so genuine that this year it is expected to be even more of a nationwide event. The week was instituted and is sponsored by the Associated Master Barbers of America, a National Organization of Barber and Beauty Shop Owners, represented in every state in the union. A noteworthy angle of the week is the fact that members of the association will offer their services free of charge to inmates of children's and charitable institutions, as well as other needy persons, and hair clippers and razors will be wielded in these cases with the compliments of the Chirotonsic Profession.

In this connection the barbers and beauticians of Lincoln solicit the co-operation of charitable organizations and societies to help them locate worthy charity cases, that they may serve them without cost. They are prepared to furnish sufficient men to do the necessary barber work, for they are anxious to do their duty to society and have everybody realize the deeper meaning of their slogan, "IT PAYS TO LOOK WELL."

ANNOUNCEMENT
We are remodeling both barber and beauty schools and have prepared ourselves to teach both professions in the latest scientific and practical methods. We have a special curriculum regarding the Barber profession put into effect by the educational council in all "Standardized Schools" of which we are a member. We also have a special curriculum in the beauty department for there is no state law controlling this trade.

NORFOLK AHEAD IN FINAL ROUND

Elkhorns Ring Up Three Runs to Win From Islanders, 6-5.

NORFOLK, Neb., June 9—Custer's wild pitch in the ninth let Felhaber, who had previously scored two runners winth a triple, race home with the winning run after two were out and Norfolk handed Grand Island its fifth straight defeat here today, 6 to 5. Geist's wild throw in the ninth paved the way for the three-run rally. Lewton, Grand Island pitcher, allowed only two hits in seven and one-third innings, but was taken out when he became wobbly in the eighth. Matulka of Grand Island hit a homer with one on in the first inning. The score:

Chicago Bruins Grab Wild Game

PHILADELPHIA, June 9—(I. N. S.)—By employing six hurlers the Cubs managed to nose out the tail-end Phillies here this afternoon in the fourth and final battle of the series, in a weird travesty on the national pastime, 13 to 11.

Jones, Bush, Carlson, Malone, Nehf and Finally Root paraded to the mound before the cellarites conceded defeat. There also was quite a display of Phillies slab artists, Shotton calling forth Pruett, Ring, Miller, McGraw and Benge. Homers were uncorked by Hack Wilson, who hung up his eleventh of the season, with Beck and Cuyler on the paths in the sixth and Pruett, pitching and by Hurst who connected in the initial session with Jones on the peak and Thompson on second base. Beck bounced a homer into the left field bleachers in the seventh scoring Webb. Score:

That Spickerman Jinx.

The victory smashed the hoodoo which has been hanging on Spickerman's trail. Two weeks ago, he blanked Norfolk for 13 innings, only to be beaten in the fourteenth. Several days later, he was on the short end of a 3-1 battle with the Beatrice Blues. The luck of it is that when Spickerman pitches brilliantly, the Links have been unable to help him out with runs—and Saturday was no exception.

Twin Bill Today.

Final chapter of the York-Lincoln series is slated for this afternoon at Landis yard, the Links and Dukes clashing in a double bill beginning at two. After that, the Links will head for the west, performing in McCook and North Platte. Saturday's official record:

Senators Shove White Sox Back

CHICAGO, June 9—(I. N. S.)—Washington shoved the White Sox deeper into the cellar when they won today's game 4 to 2. The visitors kept pecking away at Grady Adkins and combined five hits and three runs in the fourth and fifth innings. Connally pitched the last two innings and was hit hard. Zachary worked steadily and never was in danger of defeat. Washington made five bobbles and a triple. Score:

BY BRICK OWENS.
American League Umpire.

Somehow, it seems to be decreed by fate that a first year umpire must be faced with unusual plays. While it appears that some hardship is visited upon them, complicated plays, correctly decided, help a young umpire more than anything else. The confidence of the players and fans is neded. If, upon rising to meet the situation, he rules correctly, he increases his prestige greatly by that single ruling.

William "Bick" Campbell, formerly of the Southern league, was handed a decision recently to try the wisdom of any arbitrator. It was a decision which necessitated deviation from the book rule, in as much as no rule specifically covered the point in question. Had he followed the rule in the book, he was open to a protested game and yet, he could have done so, and been within his rights as an official.

Quoting the Rule.

Section 21 in Rule 56 specifically states that "in the event a base runner is trying to score from third base, etc. a balk shall be called on the pitcher and the batter sent to first base because of interference by the catcher stepping in front of the batter. Nothing is said about a condition which might arise in the event the runner on third base was not trying to score. Hence, the argument.

The play in question occurred in Cleveland recently while Detroit was the opponent. The writer was officiating at first base and Campbell was behind the bat, being umpire-in-chief that day. In the seventh inning, Fothergill was on third base and McManus was on first. Shaute who was pitching for Cleveland, had a lapse of memory for the nonce.

McManus Took Lead.

He forgot that McManus was on first and allowed him to take a tremendous lead. Catcher Luke Sewell noticed McManus' actions and yelled at Shaute, but Joe still was sound asleep. When Mac broke for second, Sewell stepped in front of the batter, Heilmann and called for the ball.

Shaute pitched it to him without stepping off the rubber, therefore Sewell's action automatically made the delivery a balk. Campbell so ruled and an argument was begun. But not until the next day did they start in earnest. Detroit spokesmen contended that Sewell's act was, also, an interference, as described in the rule, and that, therefore, Fothergill should have been allowed to score from third.

Campbell's Ruling.

"Bick" replied, correctly too, that Fothergill had made no effort to score and that Sewell had not interefered with him; that but one violation of the law had occurred and that but one penalty would be inflicted.

A quick thinking player would have scored on the play, because he would have started home as soon as Sewell stepped in front of the plate. He could not have lost, as the umpire would have ruled interference, but Bob was as slow as Shaute, leaving the honors to be divided between McManus, Sewell and Campbell.

Having seen the play and noted the conditions, Umpire Campbell, in my opinion, made one of the best rulings ever made on a ball field. Such decisions prove a man's capability to hold a place in the major leagues.

Sport Chatter.

The rules of bottle throwing are simple. They are not only simple but foolish.

A direct hit wins for the thrower the applause of the other fans and a nice standing place on the outside of the park.

Hitting a man in a blue suit and a mask counts 10 points, but hitting a man in a blue suit and a badge is an error for which you may be penalized 10 days in jail.

Fans are developing pop bottle technique. One Brooklyn boy made a clean hit from behind third base.

St. Louis used to lead in this sport. Umpires used to go into that town with high hopes and come back with headaches.

Soft drink containers bouncing off one's cranium might weaken most people but umpires are made of sterner stuff. They keep right on making wrong decisions.

The news item is very enthusiastic about the new rocket car. However, there is one small item overlooked. No one knows how the car is stopped.

MORRISON TELLS TEACHING NEEDS

Problems Discussed In Series of Lectures at Wesleyan.

Necessity of Reading Rooms In Schools Is Stressed.

Ways in which teachers can help the future citizens of our country were discussed by Dr. Henry C. Morrison, director of the laboratory school at the University of Chicago, in a series of eight lectures before the students of Nebraska Wesleyan university during the past four days.

The number of misfits should be minimized, Dr. Morrison thinks and he strongly favors a modern twentieth century kindergarten to establish an initial, ideational background.

"Rich experiences should be obtained by the use of books, cultural material, and play," he says. "Every twelve elementary rooms need at least one well stocked reading room and every five hundred high school students need at least one room for reading. Every mastery product should be thoroughly mastered from the very beginning. Discipline is needed in the school as well as in the home."

In speaking of some modern views of the educative process itself,, Dr. Morrison said that education means bringing up the younger generation. "It is growth by learning. The end product of a general education is the adjusted and integrated personality. The educated individual is the man who can be trusted to make personal adjustments and do right because it is right.

"All true learning products that ever existed or ever will exist can be summed up into either new attitudes or new abilities. The attitudes are either of intelligence or of preference. Our most important ability is the ability to read and express ourselves in competent English.

Units Of Learning.

"A unit of learning is a comprehensive and significant aspect of cultural material which being mastered becomes a personality adaptation. Students should be able to apply information and understanding to live situations. Units are different in respect to objectives and different in the learning process." Dr. Morrison explained the units of understanding, manipulation and appliances of material, appreciation language, and of sensory motor responses.

"The process of learning to study should begin as soon as the pupil has learned to read, probably in the fourth grade. Then it cannot be started any too soon. Learning how to study and to learn by studying is a major contribution which the school makes. If the pupil's time is short he should learn less, but really learn.

Study is independent learning; it is a method of learning which is peculiar only to the science type." Dr. Morrison showed how individuals learn in other types of subjects such as in the practical arts type one learns by doing. The main thing in studying is to make the individual conscious of what he is trying to do, he said.

"The pupil needs a guide sheet which is essentially a series of problems focused on the united element in succession and upon the unit as a whole. A list of references is also given in a guide sheet. You have a college student when a pupil is able to work on his own hook even if he is only in the fifth grade.

Teachers Need Objective.

"Orderly intelligent teaching according to Dr. Morrison, is concerned with several situations. We should have the objective thoroughly set up so that the teacher will have something definite to do." The importance of oral instruction was emphasized. 'Direct instruction gives the most efficient instrument of learning.

"Concerning examinations, I believe that their only purpose should be to see if the learning process and appreciation has taken place. Pupils should never think that passing the test is the objective, but rather that the learning process is. Students who have not mastered the material need more practical experiences. This is the only difference between difficult and easy learners. Addition assignments should be given to them. Those whom the teacher discovers as having mastered the material should be set to work upon voluntary projects. Mastery does not mean perfection,—it means getting the material.

"Changing economic conditions have been making the growth of the school in the last twenty-five years." Dr. Morrison explained at his Saturday lecture. He reminded his audience of the fact that over 80 per cent of children between 5 and 17 years of age are going to school today, and that one-fourth of the entire population of the continental United States is going to school. "A new school is evolving that means the working out of an efficient program of study. We should have a school in which there would be steady movement right through in terms of learning. There should be no promotion. Learning is the important thing. When the pupil learns to read he has learned and does not need to spend his school time in additional reading classes. This new school would take for the average students, about the same length of time as the old school. We should proceed by a constructive method instead of setting up a hurdle."

Hoover Acceptable? "No!" Watson Reply

Indiana Senator Says Plank With Idea of McNary-Haugen Bill Will Be Submitted to Platform Comm'ttee.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9—(I. N. S.)—"Something must be done for agriculture, but the republican party is confronted with many issues, not one," said Senator James E. Watson of Indiana in an interview here this afternoon.

The senator began working with Farm Bureau leaders and said a plank would be drafted for submission to the platform committee in the convention next week. The plank, he said, would be along the same general idea of the McNary-Haugen bill minus the equalization fee, but would not mention the McNary-Haugen bill by name.

Senator Watson said he believed the draft of the proposed plank would be acceptable to Secretary Hoover. When aked if Hoover would be acceptable to him, the senator emphatically said: "No!"

"The republican party will make good its pledge to give the farmers a square deal," Senator Watson said.

BORAH LEANING TOWARD HOOVER

WASHINGTON, June 9—(I. N. S.)—Uncommitted, but with Hoover leanings, Senator Borah, republican of Idaho, left the capital today for the republican convention at Kansas City.

Borah declared that he made no final choice as to whom he would throw the Idaho delegation, pledged to him as a 'favorite son."

"When I get to Kansas City I will decide," Borah said. "I will be able to vote for Curtis, Hoover or for whoever I favor.

"I always have been a friend of Mr. Hoover, however."

Among Borah's proposals are said to be the following:

(1)—Full publicity for campaign expenses.

(2)— Farm relief eliminating equalization fee and proposing a tariff study with a view to agricultural protection .

(3)—Recognizing the public utilities situation as a problem for the federal government.

(4)—Foreign affairs plank, including adherence to reservations attached to American entrance to the world court, a restatement of the republican league of nations position, anti-war treaties and a Latin-American policy.

COOLIDGE STILL TO BE RECKONED

Hilles Is Trying To Save New York Votes For President.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9—(I. N. S.)—Still determined to draft President Coolidge, national committeemen Charles D. Hilles of New York and State Chairman George K. Morris tonight were bending every effort to prevent the Hoover forces from making further inroads in the New York delegation.

Sixty-seven of New York's 90 delegates are prepared to vote for Coolidge on the first roll call while 23 have served notice on the New York leaders that they intend to support Hoover.

Regarded as the most influential of all the delegations to the national convention, the empire state's delegates are scheduled to arrive here tomorrow on a special train. Much of the uncertainty as to what will happen at the convention may be cleared up at the caucus of the New York delegation on Monday afternoon.

Unless the president definitely takes himself out of the picture in the meantime, Hilles and Morris indicated tonight they would go into the caucus and attempt to line every one of New York's 90 delegates for Coolidge.

If the President will not permit himself to be drafted, all of New York's 90 votes eventually will be cast for Hoover, in the opinion of Chairman Morris.

"If President Coolidge will not take the nomination, there is only one thing left for us to do—nominate Herbert Hoover," Morris said.

Aided By Butler

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University is one of New York's delegates to the convention. He is giving Hilles and Morris all possible help in keeping the New York delegation in line for Coolidge.

"My best information is that 67 of the delegates want to vote as an organization and that they will gladly support the president on the first ballot unless he forbids such action," said Dr. Butler.

"In the event that the president's name is not presented to the convention a majority will go to Hoover on the second or third roll call, some will be for Lowden and a few may support Curtis."

Dr. Butler, long an arch foe of prohibition said he would like to see a plank incorporated in the platform declaring against the eighteenth amendment.

Hilles is slated to be re-elected national committeeman at the caucus on Monday, although there were reports in the hotel lobbies tonight that he might resign his post in the event that Hoover is nominated.

Watson Opens Hoover Attack

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9—(I. N. S.)—Charging that Herbert Hoover sought the presidential nomination from both parties in 1924, and that he had lived in England so long that he had "gotten the free trade spirit," Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, "favorite son" candidate for the republican presidential nomination here next week, launched a bitter attack against the cabinet candidate here tonight before a "pep" meeting of "the allies."

"A man cannot live in England for twenty-three years," Senator Watson averred, "and not get the free trade spirit. The republican party is not a free trade organization, but a tariff party."

The Indianan declared he would under no circumstances be a party to a walkout. If a favorable platform was created and Hoover ultimately nominated, Senator Watson indicated he would support both rather than bolt the party.

"I am opposed to a third party movement," Senator Watson stated, "because I have had the experience with two walkouts.

"If Hoover is nominated, and an adequate platform is adopted, I'll support the platform"—then after a pause the senator added: "And of course, the candidate."

Referring to the League of Nations, Watson said he was sure Hoover was in favor of it.

SPANISH WAR VETS TO MEET

National Commander Will Address Encampment at Grand Island.

A. U. S. Veterans hospital for Nebraska and legislation for the benefit of war veterans will be sought at the reunion of the state encampment of the United Spanish War veterans three days at Grand Island beginning Wednesday.

National Commander John J. Garrity of Chicago has promised to attend the encampment on National Flag day, Thursday. He will come from a similar convention at Louisville, Ky., and will leave the following day for a convention at Topeka, Kas.

The Lincoln delegation will be headed by E. E. Carle, commander of the William Lewis camp, and Mrs. Mary G. Meier, president of the state organization of the ladies' auxiliary.

Major C. F. Scharmann of Omaha, state commander, will preside at the business session of the veterans. Headquarters will open Wednesday morning at the Yancey hotel with registration. The program for the day will be informal closing with a smoker for men delegates and entertainment for ladies in the evening.

The convention will be formally opened Thursday morning. After the invocation and advancing of colors, Mayor O. A. Abbott will deliver the address of welcome and Representative John McLellan will deliver greetings from the state.

Greetings will be made by several of the visiting veterans. Major Scharmann will speak in behalf of the Department of Nebraska. Past Commander August Wagner will talk for the past commanders.

In the afternoon the Flag day parade will be held, the Civil war veterans leading the procession. After the parade ends at Pioneer park Flag day exercises will be held, Past Department Commander O. D. Bolster being in charge.

Following a drill by the Lee Forby Ladies' Drill team, Chief John J. Garrity, national commander, will deliver the principle address of the convention. Norris Camp's first GRAIN MARKETS.

By International News Service.
CHICAGO, June 9.
Grains closed uneven today. Wheat was uj ½ to 1¾c, corn off ⅝c and oats unchanged to ⅛c higher.
Wheat opened 2¼ to 3c higher with general buying by commission houses, locals, bullish government crop report and firmness at Liverpool. Later prices eased somewhat under scattered selling on favorable crop conditions in the northwest. The government estimated the winter wheat crop at 512,000,000,000 bushels. The condition of spring wheat was set at 79.0. Good export buying also figured in the early advance. The seaboard reported 5,000,000 bushels taken for export over night. Local receipts were 7 cars.
Corn started 1c to ¼c higher on scattered commission house buying, firmness in wheat and short covering. However, later local selling caused a recession. Receipts were estimated at 168 cars. Cash demand for corn continues excellent.
Oats opened ½ to ⅝c up with commission house buying, bullish crop report and firmness in wheat, eased slightly on local selling. Receipts were estimated at 20 cars.
Provisions were firm early.

LINCOLN STAR Classified Advertising

The Lincoln Star is a member of The Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country, and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Lincoln Star, as well as every other member of the association, endeavors to print only truthful Want Ads and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standard of honesty.
Ads ordered for seven times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned.
Careful attention given to mail orders. Cash in full must accompany out-of-town advertisement.
Advertising offered for irregular insertion takes the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines. All ads are restricted to their proper classifications and to the regular Lincoln Star style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION.
Errors in advertisement should be reported immediatley. The Star will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.
The individual advertisements under the following classifications are arranged in ALPHABETICAL order for quick references.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING RATES.
Daily rate for consecutive insertions. Count six average words to a line. These special cash rates apply to advertising paid for within seven days after last insertion. Minimum cash rate is 36 cents. Cash rate per line per day:
1 Time ..... .12
3 Times ..... .10
7 Times ..... .09
These offices are open to receive advertisements from 7:00 a. m. to 10:00 p. m. daily. All advertisements received up until 12:30 p. m. will appear in all city editions the same day. All ads received between 12:30 p. m. and 10:00 p. m. will appear in all editions the following day.

THERE'S MORE TO THESE USED CARS THAN A BRIGHT POLISH.

WE DON'T believe that "beauty is only paint deep." And so with every Certified Used Car, we go "into" it as well as going "over" it with new lacquer finishes.

MOST IMPORTANT of all we recondition the motor and chassis, so that it runs just as smoothly and quietly as when new.

EVERY CAR sold with 5-day free driving trial.

NEW CHEVROLET Coach fully equipped.

STUDEBAKER Dictator Sedan—1927 model—Original paint and finish. Looks like a new car. Run about 10,000 miles. This car is perfect in every way. You should see it and drive it to appreciate the value.

STUDEBAKER Special Six Brougham—1925 model. Equipped with big "6" motor which has run only a few thousand miles. Has all the appearance of a new car, as it has been refinished and reconditioned completely.

STUDEBAKER Light Six Coupe — 1924 model, just out of the paint shop. Before it was painted we overhauled it completely in our own shop by expert Studebaker mechanics. That is why we can sell it with such a strong guarantee.

AUTOMOBILE TAX CUT AIDS SALES

Record Year Is Predicted by National Chamber of Commerce.

Reduction of motor taxes to the buyers of automobiles is resulting in more motor sales, according to reports filed today with the directors' meeting of the national automobile chamber of commerce.

All factories notified their dealers immediately on the signing of the tax bill at 8:00 a. m. on May 29, that the war excise tax was to be immediately deducted from the existing delivered price of the car. This resulted in savings to the consumer of from $9.00 to $180.00.

"The pledge of the automobile industry that repeal of the war excise tax would be passed on as savings to the public has been kept 100 per cent," said Roy D. Chapin, president of the national automobile chamber of commerce, in reporting on the situation to the directors.

"The consequent reduction in the delivered price of motor vehicles has brought a large number of buyers into the market who were waiting for this event.

"The situation has justified the policy of the industry which believes that fair dealing with the public always meets with an understanding and appreciative reception.

"There is every indication from the retail reports of the last few days that June will have a record business in automobile sales."

Production of automobile chamber members estimated from shipping statements was reported as 388,700, a new high output for the chamber. This was an increase of 14 per cent over May last year and a decrease of 2 per cent under April. The total output of the members of this body for the first five months is 20 per cent ahead of the corresponding period a year ago.

PACKARD USES A RADIO TO TEST BALL BEARINGS

Radio is exercising a direct effect in the quality of automobiles. Some time ago the Packard Motor Car company developed a machine, using principles involved in radio transmission, for the inspection of piston pins. Now Packard is using radio equipment for measuring the sound of bearings.

Each roller or ball bearing going into a Packard car is run on a soundless spindle and the noise it makes while operating is measured. If it exceeds a fixed standard the bearing is rejected.

The testing is done in a sound proof room especially constructed for the work. In effect the action of a radio receiving set is reversed. A loud speaker takes in the sound and passes it through the set. The sound is amplified and the volume registered on a dial gauge.

So sensitive is the device that a low voiced "ah" uttered in the farthest corner from the loud speaker sets up a violent flutter of the needle on the gauge.

Girl Meets Coolidge

Chloe Hawkins, Centralia, Ill., school girl, winner over 400,000 pupils in the Highway Education Board's sixth national essay contest on street safety. She was presented by Senator Deneen. The president gave her an autographed certificate of award entitling her to a gold watch and a trip to Washington.

Rusted Rims.

When tire rims become badly rusted rough particles of the rust and scale act like sandpaper on the inner tube, resulting in a worn spot and a premature blowout. By coating the rim with aluminum paint occasionally this can be prevented.

Activity is what a battery needs to keep it in good condition.

WILLYS BREAKS OUTPUT RECORD

Production, Shipments Surpass Everything in Company's History.

Surpassing all previous records the Willys-Overland company on May 31 produced 2,244 Willys-Knight and Whippet cars which is an increase of 214 cars over the previous highest daily output established on May 15 when 2,030 cars were produced, officials announced here today.

May shipments totalling 44,559 cars broke any previous record and compared with shipments of 27,564 cars during May of last year. May production totalled 45,686 cars as compared with production of 38,020 cars in April, 33,898 cars in March, 25,522 in February and 13,674 in January. This is the first time in the history of the industry that any company outside of Ford and Chevrolet has produced more than 40,000 cars in one month. Thus Willys-Overland's total production for the first five months of the current year equalled 156,800 cars which exceeds by more than 30,000 units production of 126,301 cars for the entire first six months of last year and already definitely establishes the first half of 1928 as the greatest in the company's history.

Indications that the company was continuing to pass its previous production and shipment records were contained in the announcement that on May 25th, shipments of cars totalled 2,951, the largest one-day shipment record in 20 years. The previous high record had been on April 26 when 2,047 cars were shipped. Included in this record is the largest single day's driveaway record made on May 25th when a total of 815 cars left the plant under their own power in the hands of drivers representing dealers within a radius of 250 miles from Toledo.

The company entered June with production and shipments continuing at the record pace in efforts to catch up with the unfilled orders for more than 30,000 cars on the books of the company. In addition to a working personnel of more than 22,000 in the Toledo plants, the Pontiac, Mich., Elmira, N. Y., and Toronto plants of the company are working at 100 per cent capacity, it was stated.

Inefficient Rings Cause Power Loss.

Never permit piston rings to become inefficient. Losses through leaking piston rings commence with the suction strike when there is a vacuum of as much as 10 pounds per square inch, slightly decreasing and debasing the incoming charge. On the compression stroke the leak increases, under pressure of as much as 60 or 70 pounds. On the power stroke the pressure is quadrupled and here occurs the greatest loss through leakage.

SEEKS DEALERS HELP FOR ADS

Chevrolet Company Gives Agents Voice in Advertising Campaigns.

DETROIT, Mich., June 9—Renewal of a unique series of advertising conferences, in which the automobile dealer is given a voice in the national advertising program of the factory, was announced here today by John E. Grimm, jr., advertising manager of the Chevrolet Motor company.

This company is now in the midst of the largest and most comprehensive advertising campaign ever undertaken in the history of the automobile industry.

The first of the new series of dealer conferences, held under the general supervision of Mr. Grimm, took place here a week ago when dealers selected from the domestic Chevrolet organization met with factory officials to discuss the publicity plans of the company for the next few months.

"The object of these advertising conferences," Mr. Grimm explained, "is to keep the home office constantly in touch with problems faced daily by the dealers so that Chevrolet may be guided by actual field conditions and thus prove most effective.

"The assistance given by dealers in these monthly conferences," he continued, "is of invaluable benefit in adding to the efficiency of our advertising. This is particularly true of the newspaper advertising, which of course, forms the greatest retail advertising force for each individual dealer.

"While every type of advertising from newspaper, magazine, outdoor and electric spectacular signs to trade papers is discussed, major interest attaches to the newspaper schedule because this makes up by far the largest part of the year's budget. There are now more than 5,000 leading newspapers carying the Chevrolet message to practically every city, town and hamlet in the United States."

CAR INSPECTION SHOULD PRECEDE LONG AUTO TOUR

A service station inspection of the car before starting off on a vacation tour constitutes the best assurance of a pleasant and untroubled trip, it is pointed out by R. A. Armstrong, service manager of the Oakland Motor Car company.

"Of course it is very probable that any Oakland or Pontiac Six or any other car for that matter which has received fairly regular attention will serve perfectly during the vacation journey," said Mr. Armstrong. "Cars are built today so that they give more consistent service with less attention than formerly was necessary.

"But, just as a matter of precaution it is well to visit your service station before a prolonged tour. If nothing else have the car tightened up, thoroughly oiled and greased. Fill the crank case with fresh oil, check the lubricant in the transmission and differential. Sustained driving during warm weather is the most severe test of lubrication and this detail above all should not be neglected.

"If the motorist has not already done so, he should have the generator charging rate reduced lest the preponderance of day driving overcharge and damage the battery. It is well, too, to have the battery tested occasionally en route.

"Another good tour precaution is to have the valves ground and carbon cleaned. This will assure maximum performance.

"And above all, be sure of your tires. Don't start away merely hoping that your tires will stand up during the tour. The growing practice of carrying two spares is most excellent insurance. Then, if one tire fails the second spare enables the tourist to continue on with a margin of safety until such time as he conveniently can have the flat repaired."

Watch carefully the first indication of softness of tires, for when they are run flat for even a very short distance tires are liable to serious damage.

CHEVROLET DAY CAPITOL BEACH

Du Teau Company Host to Owners Today; Cars on Display.

The DuTeau Chevrolet company is host today to all Chevrolet owners in Lincoln and out-lying territory. There will be on display 10 new models on the grounds for the visitors to inspect at their convenience throughout the entire day. All visitors are urged to bring their lunch and come early and enjoy the festivities that Capitol Beach will furnish for them.

Chevrolet continues to be the popular car. Over one-half million have been delivered since the first of January. A record unprecedented in the history of the motor car manufacture. In Lincoln alone since the first of January there have been nearly 500 new Chevrolets sold and giving the utmost satisfaction to the owner.

AUTO NOTES

Correct Lubrication Adds Life to Car.

To secure maximum efficiency and prolong the life of an automobile, it is necessary that the correct lubricants are used at the right time and in ample quantity. So much depends on lubrication that every owner ought to make a special study of the subject. Repair bills can be reduced, many avoided altogether; better fuel economy may be had, less trouble on the road, fewer accidents and, in general, better and cheaper motoring. If only lubrication is properly attended to. The basic law of lubrication attended to. The basic law of lubrication should be this: Lublicate according to speed and load. Lubricate according to speed and load. The heavier the load on the part, the more careful one should be that a film of lubricant is constantly maintained. The faster a part runs, the hotter it gets; therefore, the more closely lubrication should be watched. Some parts get hot simply because they operate fast, as, for example, a transmission bearing; others because they move fast and are heated from an outside source, ac a piston, which takes the heat of explosion. High pressure grease lubrication is being used on a great number of cars. It has proved its superiority over the hand-turned grease cup because of its easy operation and because of its efficiency. The old-fashioned oil hole is practically gone, as is the cheap oil cap of small size with snap over. They get covered with dirt and oil becames clogged quickly. It is difficult to force oil in places without forcing some dirt with it.

Save Valve Caps.

Never throw away valve caps. Scre them on firmly and prevent air leakage here. The valve plunger, a little mechanism inside the stem, serves as an air lock during inflation, but the valve cap is the secondary air seal during usage.

Week Replete With Unusual Number Prenuptial Parties

Society Girls Who Have Chosen June and July for Weddings Will Be Honored At Social Functions Almost Daily Until the Time of Wedding—Some Will Be Honored Out of Town

ANOTHER week has dawned complete with its seven days and replete with parties. Popular society girls who have chosen June and early July for their marriage are to be honored at some social function almost daily from now until the time of the wedding.

MISS Louise Gardner will be honoree at an evening bridge Tuesday, for which Miss Frances Farrens will be hostess at her home, 1345 South Eighteenth street. Twenty guests have been bidden. Wednesday, Miss Virginia Becker of David City will pay prenuptial courtesy to Miss Gardner. She is arranging a 1 o'clock luncheon, which is to be given in Lincoln. Miss Gardner goes to Omaha Thursday, where Miss Marion Sturdevant will honor her at a 1 o'clock luncheon at Happy Hollow. In the evening, Miss Helen Devore, Miss Martha Dox, William Reed, and Charles Dox are honoring Miss Gardner and her fiance, Russell Doty, at a picnic at a cabin on the river. The following Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gardner, sr., will entertain at the prenuptial dinner at the Woodburn in honor of their daughter and Mr. Doty. The members of the family and the bridal party will attend.

COMPLIMENTING a bride of late June, Miss McAhan, Miss Ruth Palmer will entertain at three tables of bridge Monday evening at her home in the Marquette. Spring flowers will be used in the rooms, and supper will be served. Thursday afternoon, Miss McAhan will be honoree at a miscellaneous shower, for which Miss Florence Flodeen is hostess at her home, 1505 A street. Three tables will be placed for bridge. Miss McAhan will again be honored Friday with a bridge luncheon. Miss Mable Merritt is hostess at her home, 2821 A street.

MRS. H. A. Capek will entertain at dinner Tuesday evening at her home, 2222 Sheridan boulevard, complimenting her niece, Miss Corabelle Graham, and Vernon B. Lewis, whose marriage takes place Wednesday. Members of the families will be included in the guest list.

MEMBERS of Phi Mu alumnae will preside at dinner Monday evening at the Woodburn, as a prenuptial courtesy to Miss Janet Gadd, who is a bride of the week. Bridge follows for the sixteen guests. Miss Gadd will be honored with a miscellaneous shower.

AMONG the feted brides of the week is Miss Sylvia Lewis, who on Monday will be honored at an afternoon bridge by Mrs. W. F. Jones at her home, 127 North Thirty-third street. Two tables will be placed for cards. Mrs. Paul Jacobs will honor Miss Lewis Tuesday with a luncheon for eight at her home, 402 South Twenty-fourth street. Bridge is the diversion of the afternoon. In the evening, Miss Ruth Palmer is entertaining for Miss Lewis at her home in the Marquette. Summer blossoms will be used in the rooms, and twelve guests will be present for the bridge of the evening. Mrs. O. F. Wohlenberg, Miss Louise Wohlenberg, Mrs. C. H. Bowden, and Miss Marie Bowden will be hostesses at a handkerchief shower at the home of Mrs. Wohlenberg, 1835 A street, Wednesday evening, as a courtesy to Miss Lewis. Twenty-four guests have been bidden for the shower and the bridge. Miss Lewis will be honoree on Friday evening at a shower and bridge, for which Misses Marie Bowden and Virginia Dougall will preside, at the home of Miss Dougall, 1950 Sewell street. Twenty guests will be present.

HONORING Miss Blenda Olson, whose marriage is an event of late June, Misses Madge Morrison and Miss Arthella Gadd will entertain at a handkerchief shower Tuesday evening at Miss Morrison's home, 2426 Parke avenue. Sixteen guests will spend the evening with bridge. Miss Blenda will be honoree Thursday afternoon, when Miss Madeline Jackson and Mrs. E. C. Hodder entertain at the home of Mrs. J. C. Orcutt, 635 South Twenty-eighth street. Five tables of players will be present for the afternoon's bridge. Saturday, Miss

State Bridge Club Tourney At Eastridge

In conjunction with the state golf tournament for women, which is to be held June 18, 19, and 20, at the Eastridge Country club, there is also to be a bridge tournament. According to the committee in charge, which includes Mrs. Jasper Clarke, Mrs. Burnham Campbell and Mrs. Dave Cravens, there are any number of women in the country clubs throughout the state, who do not play golf, but who are deeply interested in bridge. For that reason, a bridge tournament has been planned, which will be open to any woman, whether she is a member of a country club or not, who pays an entrance fee.

Two prizes will be given for high scores each day of the tournament, and in the finals, two grand prizes are to be offered.

The committee suggests that those intending to enter the tournament send their reservation into the club. However, entries may be made the first day of the tournament.

Engagements Becoming More Numerous As June Advances

As June advances and her days become merely history in the passing of another month, so, also do the trousseau teas, the prenuptial dinners, and the weddings, both large and small, become past events in the chronicle of social affairs. But the engagements become more numerous, and scarce a day goes by that some luncheon or dinner does not reveal a card bearing an announcement or wedding date. Then, the festivities start again with another round of attractive parties for the bride-to-be and her wedding attendants.

Announcement is made today by C. F. Howard of the engagement and approaching marriage of his daughter, Frances Wilma, to Burnett I. Noble, son of Lin I. Noble of Thermopolis, Wyo. The wedding will take place Tuesday, June 12, at the home of the bride's father, 1435 C street. Miss Howard is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority and for the past three years has

Largest Parties of Season Are Held At Country Club

Two of the largest and most elaborate parties of the season were held Saturday evening at the Country club, when Mr. and Mrs. Max V. Beghtol entertained one hundred and twenty-five guests at dinner honoring Miss Josephone La Master and her fiance, Philip Aitken, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Matson and Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Bell presided at a dinner for one hundred and four guests.

Garden flowers in all shades, with white predominating, formed the decorations for the Beghtol party. The guests were seated at five long tables, one arranged in the center of the dining room, and the others forming a wide "V" on each side. Daisies and peonies and a variety of summer flowers made the tables attractive.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leon Decker, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Archibald, Omaha; Mrs. James Abney, Brownsville, Tex., and Mrs. Thomas Herbert, Cleveland, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Matson and Mr. and Mrs. Bell seated their guests at two long tables where Japanese iris in light and dark lavender were used in large mounds, surrounded by yellow Japanese mats. Golden tapers of graduate length formed the central motif for the table. Miss Hester Stratton of Oshkosh, Wis., was an out of town guest.

Honoring Miss Blenda Olson and her fiance, Gilbert Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Palm and Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Anderson entertained thirty-six guests at dinner at the Country club. Covers were placed at one long table where a pink and green motif was featured in the appointments. Flat bouquets of summer flowers extended the full length of the table from the floral mound in the center. Pink tapers were used in crystal holders. They were graduated in length from the tall ones on each side of the centerpiece to the smaller ones at the ends of the table. Out of town guests included Miss Wealtha Harding, Nebraska City; Mr. and Mrs. Dave Noble, and Mr. and Mrs. Ward Lindley of Omaha.

At the Eastridge Country club, the parties were smaller. Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Grubb entertained a group at dinner, and their guest

REGULAR MEETING CAPITAL CHAPTER.

Capital chapter of the American War Mothers held its regular monthly meeting Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. E. Burton, president, 3227 Star street.

The flag used at the meeting was presented to Mrs. Burton by Knox county, Nebraska, for 100 per cent war work during the late war.

Senora Parquetta De Foort of Omaha was entertained as an honored guest. She is a native of Spain but konwn as the war nurse, a veteran of three conflicts, having served as a "silent" Red Cross nurse in the Boer war, Spanish American war and the World war, she has been wounded twice and wears decorations given her by two British sovereigns.

The report of the carnation sale was most gratifying and the War Mothers are very grateful for the splendid patronage received.

Mrs. Frank Knore, chairman of hospital committee, gave a report of excellent work being accomplished.

Brides In Double Ceremony

—Portraits by Hauck Studio.

Two brides of the past week are Mrs. Clarence Althouse who was Miss Marian Cooley and Mrs. Charles Oxford who, prior to her marriage was Miss Leona Jewett. The nuptial lines of the two brides were read at a double wedding ceremony on Sunday, June 3, at the Lutheran church at Eagle. Following a wedding trip through the Black Hills, Mr. and Mrs. Althouse will make their home near Alvo and Mr. and Mrs. Oxford will reside in Missoula, Mont.

WOMEN'S BUSINES PROFESSIONAL CLUB

About eighty members of the Fremont Business and Professional Women's club had 6:30 dinner at the Salem-Lutheran church Monday evening, the ladies of the church serving the dinner.

Although the club has moved its furnishings into the new yarters in the Odd Fellows building, the rooms are not fully completed, but will be in a few days.

After a short business meeting at the church, a few of the members went over to the club rooms and placed as much of the furniture as they could until the rooms are completed.

GUILD ENTERTAINS A NATIONAL OFFICER.

The Lincoln branch of the Needlework Guild of America, will entertain the national treasurer, Mrs. Morris Wilson at a luncheon in the Cornhusker hotel, Tuesday at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Wilson will speak to the womenpresent on some phase of the work being done by the organization. She is on her way east after attending the national convention at Kansas City. Mrs. W. E. Reed of Omaha, president of the Omaha branch, and other members from that city, will be present.

This meeting will be open to the public and the management, of which Mrs. A. H. Bennell is the president, wishes all who are interested to attend, as this will be the place to get a clear understanding of the aims and accomplishments of this band of workers. Call Mrs. E. E. Smith, 2815 South street, phone F5362, for reservations, before noon, Monday.

The Lincoln branch of the Needlework Guild is only one year old though Philadelphia was organized in 1885 and Iwerene, Dorsetshire, England in 1883.

Lincoln has more than 600 members and last fall more than 800 new garments were given to worthy, needy people. The membership has grown very fast during the year.

COLLINS TELLS OF NEBRASKA BIRDS.

Axis club held its first meeting of the season on Tuesday at Axis Lodge. With the house cleaned and the lawn mowed, a steaming hot dinner waited about 100 members and guests who attended. The president, Miss Faye Sherwin, introduced Mr. Collins of the university who talked on "Nebraska Birds." Mr. Collins said that Nebraska has 430 different kinds of birds, and ranks third in the United States in the variety of birds living here. Two hundred of these birds nest in Nebraska and 120 stay here over the winter, he said.

Mr. Collins praised the cardinal saying he is always courteous to his wife, lowering his crest, that is, taking off his hat, while feeding in her presence.

The saucy blue-jay, he said, is never in evidence on Friday because of a standing engagement with the devil. He compared the vulture to avaricious elderly men who carry their heads thrust out before them, and complained that the American eagle, our national bird, is really a coward.

Among Nebraska birds are forty birds of prey, forty shore birds or long billed birds, forty anceres and forty different kinds of sparrows. Mr. Collins, himself an Englishman, church in Oak, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and friends. Preceding the reading of th lines Miss Lillian Swanstrom played the Lohengrin wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in apricot georgette over pink, and carried a bouquet of roses. Eunice Mauer attended Miss Leger as maid of honor, and Earl Leger served Mr. Mauer as best man. Immediately folowing the ceremony a reception was held at the Leger home. Mr. and Mrs. Mauer will be at home on a farm near Dalton.

Claypool-Snavely

The marriage of Miss Kathryn Claypool, daughter of Mrs. Julia Downs Claypool of Cortland, and N. M. Snavely, son of Mrs. Cora Snavely of Lincoln, wil take place Thursday at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Dodd, 800 South Thirty-first street. Thirty-five members of the families and close friends will be present for the service, which will be read by the Rev. Mr. Wantz of Pickrell.

Miss Audrey Utterbach will play the wedding march.

Miss Ida Dodd will be Miss Claypool's only atendant. Elmer Neill is to be the best man.

A reception follows the ceremony. Mr. Snavely and his bride will go to Shell Lake, Wis., on their wedding trip, after which they will reside in Lincoln.

Stevens-Eller

A marriage of interest to Lincoln people took place on May 26, in Chicago, when Miss Marguerite Stevens daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Stevens of Chicago became the bride of Dr. Warren H Eller son of Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Eller of Lincoln, Rev. W. M. Boynton of the Byrn Mawr Community church read the lines in the presence of a large number of guests.

James T. Stevens gave his daughter in marriage. Miss Stevens was dressed in ivory white satin with a panel of silver lace and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and roses, tied with long streamers of lace ribbon.

Miss Mabel Niehaus, as maid of honor, was gowned in pink georgette and silver lace, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses tied with streamers of pink ribbon. Miss Elsa Zutter, and Miss Arvesta Parrish, gowned in lavender taffeta, and Miss Mae Ellis in yellow taffeta, were the brides maids. They all carried bouquets of sweet peas and roses. Little Miss Virginia Woodard the flower girl, wore white georgette over pink silk, trimmed with pink satin ribbons. Jack Morgan, who was the ring bearer was dressed in a suit of white satin, and he carried the ring on a white satin cushion trimmed with lilies-of-the-valley.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Eller is a former student of the university of Nebraska and a member of Kappa chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota. Dr. Eller is a graduate of the University of Nebraska college of medicine and a member of Phi Rho Sigma. Dr. and Mrs. Eller will honeymoon in the Bermuda Islands, after which they will be at home in Sayville, Long Island.

Spatz-Bereuter

The marriage of Miss Margaret Spatz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Spatz of Walton, to Arlin Bereuter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bereuter, of Utica, took place at 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, June 3, at the home of the bride's parents in Walton. Rev. G. Starck read the marriage lines in the presence of thirty guests.

Miss Alma Hahn of Johnson, played the Lohengrin wedding music, and Miss Alene Finke of Seward and Miss Ruth Reuter furnished some violin numbers accompanied by Miss Hahn. The bride was gowned in white satin trimmed with lace and wore a veil, caught at the head in a coronet of orange blossoms and lace. She carried a shower of swansonia and roses. Miss Gertrude Spatz, who was the brides honor maid, wore pale pink georgette.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Carl Lemke, who wore yellow georgette, Miss Anna Krula, in green georgette and Miss Margaret Olsen, who was dressed in orchid georgette. All of the attendants carried arm bouquets of pink roses and ferns. Wilma Spatz and Elsie Young, dressed in blue voile, were the flower girls.

Rupert Bereuter, brother of the bride-groom, was best man and Carl Lemke and William Gartner were the ushers.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bereuter are former students of the University of Nebraska where she was a member of Lambda Gamma sorority. They will make their home in Utica.

LaMaster-Eckrich

At a wedding which was very smart because of its extreme simplicity Miss Catherine LaMaster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh LaMaster became the bride of Dr. Jerome Andrew Eckrich son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Eckrich of Omaha on Saturday morning, June 9 at the St. Mary's Cathedral, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. P. O'Loughlin performed the ceremony in the presence of the two immediate families and a few close friends.

The bride was attended by Miss Sara Apperson as maid of honor who was gowned in an all grey ensemble with hat and accessories to match. Theodore Bleuchal of Omaha served Dr. Eckrich as best man. Miss LaMaster wore a stunning ensemble of midnight blue georgette with hat, gloves and accessories to match and she carried a shower of pink sweet peas.

Immediately following the reading of the nuptial lines, a wedding breakfast was served at the Lincoln hotel for thirty guests. The tables were centered with spring flowers and bridal appointments.

Mrs. Eckrich is a former student of the University of Nebraska where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. She has also attended the Sorbonne in Paris and the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis. Dr. Eckrich is a graduate of the Arts college of Creighton University in Omaha and of the college of medicine of the same school. He is a member of Phi Rho Sigma and Delta Kappa Delta fraternities and was president of the Pan Hellenic board at Creighton, Dr. and Mrs. Eckrich will make their home in Toledo, Ohio.

Frey-McDonald

At a simply arranged ceremony Sunday at 2:30 o'clock, Miss Irene Frey will become the bride of Laurel C. McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McDonald of Blair, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin F. Frey, 2810 South Twenty-seventh street. Only immediate relatives will be present for the ceremony, and the young couple will be unattended.

The Rev. Carl Wilhelm of Tabernacle Christian church will officiate before an altar improvised in front of the fireplace. Ferns and palms will form the background, with tall baskets of roses on either side.

Miss Frey will wear peach georgette, fashioned with cream lace ruffles on the skirt, and sleeveless. Her corsage will be of Ophelia roses, sweet peas, and orange blossoms.

Following a motor trip to the north, Mr. McDonald and his bride will reside in Lincoln. Her traveling costume is a light tan ensemble, with accessories in a matching shade.

The out of town guests will be Mr. and Mrs. William McDonald and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Arenson of Blair.

Lindenmeyer-Bolt

The marriage of Miss Anna Frances Lindemeyer, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. T. A. Lindenmeyer of Beaver City, and Dr. W. J. Bolt, son of George Bolt, will take place in Lincoln at the First Christian church Monday, at high noon. Only the immediate members of the family will be guests and following the ceremony a luncheon wil be served at the Cornhusker hotel. Miss Pearle Matheson of Osceola, and Arnold Kirschman of Wahoo, wil attend the bridal couple. Dr. Bolt and his bride will be at home after June 15 in Tekamah.

Junior League Delegates Tell Of Convention

One of the most important changes in policy made at the national convention of the Junior League of America at Buffalo, N. Y., May 22 to 25, according to Miss Helen Hall and Mrs. L. R. Doyle who have just returned, prohibits the organization backing any political candidate or party as a league. It may, however, promote any legislative measure beneficial to its charities or interests. Miss Hall and Mrs. Doyle returned Saturday morning after visiting in the east after the convention closed.

Another measure passed at the convention provides for American Junior League association club rooms at the Babizon hotel in New York City, where the magazine department of the league will be located. The rooms will occupy two full floors of the hotel. The Junior League of New York also provided for a new club house in the city, to cot $700,000.

The convention was held at the Hotel Statler. The first afternoon was spent registering and in visiting the charity organizations sponsored by the Buffalo league. In the evening a banquet was held. Mrs. Carlton Palmer of New York, the out-going national president, presided. Mrs. Fascett Brown of Nashville, Tenn., the new president, was introduced and roll call of the one hundred and four leagues represented, was taken.

Wednesday was spent at Niagara Falls and group meetings were held. In the afternoon a trip through the gorge was taken and in the evening there was a dinner at the Buffalo Country club.

Group meetings were held all day Thursday and that evening a dinner was held at the Statler hotel.

Friday morning a meeting of the national association was held and the budget for the coming year was discussed.

Thursday noon Mrs. William Hoyt and her daughter, Mrs. Bryant Glenny, president of the Buffalo league, presided at a luncheon for five hundred at the home of Mrs. Hoyt. That evening the delegates dined with the hostess with whom they were billited.

Miss Hall visited in Cleveland, O., and Mrs. Doyle stopped with friends at Monroe, Mich., before returning to Lincoln. Mrs. Thomas Herbert of Cleveland, accompanied Miss Hall to Lincoln for a visit with the Misses Marian and Helen Hall.

Bride of Week and Her Honor Maid

—Portraits by Townsend Studio.

Mrs. Joseph Brown was before her marriage during the past week, Miss Lillian Hall. Her honor maid is Miss Dorothy Lewis of Sioux City, Ia.

Coleman-Stubbs

Miss Fyrne Coleman of Colton, Cal., and Charles Stubbs, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Stubbs of Lincoln, were united in marriage today in Colton, at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Stubbs is a graduate of the University of Nebraska school of agriculture in the class of 1916 and for a number of years has been making his home in Long Beach, Cal., where he is connected with the Pan-American Oil company.

Hill-Burnstein

The marriage of Miss Fannie Hill, daughter of Mrs. Belle Hill, and Jack Burnstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burnstein of Minneapolis, will take place Sunday, June 17, at 4 o'clock at Tifereth Israel synagogue. Invitations have been issued for two hundred and fifty guests.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Rebecca Rosenberg will sing "At Dawning" and "O Promise Me," with a violin obligato by Abraham Hill. Robert Mossholder will play the Lohengrin music for the processional, and the Mendelssohn march for the recessional, accompanied by Abraham Hill.

Mrs. Daniel Hill will be the bride's matron of honor, and Miss Sarah Hill, sister of the bride, will be her maid of honor. The bridesmaids are Misses Selma Lotman, Ruth Zolot, Bess Cohen. Ghita Hill is to be the flower girl, and Harold Grossman will carry the ring.

Henry Carnovitz will be Mr. Burnstein's best man. Earl Hill, David Zolot, and Joe Goldberg will be the groomsmen.

Immediately after the marriage, a family dinner will be served in the parlors of the synagogue. Places will be arranged for sixty-five. In the evening, a reception will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hill, 2637 Washington street.

Mr. Burnstein and his bride will reside in Fort Dodge, Ia.

CONTROL of CANCER

The American Society for the Control of Cancer is authority for the statement that cancer is not as deadly as most people believe, and that if discovered in time it can be cured. The earliest suspicion should mean a call on a physician. When the physician writes a prescription bring it to us to be filled. We are specialists at this work.

defended the English sparrow and told of how we imported these birds to help us when we needed them, to the extent that Nebraska now has a surplus of sparrows.

"Wilson's phalarope is another interesting bird and is unusual as the female is far more beautiful than the male," Mr. Collins said. "The male builds the nest and sits on the eggs while his beautiful wife plays along the shore. Mr. Collins talk was most instructive and spiced with humorous touches.

Miss Geneva Wheeler introduced Miss Clara Hansen; Miss Algena Johnston brought Miss Glady Allen and Miss Anna Wurm brought Miss Jennie Strasheim. Miss Winnifred Devies' guest was Miss Beulah Jones. Miss Mabel Rice's guests were Misses Elsie Rice, Mary Crown and Jerry Compton; Miss Barbara Osborn introduced Miss Caroline Weiters. Miss Margaret Lewis presented Miss Gertrude Pobanz, Dr. Margaret Hammond's guest was Miss Lois Haughey. Miss Faye Sherwin brought Miss Ruth Gaulke and Miss Thelma Spahn was the guest of Miss Esther Snyder.

Miss Helen Stacy, membership chairman, reported Miss Esther Evans, a teacher in the Lincoln schools as a new member.

Miss Dorothy Lefler was chairman of the dinner committee for the meeting and her assistants were Misse Pearl Brown, Jane Schleef, Cecile Shepherd, Esther Snyder and Lillian Threkeld. After the dinner the members enjoyed a large box of candy, the gift of John Beauve of Firth.

About twenty-five reservations for Camp Brewster, June 16-17, were reported by the chairman, Miss Mildred Bryan.

On Monday Miss Lena Madesen Phillips, president of the National federation passed through Lincoln en route to New York city, and a dozen Axis members met her at the train for a delightful visit. Miss Phillips was full of enthusiasm about the New Orleans convention, and invited all the group to meet her there. Miss Phillips was returning from a western trip where she has attended ten conventions of business and professional women's clubs.

BUSINESS WOMEN TO PICNIC AT THE BEACH.

The first picnic meeting of the Business Women's League for the summer will be held on Thursday evening of this week. Capitol Beach will furnish the setting for the event, and Mrs. Anna Crowley is in charge of all preliminaries. Arrangements have been made for admission to the park of all members and guests who meet at the club rooms for the start. The last automobile will leave the club rooms at 6:15. Tables have been reserved and all will be in readiness for the meeting. A business session will follow the out-door dinner. One matter of business to be transacted is the election of delegates to the national convention of the Business and Professional Women's clubs which will meet in New Orleans in July.

Miss Nelle McNiff, retiring president of the league, entertained the retiring cabinet at her home on Thursday evening at the last cabinet meeting of the club year. Those present were Miss Carrie B. Moore, Miss Lydie Kneeland, Miss Helene Gaede, Miss Julia Constancer, Miss Bertha Hugg and Miss Mary Beach. Following a business session the evening was devoted to cards.

Miss Clara Belle Green, a member of the league, died during the past week. She was a member of the office staff at Lincoln General hospital.

Miss Leona Stafford, who has been one of the most active members of the league, visited friends in the city during the week, and left on Saturday for Montana to make her home.

Miss Lyda Hafer writes from Geneva, Neb., that her mother is in serious physical condition and her return to Lincoln is indefinitely delayed.

Mrs. Emma Shurtleff, a member of the recreation department of the league, left on Saturday for Frankfort, Kas., where she will engage in business with her sister, Mrs. Otis Kirby.

A CHILDREN'S PROGRAM TO ORTHOPEDIC INMATES.

A program, directed by Mrs. Eugene Levy, was heard by the children of Orthopedic hospital, Saturday morning. The performance was given by Ruth, Selma, Leo and Thita Hill with Janet Kohn at the piano.

A dance was the offering of Ruth; two readings: "Johnny's History Lesson" and "Little Hannibal," by Selma Hill; "Midnight Bells"—Kreisler and "Seventh Concerto"—Beriot were given by Leo Hill on the violin and two humorous readings: "They Locked Me in the Closet" and "My Broken Dolly," by little Thita Hill.

NEW OFFICERS NAMED BY ZETA DELPHIANS.

Mrs. G. O. Virtue entertained the Zeta Delphian chapter in the garden at her home, 1415 C street Thursday evening at a 6:30 picnic supper. The last meeting of the chapter for this year was held at this time, and officers for the coming year were elected. Mrs. Marguerite L. Corby is the new president; Mrs. Roscoe Abbott, vice president and Miss Flora Johnson, secretary treasurer. The new advisory board consists of Miss Helen Pfeiff, chairman; Miss Dorothy Flitton and Mrs. Hazel Martin. W. C. T. U. PLANS DEMONSTRATION

To Unveil Rolls of Allegiance Thursday at State Capital.

Walcott, Mrs. McGeer and High Will Deliver Brief Addresses.

Flag day demonstration for the upholding of the prohibition amendment will be held Thursday by the Nebraska W. C. T. U. on the north steps of the state capitol. There will be a pageant and the "unrolling" of the rolls of allegiance containing thousands of names.

The meeting is being held to stimulate public interest in the dry issue which may be brought before the public in the coming election. The announcement of the roll of allegiance is intended to reveal the determination of the dry forces to back their stand.

Brief addresses will be made by Dr. C. H. Walcott of the First Baptist church, Rev. F. A. High of the Anti-Saloon league and Mrs. P. T. McGeer of Lincoln. Rev. Paul Calhoun of the First Presbyterian church will deliver the invocation. Music will be furnished by the Umberger orchestra and O. H. Bimson will direct vocal music.

Several participants of the pageant will come from out in the state. Mrs. W. W. Day, state president of the Parent-Teacher association, will impersonate Nebraska and Miss Kathryn Allen of Lincoln, prohibitory law. Mrs. R. E. Harrington of Lincoln will be director.

Expect Outside Delegates.

Automobile delegations are expected from a number of towns, Omaha having signified its intention of sending a large delegation as well as Grand Island and other towns.

The approach of the event leads older workers to "reminisce" upon the events of 1916. The prohibitory amendment petition filed on May 22, that year was the largest filed in the history of the state. More than 67,000 signatures were attested from 90 counties, only two counties not being represented by 5 per cent of their voters. The law required 5 per cent from 54 counties.

The day for filing was set for May 19, and in a pouring rain 300 people, many from out in the state, assembled at the capitol for the occasion. It was found that the governor was out of town. As the law required the petition to be filed with the secretary of state in the presence of the governor, the promoters of the petition, the Nebraska Dry federation, decided, although the governor had left a representative to receive the petitions, to await his return. A moving picture of the crowd was taken and the two large boxes of petitions were returned to the safety vault and were quietly filed three days later.

Suit Over Title.

Another interesting event occured a few weeks later when the dry federation brought suit against the attorney general to compel him to use an acceptable ballot title to the prohibitory amendment. The forces on both sides of the question submitted titles. The attorney general decided upon a title which was eminently unsatisfactory to the dry forces, and the district court decided against him. The supreme court sustained the decision.

The Lincoln unions are planning to keep open house Thursday at the headquarters, 1615 F street. The presidents of the different unions assisted by women from their union will act as a reception committee.

Central union—Mrs. Allie Jackson assisted by Mrs. T. H. Cromwell and Mrs. C. L. Martz; Capitol union, Mrs. Agnes D. Covey, Mrs. T. A. Marcy; University Place union, Mrs. John M. Taylor, Mrs. Anna Parker, Mrs. William Waldorf and Mrs. Sara Mitchell.

DAVID CITY WEDDING

BEATRICE, Neb., June 9—Announcement has been received here of the marriage of Roy L. Loy and Miss Cleo Given Cubby, early in the week at David City. The bride is a graduate of David City high school. The groom attended high school here and graduated. After a wedding trip the young couple will return and make their home at David City.

Brides of The Past Week

—Portraits by Hauck-Skoglund.

Two brides of the past week are Mrs. Robert Rohrig, who before her marriage on June 3 was Miss Kathryn Eitel, and Mrs. Walter Ramer, who was Miss Pauline Koch prior to her marriage which was solemnized June 3.

Texas Co-eds Spend Average $516.88 For Clothes During Year

AUSTIN Tex., June 9—(INS)—The average expenditure of a University of Texas co-ed during the entire year for clothing is estimated to be $516.88, according to budget kept by 30 girl students in advanced classes in clothing in the department of home economics of the university. Itemized budgets turned in by each of the 30 girls indicate that the maximum expenditure reached a total of $1,127.50 and the minimum was $244.

A percentage analysis of the budget of the average girl's yearly expenditures indicates that the greatest amount or 54 per cent of her money goes for outer clothing, according to Miss Lucy Rathbone, adjunct professor of home economics in the university and instructor in advanced clothing. The second highest amount is 15 per cent, which goes for shoes. Underclothing requires 11 per cent of the budget; hats 8 per cent; hose 7 per cent and accessories take the remaining 5 per cent.

MODERN EVE
The SHOPPER

Among the Other

NICE things I found at Harris-Goar's very reasonably priced were summery porch frocks of dimity and organdy at $1.95 to $3.95, sleeveless wash silks in pastel colors, $6.85, and soft patent slippers trimmed in genuine snake skin for $8.95. These and many other beautiful pieces of wearing apparel priced very low.

"Champe Says—"

"NO other permanent wavers in the Middle West approach Champe's in popularity—this is proven by the 100 permanent waves we give every day. Why this large volume? Because Champe's offer you the most important thing in assuring you a perfect permanent wave—EXPERIENCED OPERATORS! It's not the machine or method employed, nor the price you pay, that guarantees you a beautiful permanent—it's the operator's experience . . . her skill . . . her knowledge. The reason for our low price is no secret. Champe's do a big business—large volume and good management always mean a low cost to you. Champe's permanent wave $5.00 (guaranteed workmanship). Same expert operators who wrapped your last three or four permanents." Champe's, second floor (upstairs), 1229 N street.

If You Want To Make

THE bride happy by the bestowal of some snappy costume jewelry, a decidedly gorgeous array of this can be seen at Hovland-Swanson's. Necklaces of pearl, chenelle, cut crystal, amber and even modernistic metal are among this group. Some are choker, some long. Bracelets of rock crystal, or just modern. Cigaret cases and lighters, fancy doreens, gorgeous purses of silk, moire, metal craft, leather alligator, etc., some enamel mesh bags of modern trend . . . . Indeed I could rave on and on, but I must tell you that there are two groups which are especially priced. Some jewelry from $3.95 to $10.00 priced at $1.29. For $1.95 you may buy some purses which before were much higher.

Mrs. Champe Says:

"WILL yours be just a permanent wave—or perfection? There's never any question about a perfect permanent wave with the Frederic Vita-Tonic process. Patterned Linens in Prints

OR hand-blocked effects are expected to attain noteworthy popularity in separate coats which may be worn with the sports dress. In fact, the mode of the separate coat in a wash fabric is cited for marked importance this season, and it is believed that linens will assume prominence in this group. Some are hand blocked and printed coats with matching solid color stitched hats.

Hats For Every

Going Away Folks Will Need

A SUPPLY of correspondence paper, an address book, a trip book, a writing case, a fountain pen, a photo album, a road map and few card games to while away vacation hours. These and many other things that make the vacation most enjoyble are ready for your selection at Tucker-Shean's, 1123 O street.

I Suppose

ONE of the reasons why Blue Moon hose are so well represented in each and every girl's wardrobe is the exceptionally low price. These exquisitely sheer hose are actually selling at Orkin's for $1.50 and $1.95.

Club Secretaries

AND other folks who have the occasion to send out quantities of notices and letters will find multigraph and mimeograph letters are an economical means of accomplishing this. Secured at the Betzer Co., located at 133 South Twlfth street.

The Winter Clothing You

SEND to the Peerless Cleaners to be cleaned before storage time will return to you, sealed tight in mothproof bags and all you have to do is hang them away. This service does not cost you extra, but is free to those having winter garments cleaned. Call B6731.

Your Vacation

WARDROBE will be lacking indeed if you have not included some Santoy straw shoes from Magee's. Your vacation sport clothes need just the completion that these give. A pair of colored French sandals should be added for street wear. See the variety of colors in these at Magee's. While you're there, better snap up a bargain. You know those $1.95 Magee's de luxe chiffon hose are selling three pairs for $5.50. You'll never imagine the beauty of some of the hose I saw there. Fifty-seven gauge silk—and they tell me that's the finest weave possible—in colors as rare as such a hose itself. Ideal for party wear delightful as a bride's gift Priced at $3.95.

The Summer Bride

IS accorded much attention this week. For her lingerie, white is relieved with the dark ochre lace so widely featured. Many of the real laces and fine drawn work and applique are utilized for trimming bridal garments which are a compromise between tailored and formal styles. Oyster white satin with cream net, peach color and blue are offered in sets, and the trimming laces are arranged in unconventional geometric and modern designs.

"Champe Says—"

"HERE'S the proper way to shampoo your hair: Wet your hair down with warm water, using a spray, if possible; use an olive oil base castile soap; make your lather or suds in a bowl, never touching the bar to the hair. Apply lather or suds to hair and rub hair and scalp vigorously with finger tips. Rinse well with warm water, followed by another soaping. Then rinse and rerinse thoroughly until every particle of soap is removed from the hair. No vinegar or lemon rinses necessary. Most important—that every bit of soap is rinsed from the hair—and you'll have beautiful hair!" Champe's, second floor, 1229 N street.

Believe It Or Not

THERE'S nothing I like better than shopping—especially when I'm spending your money, to help you obtain the season's latest merchandise. Let me help you out with your spring shopping, your wedding trousseau, your vacation wardrobe—or just anything. Write to

Carol Rickert, Totally Blind Since Birth, Amazes Lincoln Audience As An Entertainer

To most of us, if we were denied the joys of vision, the world would be an empty affair, with the hope of attaining real happiness sadly dimmed. But such is not the case with Carol Rickert, a little woman of 28 years who has come to Lincoln to make her home. Although totally blind since birth, this little lady has cheerfully taken the role to which she was cast and moulded for herself a world of beauty and pleasure greater than most of her fellowmen enjoy with their faculties unimpaired.

In her first appearance open to the public in this city Friday night at the Bethany Christian church, Miss Rickert was given an enthusiastic welcome indicative of her talent and genius. This was without the knowledge on the part of her hearers of the true extent of her achievements and her long bitter struggleto gain them.

Aside from the quality of her performance which was never to be questioned, the varietyof her entertainment was striking. Her program included dramatic readings of finish, whistling numbers and piano and vocal selections. All were rendered with a deftness and skill unexpected from a person who has never seen a rayof light.

Gave Original Readings.

The crowd, which filled the first floor of the church, could learn about as much of Miss Rickert from her reading as by an interview. The moment she appeared, smiling gently and unaffectedly she endeared herself to her hearers.

Sympathy with her fellow beings coupled with a keen sense of humor was revealed in Miss Rickert's readings which were largely original. An understanding of human nature was the basis of her selections which concerned the idle gossip of a back fece talk and black-faced soliliquies, "Stay in Yo Own Back Yahd," "Higheh Cultuhe," and "Ma Curley Headed Baby."

More interesting than her readings were her combined piano and reading selections, also largely original. Some scintillating and lively whistling was interspersed in these which were of a humorous nature. Another selection was a combined reading and whistling rendition which received enthusiastic acclaim from the audience. It was "Chicken Little," enlivened with the songs of the various birdies encountered in the tale.

Last but not least were piano and vocal numbers and some purely piano numbers. Here was proof of the extraordinary talents of Miss Rickert. With the ease and skill of an accomplished pianist, she played several difficult numbers, concluding with Lieberstraum by Liszt although she had never seen a note on a printed score. She possesses what musicians call absolute pitch.

Interviewed Helen Keller.

In addition to her talents as an entertainer which has won her fame at numerous major radio broadcasting stations, Miss Rickert has ability in the field of journalism, having been a New York correspondent of the Kansas City Star. In that capacity she once held an interview with Helen Keller with whom her brilliant rise to achievement presents a striking parallel.

One of her radio programs from Chicago, drew a telegram of commendation with Luther Burbank, which resulted in the formation of a friendship between the two that lasted until the death of the Californian.

In addition to newspaper work at various places, Miss Rickert's bent toward writing has resulted in her publishing a book of poems, "To My Pal", and several special articles. She earned money to carry on her education chiefly by means of work in journalism and entertaining.

"Do you know how I write my newspaper stories?" she queried. "I write them in my very own style and make them different from the newspaperish way as much as possible," she said. Miss Rickert is an advocate of spontaneity in most things. "I just get a kick out of things," she says. "I love to do things for the fun of doing them. The secret of real entertainment is naturalness."

Born In Kansas.

While in New York City, Miss Rickert studied the art of theatrical entertainment under Frank La Forge. She received engagements with some of the theaters there with considerable success.

When she was 3 years old, Miss Rickert attended a school for the blind in Kansas where she was born. She learned to read through the Braille system at Lawrence, Kas., and learned to write by the New York point method, the means Miss Keller used to learn to read and write. Most of the literature now printed with the Braille method which is now extensive, has been read by Miss Rickert.

At the age of 3 Miss Rickert began her studies of the piano. At Kansas City she took advanced studies under Floyd Robbins. At the same place she studied expression in the Gertrude Concannon school and began her work in journalism.

Miss Rickert started to develop her extraordinary talent for whistling at the age of 5. "Prim the first I loved the birds," Miss Rickert says. "I kept listening to those fellows and decided that I would like to get acquainted with them. I managed to stick around long enough to learn their talk." Miss Rickert is now living in Lincoln, staying with Mrs. L. P. Pettit, 6927 Colby street.

Here Are The Winners In The $325.00 Prize Contest

AFTER reading carefully the hundreds of entries submitted in the contest for the best letter on GOOCH'S BEST Bread, and weighing their respective merits the judges have finally settled on the winners for the twenty-eight prizes.

The letters to which the prizes were awarded were selected because—first of all— they gave an honest, sincere, genuine, creditable and convincing record of their personal experience with GOOCH'S from the standpoint of the user. Secondly, because they presented this experience in an interesting and original manner.

There were hundreds of letter of almost equal merit in that they conformed with the rules of the contest and contained the right sort of material. Out of these the letters selected for prizes were the ones in which the material was written up with some touch of originality and humanness that made it more interesting reading and, therefore, more convincing than the others.

The other prize-winning letters with a picture of their authors will appear during the coming week.

WHY I USE GOOCH'S BEST BREAD

I was raised on a farm by a mother who always baked her own bread, and as a result had an idea that I could never stand a steady diet of so-called "Baker's Bread". When I first came to Lincoln after my marriage I tried various kinds of bread until I found Gooch's and from that day on I have used no other kind.

After all, what does one ask for in a bread? An agreeable taste, a fine texture, and keeping qualities are the principal requirements, and in all of these Gooch's stands the test. The fresh wholesome taste, the fine cake-like texture that slices so evenly and so few crumbs, and the fact that the last slice on the loaf is just as tasty as the first are proof conclusive of Gooch's quality. Furthermore, I have been unable to find another bread that toasts as satisfactorily as Gooch's. Friend husband's breakfast is not complete without it.

These reasons together with the fact that it is made and recommended by a firm as well and favorably known as the Gooch Food Products Company should make Gooch's Best Bread the choice of every Lincoln housewife.

THE JUDGES

Four prominent Lincoln people especially qualified for this purpose. They are:

MRS. FLORENCE McREYNOLDS WILLIAMS
Editor of the Home Circle and Young People's Department of the Nebraska Farmer.

MISS HELEN TUTTLE
The Past President of the Lincoln Woman's Club.

MR. W. J. KIRKBRIDE
Manager of Robert s Dairy Co.

W. T. HEALEY
Advertising Manager, Gold & Co.

The above people were chosen to act as judges, knowing that they would look at the letters from all angles. We don't believe it would have been possible to have found four others, whose judgment, knowledge, sincerity, and integrity could have qualified them more perfectly for the task.

Minerva's Mail

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

The Better They Are the Harder They Fall, Says One Girl In a Plea For Tolerance—A Spiritual Foundation Can Be Given the Boy By His Mother When Church Attendance Is Unpopular With Him.

The Better Girls.

Personally I'd rather know I helped here and there and erred on the side of forgiving too much. Surely the girl in the letter below doesn't need intolerance. She needs love and courage.

Dear Minerva: I have been reading many letters in your Mail from people who are wholly intolerant of the girl, who makes missteps and who say terrible things about girls leading boys astray deliberately. Also one or two people have said that Minerva is too tolerant with the young people.

I surely disagree to all that. The better girls are the harder they fall, it seems to me. The sophisticated know-it-all kind of girl isn't likely to get into trouble.

I am a young mother, nineteen, and have a year-old boy. Let's hope I can teach him to be stronger than some men. I wrote to you Minerva about a year and a half ago, you may not remember me. I was a desperate girl at that time. And Minerva, your kindly, understanding advice was my only comfort at that time. I was one of the unfortunate girls who loved too well and not wisely. I was and am a country girl, was teaching country school at that time. I was always timid and had known very little of men or boys. I met a man who seemed to me the most wonderful man in the world. I was completely swept off my feet by forces I know nothing of. I was living with a very strict aunt, and had to slip out nights to meet this man, for she would not permit me to keep company with anyone. We were to have been married in the spring, he said, and I felt as if we were already married. I had a ring which I wore about my neck. Minerva when I discovered there was to be a baby I told him we would have to marry a little earlier than we had planned. He had set the wedding date as spring so he could get a vacation and we could take a glorious honeymoon trip. Then Minerva, he confessed that he was still a married man, that his wife in a distant city had not as yet consented to a divorce. He was a weakling in my time of need, though he still professed to love me. I urged him to leave before I told my aunt for I feared the wrath of the people in my community. He did this, and I was left to face the hardships alone. He sent me quite a large sum of money to help me out, but I put it in the bank and haven't touched it, but will use it for the baby some day. He has since that time sent me money, which I also bank for the baby.

I went through a horrible time. My aunt wanted me to go away and have the baby adopted out, or not go through with it. But I could not do this. I stayed home and faced the sneers of our neighbors. But now my aunt loves the baby too and we are not so unhappy. The man wrote my aunt finally that he expected to get a divorce in a few months and would come for me. But Minerva I don't want him now.

If I had not had your comforting letters and advice, I would never have had the strength to go through with my ordeal. I know I am not fundamentally a bad girl. I was just ignorant, entirely untaught. The man was not vicious, just weak. My great ambition is to train my boy to be strong and big-minded and understanding and tolerant. For Minerva, there is a lot of tolerance needed in this old world. And I am thankful that you have so big a share of this needed quality. DISHEARTENED.

His Spiritual Training.

Dear Minerva: I have read your Mail for many years and have always enjoyed it, especially your good advice to others. Now I am coming to you for advice also, and hope to see this in print soon.

We have been married eight years and have a boy six years old. My trouble is this: I am a German Lutheran, was brought up in a strict religious family. My husband goes to no church whatever, has only been to church with me once, that was Christmas eve.

Our baby was baptized in the Lutheran church and I want to bring him up to be a good boy, but when I ask him now to go to church with me, he says, "It'll go if Daddy does". But daddy will not go. I have said and have done everything I can think of to make Daddy go, even begged him with tears in my eyes to go, but he flatly refuses, says he will go one of these days but the day never comes. I have offered to go to some other church, if he would rather go there, but he always has some excuse.

It breaks my heart when I go to church alone, and see other husbands and wives there with their kiddies and wonder why we can't be that way. Please tell me what to do. I thank you.—A READER.

A. Your husband's stand is unfortunate. There are some things that cannot be forced. I would judge that this is one of them. He may change gradually, through your influence, or he may not. All you can do in that direction is to continue an effort in that direction, but make it a calm educational campaign, never making a direct issue of it, or resorting to nagging. For, after all, we all have a right to our dividual opinions, and no one person can make over another one.

With the boy, you can surely train him yourself in a Christian way. Since you cannot persuade him at present to go to Sunday school or church, teach him at home. Try to make his Bible lessons of such interest to him that they will stimulate in him an interest in church itself, and at any rate will always remain in his mind as a guidance in later years. The church itself can do no more than that.

I realize that you desire to train him in the church-going habit. Right you are that this is a stable, balance-wheel which is of great value to a child. However forcing him to go would mean nothing. I know many adults who have turned completely from the church and all things pertaining to the church simply because church-going was made to them an irksome task in their childhood days.

Better by far that you give your boy his religious training yourself. It will be of more lasting and real value to him if your can gently and gradually instill in his mind a love of the Bible stories, an appreciation of the spiritual side of life. When he is older he will recognize the connection which the church has with his teachings. You, with your church background, should be equipped to teach him in the right way. Make the Bible stories interesting to him. Read him stories of the great men of history to whom the spiritual life had a big meaning. You need not despair, and must not, because present circumstances make it impossible for you to interest him, or his father in church going. A boy remembers his mother's loving teachings. But to force him to go to church, when as yet it means nothing in itself to him, would not only be valueless, but actually harmful.

Thought Stimulating.

Dear Minerva; The letters of Depressed,' "Good Speech", "Future Thought." and "Ardent', in the mail of Sunday, May 20, radiate the tene of "The Fundamentalists' Last Stand." The fundamentalists are dying a hard death. Their so-called infallible "eye for eye" theory, and love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind, and thy neilghbor as thyself,' that church will I join with all my heart and with all my soul.'

Many of our broadest and most intelligent men today, from all walks of life, cannot, after careful study, accept the Bible as the infallible word of God. Fundamentalists attempt to inform us that unless we do accept it as such, we are lost — we must accept the entire volume, or none. In regard to other matters, we discriminate and use judgment, for the mind that can see nothing but two opposite extremes of a subject, is adjudged defective. Any fundamentalist who goes to extremes is just as narrow as a modernist or freethinker who does the same. And there are thousands of the latter who are just as good Christians as there are of the former. As an illustration, quoted from a prominent minister and Bible scholar, when a man is about to travel through a strange country he does not decide beforehand that it is either all fertile or all barren, and then go through with his eyes closed to everything that is contrary to his preconception.

Few will contradict the statement that the Bible is one of the greatest books that has ever been written, and contains invaluable history as to the development of humanity as well as moral teachings that have never been surpassed. If we conscientiously strive to live up to the moral teachings, it is inconsistent to state that those who use their own judgment as to the authenticity of the historic parts are lost. If it were a single book, the case would be different, but it is a collection of sixty-six books, written by human hands, and representing different lands, different languages, different ages, some of them a thousand years apart, different degrees of civilization, different conditions of life, different stages of religious development ,and composed of legend, myth, history, biography, laws, predictions, proverbs, poetry in various forms, ecclesiastical rituals, didactic teachings, and nearly every known form of literature. It is a collection of the survival of the best literature of the Jewish people for a thousand years, and which came into existence in the same natural ways that all literature arises. The Hebrew language at the time the Old Testament books came into existence, and for some centuries after, was not capable of becoming the medium of an infallible revelation. The language was written in consonant outline only, and its vowels are all later additions. It has been translated from Aramic to Greek, and from Greek to English and other languages, and to be infallible these translations would need be miraculously guarded against possible error. Due to the lack of printing equipment, it was hand written, and all history that relies upon the process of hand-copying during centuries is liable to a certain amount of uncertainty. When a dozen of us interpret a text of scripture in a dozen different ways, which is very common, how can we prove that the book from where it comes is infallible? And who has the right to shout out that his, or her, interpretation is the only true method? The Christian world is divided into two or three hundred sects, all with a different interpretation, and each claiming infallibility. When we tell honest men they must believe it all or reject it all, that they must pretend to believe what they cannot believe unless they discard all reason, it is then we fetter their intellects and prepare them for acceptance of Ingersoll's theories.

The statistics showing that less than half of our population have church affiliations should not be alarming; on the other hand, it only shows the large field and wonderful opportunities for the teaching of true religion. Mankind generally believes in a Divine Creator, in a humanitarian doctrine such as Christ taught and lived, and they will eagerly accept it when it is presented to them in the true light. The elimination of the teaching of science in our public schools will result in the most severe blow to the progress of religion and civilization the world has yet known. The fears that any certain religious denomination will gain political control and bring about the end of the world, are without foundation. One certain denomination in power of politics would create no greater hazards for the country than would another. Past history shows that it would be unhealthy for the people to have anl denomination in absolute control. As in our food diet, we should have a well-balanced ration. Too much power might result in imperialism and intolerance, regardless of the sect in whom it was vested. We need law enforcement, but our greatest need is more sane laws and fewer insane ones. Too many Blue Laws are as detrimental as too few. Let's discard our narrow methods of looking at matters in opposite extremes, and endeavor to preserve reverence for the Bible and Christianity that is based upon its moral teachings and the life of Christ. He was a modernist, and the only man in the Bible to practice what he preached. The people of that time were alarmed because Christ taught different doctrines than they were accustomed to, and tried to show them a new and better method of winning converts to the church. They even went so far as to crucify Him on the grounds of rebellion. People today are alarmed over the fact that many are becoming modernists, and accuse them of being disbelievers, infidels and of trying to discredit the Word of God. The truth of the matter is, many of these modernists have a much higher conception of the divine works of God, than do those who can see only in extremes. T. BARTLEY.

Mary E. Macfarlane Dobson, '07, received the master of arts degree, and Robert Eugene Etzelmiller, '23, the degree of master of science, at the University of Nebraska commencement June 2. Mrs. Dobson, did her graduate work in educational psychology and measurements and Mr. Etzelmiller in chemistry.

Ninety students were enrolled in the sixth Cotner youn people's conference which met on the campus, June 4-10. The conference was sponsored by the department of religious education of the United Christian Missionary society, Cotner college co-operating. Glenn McRae, '18, superintendent of religious education for the Disciples of Christ in the northern district, was director of the conference. The faculty of thirteen included Virgil A. Sly, '27, superintendent of religious education for the Rocky mountain district, Denver, Colo., Mrs. Hugh Lomax, '25, Lincoln; Miss Mary E. White, '25, general secretary, Nebraska Christian Women's Missionary society, Lincoln; Mrs. Glenn McRae, '18, Lincoln; Miss Wenona Wilkinson, '11, missionary on furlough from China; Rev. Harold E. Fey, '22, minister to the First Christian church, Hastings, Miss Ida Mae Irvin, ex'14, director of religious education, University Christian church Champaign, Ill.; Mrs. Barton A. Johnson, ex'25, Lincoln.

WESLEYAN NOTES.

Professor and Mrs. E. Glenn Callen will motor to McCook this week-end and spend a few days with friends.

legendary and mythological doctrines have been worn threadbare for some time, but the few remaining followers have been desperately grabbing at straws, until now the straw pile is almost exhausted, and their end is near. Modernism, which is ushering in the true religion, is rapidly gaining favor, as statistics show. Only about forty percent of our population today professes any church affiliations. Of this per cent a great number are modernists, regardless of denomination, who possess sufficient intelligence to see the true light. Divide the remainder into 175 different sects, and see how astonishingly small your following of fundamentalists. And each day the number is diminishing. It is little wonder they are alarmed, but they are so short-sighted they fail to see that in spite of the fact that they believe the world is turning pagan, we are progressing as rapidly or more so than ever, even in the face of these difficulties.

It was recently my privilege to hear a talk given by a member of the California Bible League (name furnished on request). This fellow was a fundamentalist preacher, and an alarmist, and the talk he gave reminded me of the letters I have mentioned above. His subject was advertised as "Mussolini and the Dawning of a New Day, or My Escape from Roman Prison." The attendance was very light and the collection much lighter, as we have learned about what to expect when these fundamentalists endeavor to air their views. The meeting closed after a frantic effort to raise funds and get signers to a petition to eliminate the teaching of science on our public schools. It was merely a camouflaged scheme to knock Al Smith for president.

Judging from the advertised subject, we took it for granted that the Reverend had actually been imprisoned in Rome and through divine interception had effected a miraculous escape, but his talk revealed that he had only been threatened with arrest for attempting to get a glimpse of the great Mussolini, and after a thorough searching was released upon recommendation from an Italian clothing merchant whom the Reverend had promised his own patronage and that of friends during their visit in Rome. He compared Mussolini to the anti-Christ the Bible predicts will appear shortly before the Second Coming of Christ, cited the fact that he is guarded by some supernatural power, in that seven attempts to take his life have been futile, and that he has risen from a nobody to a great power, and strives to rule the world. This complies so thoroughly with the Bible prophecy that the Reverend is inclined to believe Mussolini might possibly be the man although, of course, he could not for the Pope of Rome and Mussolini (if this should be a fulfillment of the prophecy) would soon take control of the United States, and then according to scripture, Christ would make his second appearance and bring the world to an end. The Reverend was evidently not familiar with the fact that Mussolini and the Pope are today at sword's point. And if this should happen to be a fulfillment of the prophecy, all the electioneering possible would not defeat Smith, for if it were intended this way, his election could not be prevented. No human power could successfully combat the fulfilment of inspired prophecies.

From authentic sources we learn that Abraham Lincoln once said, when questioned why he had not united with any church: 'When any church will inscribe over it's alter, as it's sole qualification for membership, the Savior's condensed statement of the substance of both law and gospel, 'Thou shalt

Alliance Celebrates in June the Fortieth Anniversary of the Coming of the Railroad, Which Changed Northwest Nebraska from a Frontier Country to a Rich Farming Area

Right: One of the first houses to be built where Alliance now stands. Henry Beach and family are seen in front with yoke of oxen. Beach is still living in Alliance.

Old time Burlington locomotive, similar to first engine to pull into Alliance on Jan. 27, 1888, will be displayed at fortieth anniversary of the coming of the railroad celebration at Alliance June 20.

Below, this B-1 passenger engine will be on sidetrack along side of old time engine.

Alliance in 1880, shortly before Burlington railroad was built into city and into Northwest Nebraska. Livery stable and saloon were "headquarters" in eighties for many cowboys.

When the railroad entered, the city began to grow and prosper.

Right. Scene in great range country east of Alliance. East and south of Alliance is range country and north and west is fertile grain and potatoe raising land.

BY MARK WERNER.

Alliance will have a double celebration Wednesday, June 20, the fortieth anniversary of the coming of the Burlington railroad into the village it then was, and the opening day of the American Legion rodeo.

The young folks will find much amusement in the day. The older ones will enjoy their tales of pioneer times, of the county seat fight in Box Butte county, the industrial changes in northwest Nebraska after the railroad had opened northwest Nebraska to progress, of the growth of Alliance, and of the moving of the Hemingford court house into Alliance.

Alliance of something more than forty years ago was much like other frontier towns. The little group of houses and ramshackle store buildings was the gathering place of cow punchers from northwest Nebraska. The country roundabout was typically western, especially when bad men on their fleet ponies and six-shooters strapped to their belts, came out of the Black Hills to hold up stage coaches and hostile Indians hoyered about.

Then the news reached the hard-boiled little western town that the railroad was coming westward. Edward Gillette, who was superintendent of the Alliance division of the Burlington when the railroad did come in and secured a foothold, vividly describes the work of constructing the line through the sandhills.

Hear Whistle's Blasts.

After many weary months of construction work up through the great range country of central western Nebraska, the shriek of the construction train could be heard in Alliance. As the whistle's piercing blasts became louder as the train approached Box Butte county, it was real music to the ears of those early settlers of a country that was destined to become a rich and productive domain of potato, wheat, corn, alfalfa and stock raising.

The coming of the Burlington railroad into Alliance and northwest Nebraska marked an epoch in the history of this corner of the state. From that time on it developed and progressed. Its unexploited resources began to evidence themselves as the railroad business increased.

The first rail was laid in Alliance on the cold bleak day of January 27, 1888. It was the occasion of much cheering when the old-fashioned engine puffed up alongside a rudely-constructed frame station. Only a tri-weekly accommodation train came into Alliance for a considerable time.

First Passenger Train.

The first passenger train for Alliance was an excursion from the east on the morning of February 25. Five dollars for the round trip to Alliance from Omaha and all points in eastern Nebraska was charged. A lot sale was scheduled by the Lincoln Land company, which had seen the budding opportunities developing in the vicinity of the little western village. The company had acquired and laid out much land about the few buildings. This was sold with success by the company to a horde of settlers who took Horace Greeley's advice and came from the eastern part of the state.

During the forty years that have elapsed Alliance has grown into a busy, thriving city of large buildings, factories and enormous railroad shops. The surrounding country is well settled with ambitious farmers and ranchmen, many of whom have made fortunes on their Box Butte county land.

This unusual development of Box Butte county and western Nebraska will be noted by the visitors to Alliance on June 20, when the fortieth anniversary of the coming of the Burlington to Alliance will be celebrated. This is also the day of the big three day west Nebraska rodeo and round up, sponsored by Alliance legionnaires. Six bands, a big epoch parade, and the wild west show are some o fthe features that will entertain and at the same time revive memories of the early days.

Ex-Superintendent Gillette of the Burlington here, now retired, living at Sheridan, Wyo., tells the following of his work with the construction gang:

In January, 1885, we started the line for the northwest from Broken Bow. The weather was extremely cold and blizzards of frequent occurence. Corn was ten cents a bushel, and the cheapest fuel available.

We were on the line every day and in a short time had pushed the railroad to the Middle Fork of Loup river. Following this stream we came to the Rankin ranch where the cowboys were amazed to see a railroad party in that wild region, and did not believe the railroad would ever be built. The cowboys gave us much information in regard to the Sand Hill country, stating that at Dock Lake, now called Whitman there was an unoccupied log cabin.

While camped where Seneca is located, an old time trapper appeared, stating that he was going to trap the upper part of the steam for beaver. We met him a month later with 125 beaver pelts, a good catch even for the old time trappers of a century ago.

We were getting so far from our base of supplies that it was determined to cache enough provisions in the cabin at Dock Lake to last us several months, and this was done.

A survey party was sent ahead running preliminary lines for our information and we followed on with the location. When we arrived at Dock Lake, word came back from the preliminary party that there was much dissatisfaction on account of having nothing to burn except wet buffalo chips and a few cherry roots found in the Sand Hills.

Horses Save Outfit.

I sent three teams to the Middle Loup river for wood. On returning to camp a blizzard occurred. The teamsters plugged ahead until the head team stopped and would not proceed; the teamster got down to see what the matter was and tripped over one of the guy ropes to the horse tent. The horses had simply brought the outfit into camp.

The white tents and blinding snow were too much for human eyes. Both camps were supplied with good dry ash thereafter, without which the survey would have been difficult to make.

Stakes were of no use in pinning down the tents in the sand, so we bored holes in a board then ran the guy ropes through the holes and buried the board deep enough in the sand to keep the tent from blowing away. By bracing the back pole in the tents, which were always pitched facing the southeast, we were able to keep our shelter in the worst blizzards.

For water we dug wells at the west end of the lakes, finding it better there than elsewhere, probably on account of the greater distance it had seeped through the sand.

Game was plentiful—a band of about seventy-five elk was seen—deer and antelope were numerous, while in the spring countless water fowl came to the lakes to breed. We shot many geese and brant; ducks were too small to bother with, and the swans were not molested.

Cook Leaves Camp.

I hired a cook at the Rankin Seven Bar ranch, named Billy Simmons, as our cook had to leave to prove up on a claim. Simmons was a good cook, always pleasant, a fine combination, and a good shot as well. As we always ate our lunch out on the line, the cook had ample time to do the hunting necessary to keep supplied with meat. Billy kept a diary; when he finally reached the Box Butte county, he informed me that he had shot 104 deer and antelope for the camp while he were in the Sand Hills. He had charged up the cartridges to the B. & M. and believe it was the cheapest meat the railroad ever bought.

We had a cowboy for a mail rider, a part of the time using North Platte and later Camp Clark as our post office. Milt Dodge, the mail rider, brought a young unbroken horse to camp, which he was going to break a little later. The horse was left at camp and the cook, who was something of a rider, concluded to ride the horse at a time when the party was out on the line. The result: He finally was bucked off and fell into the well, which was unusually deep. He could not climb out and remained there until the party returned to camp. The serious part of this performance was a late supper. When the mail rider returned, he rode that horse as fast as he could travel for about twenty miles along the survey. On returning to camp the horse appeared well broken.

No Settlers Along Route.

There was not a settler on our route or a white person seen from the time we left the Loup until rising onto the Box Butte Table.

We did see an old Sioux Indian who was a member of a Sioux party going back to their reservation. These Indians stole all our stock and the old Indian was sent to spy on us and no doubt to negotiate for a return of the property. By my showing him six silver dollars, the stock was driven back to camp that eve-

Alliance Will Hold Big Celebration to Mark Anniversary of Coming of Railroad Forty Years Ago

Alliance and the northwest part of Nebraska as it was and as it is will be the theme of the celebration to be held there June 20, when persons will come from many miles for the jubilee in connection with the fortieth anniversary of the coming of the Burlington to Alliance and the American Legion rodeo. The first three pictures show floats of the big epoch parade, depicting forty years of progress in Alliance, which had its inception in the arrival of the railroad. They are typical of the winning of the west, and of the frontier of a generation and more ago. The picture fourth from the left shows one of the splendid sets of improvements on the present day ranches and warms near Alliance. This is the historical Star ranch near Ellsworth. On the extreme right is a typical Box Butte county field of grain, taken on a farm near Alliance. Visitors at the celebration will see many instances of the agricultural development of a country once given over entirely to ranch life. On the lower left is a brass band from Hemingford, as it appeared at a celebration in Alliance in the nineties.

ning. The old Indian, by making many waves with his arm, conveyed the idea that he had gone over a number of divides to find the stock and by exhaustive breathing, pointing to his pony and himself, indicated they were playe dout. After getting the money he departed and we were not molested again.

In the late spring flies and mosquitoes were terrific. It was heavenly to get out of the Sand Hills onto Box Butte where these insects were left behind.

Upon coming onto the Box Butte country a woman appeared in the door of "a little old sod shanty on the plains," as the song goes. The boys surveying the line close by lined up, waved their hats and gave the woman three cheers.

Editor Makes Discovery.

A settler named Joe Hare, who later lived at Hemingford, published a small paper. He spent considerable time in following the railroad lines we surveyed. These stakes were numbered on one side and lettered on the back. AL stood for "A Location." When the alphabet was exhausted, AA and BB were used. It was customary also to put the engineer's initials on the final location stakes. It so happened that the stakes on the last location were marked "BBL, EG." Mr. Hare after much study figured out that these letters stood for Box Butte Line and that EG stood for easy grades. He announced this discovery in big headlines and assured the people that the railroad was actually coming.

The county seat war between Hemingford and Alliance is an interesting part of the history of Alliance and the facts can be obtained now from the old settlers. Joe Hare, the editor, in order to push his townsite, gave half his land to the Lincoln Land company, and later the other half, so keen was the desire to win. Having nothing left, he packed his outfit in a wagon, "hit" for the northwest and finally landed at Hill City in the Black Hills, where for a number of years he published a newspaper.

We ran the line some distance west of where Alliance was later located apparently pointing to a location up the Running Water or Niobrara river in the direction of central Wyoming.

Water Was Expensive.

The settlers on the Box Butte table were up against it for water. In places deep wells were necessary. A charge of five cents per person and twenty-five cents for a horse was made by some settlers to help pay for an expensive well, but this was not generally the case.

Riding up to a settler's place one hot day, I asked for water for myself and horse. The people were foreigners. The well was pointed out and I proceeded to unwind the windlass. The well was deep and as the rope was about at its end the woman rushed out of the house yelling and pointing at the well. I looked just in time to see the end of the rope disappear down the well. I was glad to not understand the language used. The woman rustled around getting an old clothes line and other pieces of rope, while I added my lariat. Tying this to a big bucket, she motioned me to get in, and she would let me down the well and get the lost rope. My lariat was all right, but the old clothes line appeared like taking chances. As she was willing to trust me in the bucket, I was not to be outdone in this particular, so insisted that the woman get in the bucket and I would do the work. This Alfonse-Gaston performance produced no results. Finally I got some wire from the fence, twisted it into a number of hooks, attached it to the rope and fished for a couple of hours—it seemed longer. Many times I would get the lost rope almost within reach when it would slip off the hook and disappear down the well. When I did finally get that rope, I tied it for keeps.

Many Take Up Claims.

The whole party was looking forward to the time when the line would reach some place in the northwest where there was a great prospect for a good town and many filed and bought claims on the Box Butte. That they were right has been amply proven.

Our party received instructions to locate some lines in Kansas and later at Central City and Ord, Nebraska. After these were run, we were directed to go to Alliance and locate from there to the northwest via Pine Ridge and Crawford, Nebraska. The Northwestern had appropriated the route through central Wyoming.

Going through the Sand Hills again we were astounded to see towns scattered along the route, stores, churches, schools, a court house, and saloons suggesting a cool drink of beer as compared to some of the water we had to swallow. However, the Sand Hill country was a healthful region; we never struck another as good. There was no sickness there for any in our party, not even a cold. I did not have an overcoat or a pair of overshoes, simply wore boots the entire winter we were in the Hills. Later, however, leggins, shoes and overshoes in winter gave the best service.

Extended to Pine Ridge.

Upon taking up the location of the Iron Trail from Alliance we found that during our absence other locating parties had run the line to the summit of Pine Ridge and were then locating the railroad to Crawford.

Maps and profiles of this survey were given us and we were directed to make any changes thought worth while. The maximum grade used was 66 feet to the mile which, compared to the 32 foot grade maximum out of Alliance, seemed quite a jump. It appeared from a study of the surveys made by the engineers ahead of us that there was a section of the country in the general direction of our route which had not been explored.

We ran preliminary lines through this and found that we could locate the railroad on a 42 foot maximum grade without extra distance and at less cost than the 66 foot location. This new route ran up Deadman Gulch to the tunnel on Pine Ridge. The Lincoln company had secured land for a townsite seven or eight miles north of Alliance, but this had to be abandoned as we succeeded in getting a beautiful straight line, a tangent, all the way from Alliance to Hemingford. The interest of the Lincoln Land company were always secondary to that of the railroad. In addition there was room for but one good town on the Table and it was better to concentrate everything at Alliance, the best location.

Establish New Grade.

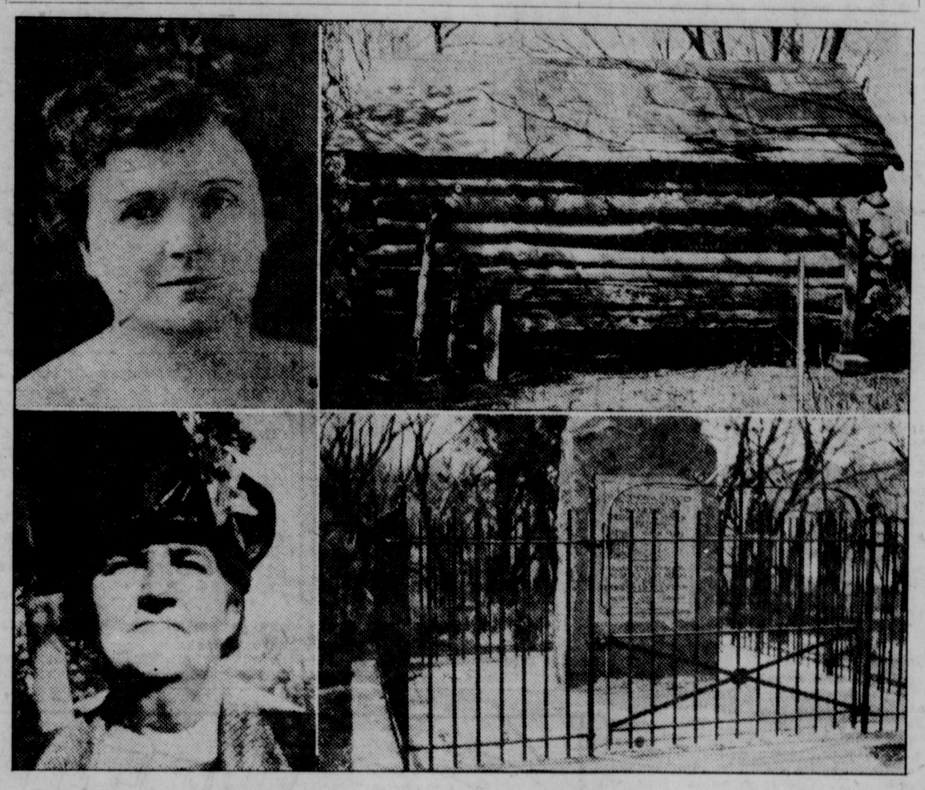
We found later that out from Crawford a line had been located on a 66 foot grade and it was thought necessary by the engineer to use this grade in dropping down to the Cheyenne river. However, we were able to secure the 42 foot grade as a maximum and carried it on to the Powder river in Wyoming.

Our instructions were to get the best line the country afforded; the B. & M. built lines to operate, not to sell. Some towns in the northwest offered a cash bonus in order to get the railroad. The president of the road expressed thanks for the offer, but stated he would prefer the town spend the money in some industrial manner.

The policy of the Burlington was to have the loyalty of employes and the good will of the public. The Burlington on its part was loyal to employes and the good will of the public was secured by courteous service and joining in any proposition with communities for the development of the country. This policy was announced by Mr. Charles E. Perkins, the long time president and builder of the Burlington. He stated that the longer this policy was pursued the more valuable it became to the company. A trainman on the Sheridan division visited the Alliance and other idvisions. Upon returning he stated that "the employes on those divisions were working for the railroad like a united family the same as on the Sheridan division." This feeling for the Burlington is well understood by all the veteran employes.

The public was quick to appreciate the Burlington policy and glad to work with and for the road. The Burlington, though building through an undeveloped section, created finally a paying business and added untold wealth to the country, much of it going to the homesteader in the increased value of his land by railroad transportation.

Wynot Citizens Commemorate Unveiling of Memorial to Massacred Pioneer Children



The picture at the upper left is of Mrs. J. G. Campbell, president of the Wynot, Neb., Country club and organizer of the memorial association which has erected a shaft, pictured in the lower right hand corner, to the memory of the five children of Henson and Phoebe Wiseman, who were massacred by Indians near Wynot on July 24, 1863.

The log cabin, upper right, is the old home of John Wiseman, elder brother of the five slain children, which has been moved close to the memorial and which is being made into a museum for members of the Wiseman family. The photo in the lower left hand corner is of Mrs. L. Lawson, the only living child of Henson and Phoebe Wiseman.

BY HARRY L. PETERSON.

WYNOT, Neb., June 10—In a quiet sequestered glade that borders the road leading down to Brockey's Bottom five miles east of Wynot, there stands a granite shaft surrounded by an iron fence. About sixty feet north of the fence there is an old log cabin, one of the first ever erected in Cedar county, a dwelling which was the home of John Wiseman, whose five brothers and sisters perished at the hands of Indians, the details of which form one of the most tragic happenings in the early days of Nebraska.

The scene is a peaceful one with woodland beauty on all sides. In the neighboring vales violets bloom in profusion; sturdy "Jack-in-the-Pulpits," in their springtime freshness, thrust up their aristocratic heads; winsome daisies speak of inviting paths, the delicate Sweet William and the blue gentian flaunt their gay colors; the daisy peeps shyly from tumbled nooks; moss is a rich deep green on tree trunks and shady banks; undergrowth is fresh with new leaves; while the matted grape vines, the wild gooseberry and raspberry bushes promise a luscious harvest, and over all is the spreading shade of massive box-elders, elms, cottonwoods, oaks and basswoods. Drinking in this beauty one's consciousness is slow to realize that on this spot one of the starkest tragedies in Nebraska history was enacted.

The granite shaft in the clearing and the house close by are silent reminders of the massacre of five of the children of Phoebe and Henson Wiseman, pioneers of Cedar county by Santee and Yankton Sioux Indians, July 24, 1863. The shaft is located on the spot where the original cabin stood when the crime was committed on the Wiseman homestead. The memorial, which has made sacred another spot to the memory of the intrepid pioneers who blazed the way for civilization, was unveiled two years ago at a special dedicatory service attended by nearly 1,000 persons. The names of the five Wiseman children who were slain are engraved on the shaft erected in their honor. The names of the children are: Arthur, 16; Hannah, 14; Andrew, 9; William, 8 and Loren, 4.

The story of the slaying of the Wiseman children is a pathetic one for the children were alone and unprotected at the time. Henson and Phoebe Wiseman, their father and mother, settled in Nebraska territory a few miles east of the village of St. James in 1857. The country in that early day had not been surveyed, was wild and unsettled and thick with Indians. Just a year before had occurred the terrible Minnesota massacre. Some of the newcomers left the country and those who remained greatly feared the hostility of the Indians.

Mr. Wiseman, realizing the danger of attack by savages on the unprotected settlements, joined the Second Nebraska cavalry in October, 1862, under the impression that he was joining a unit of soldiery which was to patrol the Nebraska frontier. Instead, the following spring they were sent up the Missouri to join General Sully at Fort Berthold. No other troops were sent in to take their places. Wiseman remained at Berthold for several months. Then a rumor came into camp that the Sioux had crossed the Missouri river into Nebraska and murdered a white family in Cedar county. Wiseman was very anxious about the safety of his family but could get no details; because the officers of the regiment of which he was a member feared a mutiny, if the truth were known, and kept the mail telling of the tragedy from him.

When, after eight days, he finally learned that the victims of the massacre were his own flesh and blood he was very angry at his officers as any man might justly be. At the time he was guarding cavalry horses two miles from the camp. He immediately leaped on one of the finest chargers, for he had a 200-mile journey before him and without a word and nothing to eat, galloped away.

At Fort Randall he stopped two hours to rest and eat. At that post the officer in charge attempted to exercise his authority and told Wiseman he was a deserter. But Wiseman was not to be detained at any cost for before him rose a vision of his dead and mutilated children innocent victims of Indian barbarity. His anger and fighting spirit arose simultaneously and he told the commander that just then he was in charge of the fort and would shoot him on the spot if he attempted to detain him. Just then a soldier friend of Wiseman's came up and admonished him not to shoot and explained to the commander who Wiseman was. In a few minutes members of company A of his own regiment were about him shaking his hands and telling him to stay at the Fort as long as he wished and leave when he was ready.

He rode on to the Yankton reserve and there from an interpreter learned the first details of the tragedy. The next morning he arrived in Yankton, but found that his wife who had waited for him for a week had gone to Sioux City and was nearly insane from grief. He went on to St. James, Neb., and tried to rest a few days. The neighbors told him of the massacre and he trembled all over with fatigue and anger as he listened to the frightful details. He visited his home, the scene of the horror and it took no vivid imagination to picture what had taken place. The walls and floor were spattered with blood which had been drying for twenty-five days.

One night he started for Sioux City to find his wife. A day or so later he met her in the Iowa valley near Ponca on her way to their desolate home. Wailing her story, she fell into his arms and tried to explain to him and convey her grief, but she was so distracted she could not. A year passed before she was able to tell a coherent story.

She had crossed the Missouri river to Yankton to buy some groceries, and other necessities for the family and did not return home until almost dark. As she approached the little clearing she heard no sound of voices and saw no light in the little cabin. Coming to the door the body of a dead Indian met her horrified gaze and there was blood all about. The shock was terrible on her and she fled around the house and there saw her son Andrew lying dead with a bullet through his head. She recoiled from this appalling sight and only by a great effort did she refrain from screaming because she believed Indians to be lurking in the forest about her. As fast as she could, she fled to St. James some three miles away, leaving all trails and going through high weeds and thorny brush which were dripping with moisture from a recent downpour.

The few inhabitants were thrown into trembling excitement when they had heard her story, and so great was their fear they dared not venture forth that night, but waited till morning. And then they approached the ill-fated dwelling from the south by a circuitous route on the prairie. They found three of the children dead and the other two in a dying and mutilated condition.

Arthur, the eldest son had defended his sister and brothers without a doubt. Although his head was crushed and his arms broken he still clutched his gun in a death grip and it was empty. Hannah, aged 14, bore many marks of savage infamy. Arrows pierced her hips and in her mouth a cartridge had

Nebraskans Awarded Business Research Scholarships

E. DALE DICKSON — WILLIAM C. STOCKFELD — NORRIS G. KENNY — PAUL F. SALA

Four $500 scholarships in business research, given by prominent Lincoln business men and citizens, have been awarded for the coming year to Norris G. Kenny, William C. Stockfield, and Paul F. Sale of Lincoln and E. Dale Dickson, of Red Cloud, Neb. Three of these men are graduates of the college of business administration of the University of Nebraska, Mr. Kenny receiving his bachelor's degree in 1923, Mr. Stockfield in 1927, and Mr. Dickson, in 1928. Mr. Sala is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan university of the year 1924.

Norris G. Kenny, winner of the H. E. Sidles scholarship, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Kenny, 5327 Huntington Ave., Lincoln, Neb. He attended the Bethany high school for two years, the school of agriculture, University of Nebraska, for one year, and the Nebraska Wesleyan academy for one year, from which he graduated. Since his graduation in 1923, Mr. Kenny has had three years' experience as a teacher in the Columbus, Neb., high school. He attended the University of Wisconsin during the summer of 1927 and the University of Nebraska during the second semester of 1927-28, doing graduate work.

Paul F. Sala, to whom the Miller & Paine scholarship was awarded, is the son of Rev. and Mrs. F. E. Sala, 4919 Knox street, Lincoln. He attended the Bloomfield, Neb., high school for two years, and the Carroll, Neb. high school for two years, graduating in 1920. He entered Nebraska Wesleyan university in 1920 and received his A. B. degree from that institution in 1924. During the next three years Mr. Sala taught in Otoe and Crawford, Neb. and Elida, N. M. For the past year he has been doing graduate work at Nebraska Wesleyan university.

William C. Stockfeld, who received the Frank H. Woods scholarship, is the son of Mrs. Mary Stockfeld of Lincoln. He enterted the university from the teachers college high school in 1923, and graduated from the college of business administration in 1927. For the past year he has been employed by the General Electric Co., at Scheenectady, N. Y. Mr. Stockfeld is a member of Beta Gamma Sigma and Alpha Kappa Psi.

E. Dale Dickson, winner of the C. H. Rudge memorial scholarship, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dickson of Red Cloud, Neb., He graduated from the Red Cloud high school in three years as the valedictorian of his class. He received his degree from the college of business administration in 1928. Mr. Dickson is a member of Delta Sigma Phi, Beta Gamma Sigma, and Alpha Kappa Psi, and in addition to his academic work and activities, made a letter in cross-counry running.

The students receiving the scholarships will spend a year in resident work, studying, under the direction of Dr. T. Bruce Robb, special problems in business research and further rounding out their scholastic training by taking advanced courses in economics, business organization and similar fields. The students in this way collect material which they submit at the end of the year for their master's theses. This material will later be worked over and condensed by Dr. Robb, and be published as research bulletins. In this way material has been collected for no less than twenty-one research bulletins.

These scholarships were first awarded in the year 1922-23, since when from three to five scholarships have been given annually, the number depending chiefly on the number of competent students available for this work. In the past scholarships have been given by O. J. Fee, H. E. Sidles, William Gold, Miller & Paine, Mrs. C. H. Rudge, Frank H. Woods, and W. E. Barkley. The number of scholarships could be increased, and no doubt will be as fast as there is an increase in the number of suitable candidates. They are awarded only to the best students in the college.

Nebraska Threatened With Reduction In Number Bird Species Unless Protected

In general, civilization has brought no decrease in the number of birds in Nebraska, according to Prof. Myron Swenk, head of the department of entomology of the University of Nebraska, in an address to the Iwanis club. Rather has there been a strengthening of the bird population, he said, and this we must accept as the silver lining of the extinction cloud.

Although he declared that there has been no reduction of the feathered population of the air, Professor Swenk pointed out that some of the original species are now extinct and that others soon probably will meet a like fate. The fact that there is still an imposing diversity of bird life in the state is due to the incoming of a large number with the march of progress, he said.

Professor Swenk made an appeal for the preservation of the state's bird lif. Birds are valuable, he declared. They annually desroy millions of bugs and insects. Their extreme mobility and ability to concentrate, in the opinion of entomologists, makes them one of the principal factors in control during an insect outbreak.

The address in part follow:

Nebraska Ranks Third.

If you were to study a map of the United States and hazard a guess as to which have the greatest diversity of native bird life, I wonder how well toward the head of the list you would rank Nebraska? Yet this state has the third largest list of birds among all the states. California, with its great length north and south, its highly varied physiography and climate and its proximity to the Pacific, boasts over 530 distinguishable kinds of birds. The vast state of Texas, also much varied in contour and near the gulf, has the second largest list. Nebraska comes third with over 430 kinds. Next following are New York with about 411, and Colorado with about 400. The other states have less than 400.

This imposing diversity of bird life in Nebraska is due largely to the geographical position of the state. In eastern Nebraska are to be found the same kinds of birds as are found eastward of the Atlantic. In western Nebraska we find an entirely different group. Those in the Pine Ridge of northwestern Nebraska are essentially the same as those in the Black Hills and the eastern foothills of the Rocky mountains.

We are located far enough north to get, in winter, the birds that summer and nest in the northern coniferous forests and even some from within the Arctic circle, and yet far enough south to have a large share of the more southern types. In addition, each spring and fall Nebraska is crossed by a long list of migratory birds that nest in the north and winter in the south. This combination of favorable circumstances accounts for the large number of different species found here.

An Asset to State.

This diversity and abundance of bird life in Nebraska is to be regarded as a real asset to the state. Birds, on the whole, are universally regarded as desirable and beneficial neighbors. They are the most inherently attractive to the average person of all the lesser forms of life about us. Brilliancy of color, beauty of form, grace of flight, sweetness of song and economic value, all contribute to this high opinion the average person has for bird life. It is only unfortunate that most people do not, or feel they do not have the time to improve their acquaintanceship with the birds.

The average brilliancy of coloration of Nebraska birds compares surprisingly favorable even with the tropical birds, noted for their bright colors. We have in Nebraska practically all of the famous North American song birds—the mocking bird, the brown thrasher, the cardinal, the chat, the white-throated sparow, the bobolink, the wood thrush and other thrushes, and many others. We can observe in Nebraska the soaring vultures and buzzard hawks that were the primary inspiration for the invention of the airplane; the gracefully dipping swallows or terns; the numerous species of gregarious shore birds wonderfully maneuvering en masse, flashing now white and now dark; the rapid direct flight of the waterfowl; or the dull haze of the rapidly vibrating hummingbird's wings.

Birds Heavy Eaters.

Some people have construed as a compliment the remark that they have the "appetite of a bird". Such a statement, truthfully interpreted, would really be an indictment for gluttony. Birds live fast. They have very high body temperatures. They consume much oxygen. They have a very rapid body metabolism. Their digestive organs are so constructed and equipped that they can both contain and digest a very large quantity of food. A bird can devour and dispose of an almost incredible number of insects. A hundred potato beetle larvae, or 500 chinch bugs, as the meal of a bobwhite, or 10,000 gnats, mosquitoes and winged ants, as the meal of a nighthawk are good examples. Young birds grow very rapidly. Some leave the nest at once on hatching, and few are in the nest longer than two or three weeks. They require a prodigious amount of highly nutritious food. Young song sparrows increase in weight about 50 per cent in a day. If a young man ate in proportion to a nestling robin he would eat about 70 pounds of meat in a day. Combine this ability to eat and destroy vast quantities of insects with the extreme mobility of the bird, and its ability to concentrate at places of insect outbreaks, and you can see the reason birds are generally regarded by entomologists as one of the principal natural factors in insect control.

Frequently this question is asked; are birds increasing or decreasing in Nebraska? The answer cannot be intelligently given in a categorical way. An adequate answer involves a general analysis of the effects that the coming and settlement of white men in this region that now is Nebraska, including the extensive planting of trees, the draining of prairie marsh lands, the transforming of many other effects following the settling up of a civilized mode of life in this land, have had on the character and abundance of the bird life of the region.

State's Original Birds.

As to the nature of the original bird life of Nebraska we must depend upon the early explorers and scientists connected with the early expeditions. One of the best sources of information are the observations of Thomas Say of the Major Long expedition of 1819-1820, and who served as zoologist of the party and of Edwin James, the botanist and geologist. These two scientific men. Say especially, have left for us an accurate record of the fall, winter and spring bird life of southeastern Nebraska a century ago, with which present conditions can be compared with interest. And if we supplement the observations of

NEBRASKA FACES REDUCTION OF ITS BIRD LIFE

Say and James with those of Captains Lewis and Clark, who ascended the Missouri in 1804 and returned down that river in 1806, of the travellers Bradbury and Brackenridge, who ascended that stream in 1811, of the German ornithologist, Prince Maximilian of Wied who passed along the river frontage of Nebraska in 1833 and 1834, of the great ornithologist, J. J. Audubon and his companions, Bell and Harris, who, ascended and descended the Missouri in 1843, and of Lieutenant G. K. Warren and Dr. F. V. Hayden, who explored and collected along the historic Nebraska stream in 1856, we are able to reconstruct an excellent picture of the bird life of the state in the days before there was a square mile of cultivated land in the entire area now included with in our boundaries. The Long expedition, with Mr. Say, crossed Nebraska along the Platte Valley in June, 1820. Notes on the birds observed along the way were recorded, and these, supplemented by the observations by J. K. Townsend in 1834, Captain Fremont in 1842, and Captain Stansbury in 1850 and by the collections of W. S. Wood of Lieutenant Bryan's party of 1856, J. C. Cooper of W. M. F. MacGraw's party of 1857, and F. V. Hayden of Lieutenant Warrans party of 1857, give us a fairly accurate knowledge of the spring, summer and fall bird life of the Nebraska portion of that vast interior country which Major Long so inaptly termed the "Great Desert", before it was noticeably influenced by the presence of the white man.

Paroquets Once Here.

From these sources we may learn of many birds, originally present in Nebraska, but now gone, especially the larger and more conspicuous forms of our bird life. The flocks of beautiful Louisiana paroquets that once wandered in the heavily wooded lower Missouri river bottoms, uttering their discordant cries and flashing their brilliant green and yellow plumage, have been gone since the latter 1860's. The great northern pileated woodpecker soon followed it. Then the wild turkey became extirpated. The breeding white pelicans, Canada geese and bald eagles were destroyed, leaving us only the migratory representatives of their species. In the 1890's the last passenger pigeon was seen in Nebraska. The swallow-tailed kite went about the same time. The ruffled grouse disappeared in 1908. Today we stand on the threshold of the vanishing of the whooping crane, trumpeter swan, wood duck, woodcock, eskimo curlew, many other shore birds, prairie chicken, sharp-tailed grouse and bobwhite.

But now allow me to turn your eyes toward a brighter picture. When Say left the Missouri river, in 1820, to traverse the state, he entered a country of treeless plains, except for the thin fringe of timber skirting the larger streams. It is interesting to have him record that, between his departure from the Missouri woodlands on June 6 until he came within sight of the Rocky mountains in Colorado on July 5, no robins were seen by his party. The planting of trees by early settlers, through the stimulus of tree claims, the development of towns and the encouragement of Arbor day, gradually changed the original conditions, and as woodlands increased and extended westward, the eastern woodland birds also pushed westward.

Robin Is Common.

Today the robin extends practically across the state as a breeder. With it have gone the wood thrush, the Baltimore and orchard orioles, the yellow-billed cuckoo, the blue jay, and others. The rose-breasted grosbeak has extended its range to meet that of its western cousin, the black-headed grosbeak, which in turn is pushing its range to the eastward. The common king bird and the phoebe have pushed westward, the Arkansas King bird and the Say phoebe are pushing eastward. The cardinal has extended its range northward and westward far beyond its original habitat. The purple martin, chipping sparrow, crested flycatcher, wood peewee, chimney swift and others of eastern birds have slowly extended their ranges westward in the state. Some, like the magpie, ravens, burrowing owl, poor-will and lark bunting have retreated toward the west, but in general the state has gained more species and a greater abundance of them, than it originally had. On the whole, civilization has brought no weakening, but rather a strengthening of the small bird population of the state. This we must apparently accept as the silver lining in the cloud of the general extinction, extirpation or reduction in numbers of our larger and more distinguished types of bird life.

May I say a concluding word about the conservation of bird life. In the agricultural development of Nebraska it was inevitable that some great adjustments should have been necessary. Marshy areas had to be drained, prairie lands had to be broken up, and so on. But have we not carried this process beyond the actual needs of the case? Then too, many of our citizens seem to have an antipathy toward letting nature alone. Have not some most interesting bits of underbrush, abounding in bird life, been unnecessarily cleaned up for the sake of "appearances"? Sometimes we see plain ignorance in operation against our birds, as for example, the unwarranted killing of valuable species of hawks and owls, under the fallacious belief that they are "vermin" Hungry and unfed cats cause the destruction of much bird life. These, and many other things, need attention from a public desirous of fostering our valuable Nebraska birds.

WYNOT CITIZENS UNVEIL MEMORIAL

been exploded, yet she lived. Five days later she died, without speaking a word but looking wildly into the face of any one who approached her. Loren the youngest was dying also. He had been stabbed in the side. He lived three days and his only words were that the "Indians had scared him." Andrew, the only one found outdoors, had been shot with a ball and some buckshot. Rude coffins were made and the bodies of the children interred on the hillside. Later they were removed to the Wynot cemetery and placed beside their mother. Henson Wiseman died in 1912, more than 94 years of age and is buried beside his wife and children.

The second anniversary program commemorating the unveiling of the memorial was held June 10. A large number of people including scores of visitors from Iowa and Nebraska points attended the ceremonies which were under the auspices of the ladies of the Wynot Country club, who were instrumental in locating the site, erecting the monument and beautifying the grounds. Mrs. J. G. Campbell of Wynot, originator of the memorial, is president of the club and active chairman of the working committee.

An appropriate program was arranged for the day, with speakers, band music, singing and other features. There were picnic grounds available and lunches were served by the ladies of the club. Under the leadership of Mrs. Campbell the ladies of the Wynot Country club have raised and expended more than $1,500 in erecting the monument and improving the grounds. They have planted flowers and shrubbery on the lot, have placed an iron fence around the memorial a wire fence around the lot, moved in the old log house that belonged to John Wiseman, paid for painting and other labor.

In 1926, besides those attending the unveiling ceremonies, 730 persons from twelve states visited the scene and inscribed their names in the visitors' register, which is housed in a stone pillar beneath a huge spreading elm tree. In 1927, 1,395 people from nineteen states visited the spot and thus far in 1928 about 200 have stopped to view the place and write down their names and addresses.

Mrs. L. Lawson of Wynot, is the only living child of Henson Wiseman and his wife. Mrs. Lawson was not born until four years after the massacre. She unveiled the monument two years ago in place of her eldest brother, John, who died just three weeks before the ceremonies and who was serving in the Union army at the time of the tragedy. It is his old log house that is being made into a museum for the preservation of mementos and relics of the Wiseman family.

The First Plymouth-Congregational church group of the Blue Birds, junior organization of the Camp Fire Girls, staged a play at the closing meeting of the mother's club of the church last week at the home of Mrs. H. W. Orr. The Blue Birds, in costume presented the "Crowning of the May Queen", play written by Sarah Louis Meyer and Vera May Peterson. Mrs. Max Meyer and Constance Almy are the leaders of the group.

There are many other Blue Bird groups in Lincoln beside the one of the First- Plymouth-Congregational The organization was brought into being because of the demands of mothers for a program for children too young to be Camp Fire Girls. Blue Birds must be between 6 and 11 years of age.

Lincoln Camp Fire Girls are active in the leadership of the different Blue Bird groups. The uniform for members of the organization is a dark blue tam with bright blue worsted pompom and a bright blue kerchief tie, to be worn with a white middle or sailor blouse.

Religious Education Authority to Speak

Dr. Walter Albion Squires, director of weekly religious instruction for the Presbyterian church, will be the principal speaker Tuesday at the meeting of the Nebraska City presbytery at the First Presbyterian church, Seventeenth and F streets. Dr. Squires was one of the speakers at the Grand Island meeting of the state Sunday school convention. The meeting starts at 2 o'clock.

Dr. Squires has a national reputation as an authority on religious education. He has been a school teacher, pastor and a federation secretary, and since 1920 has been with the Presbyterian board of education. He also is an author of note, having published several books on religious education.

Wesleyan Affairs

Several Wesleyan students are on the faculty of the daily vacation church school which is being conducted by the First Methodist church of Lincoln. Miss Jenny Crook, '25, is the supervisor of music. Miss Dorothy Daft and Miss Charlotte Boydston are in charge of the beginners department, Miss Ruth Meek and Miss Grace Bickel are in charge of the second primary department, Miss Helen Waldron and Miss Lucile Burtner of the girls in the junior department, and Miss Olga Anderson and Miss Helen Warnimont of the intermediate department. Assisting in the first primary department is Miss Rachael Taylor, and Miss Maxine Maxwell is assisting in the junior department of the boys. Rev. Richard Kellogg, '23, who is the assistant pastor of First church, is the minister of religious education and supervisor of the church school.

Mrs. Fern Caldwell Smith has been appointed as head assistant in the psychological laboratory of the Teachers' college at the University of Nebraska. Her duties began with the first session of school this summer. Mrs. Smith was graduated from Nebraska Wesleyan in 1895.

SUN, MOON, AND STARS.

The pioneer soul of man has reached out always to the sun, moon and stars. Their welcome light and companionship have quieted his fears, maintained his spirits, and cheered him through the lonely hours of self-imposed exile from the familiar haunts of his fellow beings.

And so it was with the four courageous airmen, who have just completed that amazing and hazardous flight from San Francisco to Australia over more than 7,000 miles of the watery wastes of the Pacific ocean. How frequently the cheery messages which Jimmy Warner, the radio operator of the Southern Cross, sent out through the vast spaces of the southern seas, referred to the beauty of the moon and the glory of the skies! They were beautiful and glorious, we can well imagine, to those four intrepid adventurers, who at incredible speed, were skimming through the tropical skies of the southern seas.

From Oakland to Hawaii, through the warm sunshine of a day, and the starlight and moonbeams of a night, the crew of the Southern Cross were rarely in inky darkness of obscured skies in all of the 2,400-mile trip, covered in an average speed of nearly a mile and a half a minute. Then came that even more perilous 3,100-mile jump from the palm-fringed shores of Hawaii to that tiny speck in a vast ocean known as the Fiji Islands. A take-off in a golden blaze of sunlight, a swift flight through the air with the stars overhead, and the alluring radiance of a tropical moon, and then a plunge into the Stygian blackness of equatorial storm. For once no sun to dispel haunting fears and daunts! No moon to flood the world with brightness! No stars to shed their friendly beckonings toward the goal ahead! Ominous, dark, tumbling masses of clouds, shot with lightning, dripping with moisture, twisted and tossed about by the winds, engulfed the giant bird of the earth and sent it reeling as it sought to pierce the darkness ahead. And then again starlight and moon, and once again the cheery voice of Jimmy Warner announced they were among friends. Finally the 1,750 mile leg from Suva to Brisbane, and once again the stars and the moon, and then clouds and darkness, and the Southern Cross plunged into the fury of a storm of the southern seas. A rifle-shot drop of 400 feet in darkness, once and then again and again, the radio generator shrieking its accompaniment, the winds whistling a wild chorus, and the rain adding its torment, and the men of the Southern Cross knew they were in enemy country. For more than an hour they fought the gale to emerge into the starlight. There were other storms but each time it was the same, and the staunch ship to which they had entrusted their lives, rode through to sun, moon and stars.

There is imperishable glory in the flight of these two Australians, and these two Americans.

It was well-planned and wonderfully executed.

In the handling of the great plane, Commander Kingsford-Smith, and Captain Ulm, the Australians, revealed the greatest skill. With less capable hands at the controls, it is easily imaginable that the Southern Cross could not have ridden through the storms. They met and conquered every threat of weather, and they conserved their gasoline stocks to achieve the greatest flight over water in the history of aviation. It was a matchless piece of flying, destined to take equal rank with the incomparable skill of Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd. To Navigator Harry Lyon, the American, must go immeasureable credit. The Southern Cross, except when buffeted by storm, was never off its path. The first 2,400 miles were covered as swiftly and as surely as the eagle. The next 1,800 of the 3,100-mile leg proceeded uneventfully, and then storms interfered to drive the Southern Cross 150 miles from off the route. With the friendly presence of stars and moon again, Lyon picked up the course and the airplane dropped down on Suva, according to schedule. The last leg, during which the greatest struggle took place, put the airmen into Brisbane slightly behind their computation.

It was a triumph for a scientifically-organized expedition. Even in the detail of construction of the plane, science proved itself. The latest gifts of modern civilization were utilized to solve the problems of navigation. The radio demonstrated it could be made an instrument of untold value in this connection. Congratulations are due to Commander Kingsford-Smith, to Captain Ulm, to Navigator Lyon, and to Radio Operator Warner for completion of the most scientific airplane conquest in the twenty-five years that men have been flying.

One cannot forget, though, that here were four adventurous men, setting forth on a cruise through the air which would take them a third of the way around the earth, equipped with plane and radio which represent the greatest of man's triumph over the forces of nature. Their companions were the sun, moon and the stars—those sentinels to whom the pioneers among among the Ancients appealed as they pushed forward the boundaries of the known world countless ages ago. There was prophecy of constancy when they named that marvelous gift of this day—the airplane—after a constellation which has lighted the skies of the Southern continent since the beginning of time.

UNDER CROSS FIRE.

Uncle Sam finds himself in the unpleasant situation of being exposed to the warring factions of Russia.

Because Washington has refused recognition to the Soviet government, and continues to do so in the face of the fact that most of the European nations had received representatives from Moscow and have sent ambassadors to that city, the hatred and enmity of the communists have been largely directed against the United States.

Now those opposing a continuance of sovietism insist that America is making it possible for the communists to remain in power. The Russian National committee, with headquarters in Paris, asserts that sovietism remains in control because American gold has supplied a market for property seized by the bolsheviks. Without the funds derived from the sale of plunder abroad, the communists would not be able at this time to keep their armies together, it is charged.

The charge seems fantastic and far-fetched, and yet there may be some foundation to it. Certainly many precious jewels, and millions of dollars of other valuables, seized by the communists in the homes of Russian nobility have found their way to this country. It is preposterous though that the sums realized in this manner would be sufficient to finance the Moscow government. Sovietism still controls very largely because it was ruthless in its measures to stamp out opposition. Since the revolution of 1917, conservative estimates place the number of Russian men and women who have been killed at 20,000,000. For five years the most reliable authorities insist that more than 1,000,000 died annually. The slaughter will stop when communism is overthrown.

THE LIFE OF THE PICNIC.

It's picnic time.

Therefore we feel called upon to advise the picknickers of a few of the established rules of the game which cannot be disregarded under any circumstances.

Leave all gates open behind you. Be thoughtful of others and remember that somebody else might want to enter the same field. The cattle may stray away but what right has a farmer to keep a poor cow penned up anyway. If you can't find the gate just cut the fence. Since farmers rise with the sun they must have time to mend the fence.

Use as much wood as possible. Shelter sheds, wooden gates, or wood which the farmer has cut for his own use serves admirably for making a small campfire which will continue burning for some time after you leave. Should you need some sticks to use in roasting weiners or toasting marshmallows, find a small tree and chop it down. Some of the top branches may serve your purpose.

Catch as many fish as possible and keep all of them regardless of their size. If some are too small to cook you can always give them to the cat. In addition taking all the little fish makes the sport better for the next year as there will be fewer fish and so harder to catch.

Throw all refuse in the creek. Think of the poor mosquitos. Scraps of food thrown into water soon decay and putrid matter provides good nourishment for many insects. Fish don't like it but there is nothing preventing them swimming upstream. Don't worry about the cattle the farmers can give them good drinking water.

Athletic stunts are most appreciated when in a boat. A dance, a jig, setting up exercises and other exhibitions of prowess increase in effect as you get farther and farther from shore. See how near you can come to tipping the boat over, it is always fun to hear the women scream. If the boat should upset you'll have an opportunity to test the theory that a person can learn to swim if they have to or drown.

Pull all flowers up by the roots. They keep much longer this way than if you just take the blooms. Next year you can go on a picnic some place else.

Nothing tops off a picnic like a good race on the highway. Sunday is an especially good day to speed because there are so many cars on the road that you have no trouble finding somebody to race with. A good time to pass another auto is just before the top of a hill or at a curve as the other driver won't be expecting you to do so at that time.

Give advice but don't take any. Pay no attention to the people who are continually warning you not to do this or that. They must be old fogies. Never admit that there is anything you cannot do. If you don't know the road to this picnic grounds, pretend that you do anyway. Perhaps you have never paddled a canoe—don't show your ignorance, make a bluff at it. This business of putting on a bold front holds for everything connected with picnicking. Lots of nerve, a bold front, plenty of bluff and you'll be the life of the picnic.

THE GRADE CROSSING.

Briefs are to be filed by the American Motorists' association next week with the Interstate Commerce commission in support of the organization's campaign for elimination of the grade crossing menace. The issue is raised in connection with the investigation now being conducted by the commission to determine the adequacy of automatic train control.

It is the contention of the association, and also of a large number of railroad men, that the grade crossing constitutes a greater problem for the transportation interests than the hazard of loss of life through lack of train control devices. It is more pressing than the installation of block signals.

Figures would seemingly support this conclusion. In January of 1928 there were no fatalities among passengers arising out of railroad wrecks, according to the showing prepared by the Motorists' association. In this same period 471 highway grade crossing accidents resulted in 185 deaths, and 529 injuries, of which approximately 80 per cent were automobile-train collisions. In recent years there have been from 10 to 20 times more fatalities at grade crossings than from train accidents resulting from the lack of automatic control devices. One central west line, operating 900 miles of track, reported that in the last three years, it had suffered but six fatalities in connection with train operations while grade crossing accidents occurring on its right of way cost seventy-seven lives.

In time the grade crossing will be eliminated.

The expense involved in such a step, however, is so great that the burden will have to be shared jointly. For the present it is essential that all dangerous grade crossings, especially those located on principal highway arteries, be eliminated. The railroads will be contributing more to safety by centering their attention upon the grade crossing problem than by seeking to install automatic safety devices.

A SACRIFICE TO POLITICS.

One must admire the devotion and consecration which has marked the public service of many European statesmen.

There is Clemenceau, the Tiger of France, living quietly and plainly amidst the sands of the shores of his beloved country. Riches might have been his, and pomp and ceremony might have closed the chapters of his life but he pushed all this aside to dream idly by the sea. Clemenceau, who has been hailed the saviour of his country, never permitted the gratitude or the scorn of his fellow citizens to change the current of his life.

A few months ago Lord Oxford, better known to America as Asquith, passed away after occupying a dramatic role in the politics of the British empire. England received somewhat of a shock when it discovered that Asquith was a poor man, comparatively speaking, with an estate of 9,000 pounds, or approximately $45,000. Only the beneficence of his friends relieved him of financial worry in his last days. A year ago a group of distinguished British citizens combined to give him 10,000 pounds, and a yearly annuity of 2,500 pounds. Had Asquith elected to remain in the law practice instead of devoting his life to the service of his country, he might have been a rich man.

This sacrifice of British statesmen is reflected in America. A great many of our public servants, notably in the United States senate, have spent their energies and their talents in public service.

THE COURT HOUSE LAWN.

Ten years ago one of Lincoln's prettiest lawns was that at the court house. Today it looks as if school children trained for the job had been employed to trample it three times a week. Several seasons of neglect have taken their toll in the form of bare patches and parched, half-starved areas of grass.

Lack of water and re-seeding together with regular, close trimmings probably are the causes of the change.

With its little grove of pretty trees, the court house grounds really deserve the attention that would make them appear at their best and at the same time take a visitor's mind from the rather ancient lines of the architecture. Since water is cheap and there is a jail full of unoccupied workers, it's too bad that those in charge do not think it worth their time to keep the lawn in first class condition.

Soon Hollywood Won't Be As Dumb As It Has Been.

BY WILL ROGERS.

Back to the circus for the animals!

Well, all I know is just what I read in the papers and what I happen to see and hear as I have an ear to the ground. Lets get off politics, and corruption, and international relations, and Texas, and Boulder dams, and farm reliefs and get down and speak to everybody in their native tongue.

What you say we have a little chat on the movies? Havent dished out any movie scandal to you in a long time. Well, I have been out here now for about six weeks, and its just kinder the off season. Spring marrying is about over, and summer divorces havent quite got going good. But here is something that might be a lot of news to you. I was just talking to some of the biggest men in the whole industry and they told me some very surprising things, they say that the whole business is undergoing a great change. That in four or five years you will look back and laugh at yourself for ever having sit for hours and just looked at pictures with no voice or no sound. I am not very much of a movie fan, and don't get around much, but I had just thought that the "talking pictures" were a kind of a fad, and that they would die out like they did years ago when they tried to start them. But these men told me of the millions and millions of dollars that they are spending in talking equipment. All the big companies have made contracts with the General Electric, (I think thats the one that holds most of the patents on the sound) and they are all going in for it heavy. These men said that movies now are much in their infancy as when years ago we all got excited over "The Great Train Robbery" in some Nickleodeon. They say that the talk and sounds have just begun to develop. hat the ones you hear now are very crude in comparison to the ones you will get in a year or so. Sound is in about the stage that photography was in movies 15 years ago. Every picture will bring new developments.

Scared Cuckoo.

The whole business out here is scared cuckoo. The girl that left a ribbon counter and won a beauty contest and then was made a "Star" overnight. Just because somebody told her every move to make and when to smile, she can just see her finish. It looks like it is getting into the days of the actor. That's one thing where the stage always had it on the movies, you couldent be a stage actor over night. That had to come with years of experience. You got to do something beside being photographed on the old stage.

I saw a picture the other night that used the talk. Its called the "Lion and the Mouse," and Oh boy how the stage actor does show up the movie ones! Lionel Barrymore even as a villian, and Alec Francis, another splendid stage actir, just made you wish the others hadent talked. The town is clogging up with stage people. The movie ones can't keep their mind on over one thing at a time, and that was "How am I looking?" While the old stage fellow, that's how he gets his expressions is through what he has to say. Let him speak the lines and the expressions will take care of themselves. Then you see the director can't holler out and tell you what to do, when to back up, when to smile and when to "Register" indignation. If he did holler it would be heard on the record, so he has to trust his acting to the actor, and in order to trust his acting to the actor he has to have an actor to trust it too.

Spoken Titles.

You will see a great improvement in the titles. Those beautiful sounding phrases may read all right when they are on these in print alone, but when some living moving character really says them they sound funny. We never thought before that real human beings wouldn't use such words. But now the titles that the actors speak have got to be something that the man would really say under those circumstances, and not something that read good when the title writer "Copped" it out of some book. Its going to make pictures about twice as human. Course for awhile they will lose part of their audience, for with thi snew intelligence coming in so suden is going to be a lot of movie fans that can't stand it, and the ywill drift to the radio, where they will hear the announcer say "I have some telegrams here that I would like to read,"—"Program coming in fine, Ooolagah Kiawanis club." But I hear real trained actors (that never won any contest in their lives) speak real lines that real human beings would utter, why you are going to drag many a new recruit bac k to the "Cinema."

Animals Taboo.

Your trained dogs and your trained horses can outdraw the movie stars, but when it gets down to acting, and talking in a natural way, why the animals will have to go back to the circuses. Each big company is putting in studios in Los Angeles and New York too. They also have the sound recording apparatus so arranged that they have them on a kind of trucks and they can haul them easily anywhere and record a speech or event as its original place the same as they can take the pictures there with a camera. There is about a thousand theatres equipped now with the means of showing sound pictures, and they are equipping others just as fast as posible. These movie magnates said, "all the great dramatic stage actors," that wasn't any good for the movie fan Janes, because they showed their age, they will be able to go on now and give the whole people all over the world a chance to see and hear their wonderul voices, even if they have no sex appeal.

They say that the Kreislers and John McCormacks can make more from their few records on the screen than in all their travels and Concert work, and more people can see and really hear them, at one third the price they have to pay at a concert. So it looks like old Hollywood won't be as dumb as it has been.

Charleston, S. C.

You spoke some time ago of nations that go mad, like individuals. Can you quote one instance?

I can, even though Edmund Burke said it was impossible to indict a whole nation. Bishop Butler, of Durham, is reported to have remarked to his secretary that large groups of men and whole communities may be seized with fits of insanity, whereupon the astonished secretary could only reply that he trusted God would avert such a calamity.

Nevertheless there have been epidemics of widespread delirium which go far to justify the bishop's opinion. Perhaps he had in mind the "South Sea Bubble," the name given to the frenzy of financial speculations which began in 1711 and ended with a terrific smash during 1720. During the intervening years no project was too crazy to win investors.

Hundreds of companies were formed—among them some for discounting pensions, providing perpetual motion, discovering the land of Ophir, insuring horses for the plainly superfluous business of improving the breed of asses. When these bloated enterprises blew up the British government reeled beneath the shock of their explosion and all ranks of society were seriously affected. But do you suppose the folly of the gambling mania was ended thereby? Not at all. Its deplorable exhibitions soon revived, and still exist, untaught be experience.

Think, again, of the outbreaks of maniacal cruelty in the French and Russian revolutions, of the saturnalias of superstition, blasphemy and blood lust which ever and anon disgrace entire peoples. Melancholy spectacles made by brocaded mobs clamoring for war or breechless Jacobins guillotining innocent victims bid us beware of the jungle from which mankind has but recently emerged. Whole societies can occasionally turn berserker and jeopardize our boasted civilization. If you still doubt th's, read the descriptions of scenes which were witnessed in every capital and province of hostile states in the late summer of 1914. It was then that a large part of the world went mad.

What is your interpretation of the following: "To him that hath shall be given and from him that hat not sall be taken away even that which he hata:

This saying of Jesus in its fullest form occurs in St. Matthew xiii, 12, and reads as follows: "For whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance; but whosoever hath not from im shall be taken away even that he hat."

It expresses in Oriental hyperbole a vital truth demonstrated in various realms of action. The context interprets Christ's meaning. Our talents are special gifts intended for the benefit of our fellowmen. Only as they are thus devoted can they remain healthy and productive. When employed for purely personal ends they react to the detriment of their possessors and the damage of society.

Disuse is almost as fatal as misuse, since it, too, is followed by decay and deterioration. In other words, sacrificial service enriches personal and collective life, while self-seeking dwarfs the soul and impoverishes moral and mental enduements divinely bestowed. Examples of both processes abound in the religious, the political and the commercial world. Who does not know the one talented individual whose light shines clear for our guidance, and also the gifted man or woman so immersed in self that his relations to others are positively injurious. The latter die daily, unwept, unhonored and unsung.

Why don't you as a churchman lash the industrial wrongs of the suffering majority with your pen? Such silence as yours is cowardly and your fellow clergy share its reproach.

I am not conscious of having forsaken the sufferers in any realm, and I assure you that I have no intention of committing that sin. My calling forswears me to preach the gospel of justice and deliverance to the poor, heal the brokenhearted and set at liberty those that are bound.

The Lord and Master of us all thus began His m nistry and His disciples are bound to follow in His steps. They have a healthy scorn for those who

Since you have accused clergymen of cowardice, may I ask you to point out in our nation the groups ground down by rank oppression and I will pledge the best efforts of my clerical comrades to their cause.

Here and There

Wilson-Phobia.

(The Des Moines Register)

An article by William J. Flynn, chief of the federal secret service in the period before the war, appearing in Liberty magazines, tells of the telephone espionage established over the German embassy in Washington long before America declared war.

One of the choice bits produced by the record kept of every telephone conversation, into or out of the embassy, was this, which raises an interesting question as to the identity of a United States senator:

"The tone of Wilson's note annoyed some others besides Mrs. Brown. A few minutes after the newspapers published the text of the note the wife of one of the most prominent and powerful senators in Washington, one of the 'irreconcilables,' telephoned the German ambassador.

"She—I only wanted to say I hoped your government would not pay any attention to the silly, garrulous, foolish prattle of that man in his last note.

"He—Oh, no. That is all right. They (Berlin) know all about that. They will not make any fuss over it.

"She—It sounds like a foolish old schoolmaster making one last threat at his children.

"He—Well, it is intended for home consumption, you know.

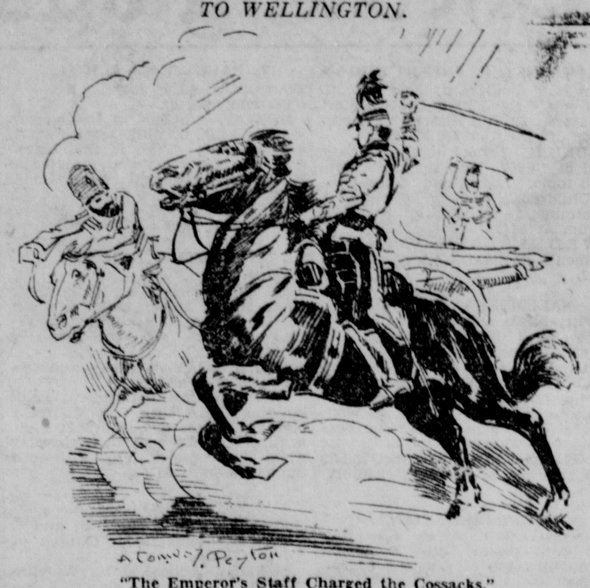
"She—But the home consumption will not be what he thinks it is going to be. Nobody is going to back him up in it. It is so silly. He has an idea, you know, that the world is waiting with bated breath to hear what he has to say."

Anybody who wants to speculate as to who the senator was should take note that the chief of the secret service uses several qualifying adjectives. He was not only one of the "irreconcilables." He was also one of the "most prominent" senators in Washington and one of the "most powerful."

The slant which this telephone conversation gives at the positive venom in the senator's attitude toward President Wilson, if the utterances of his wife to the German ambassador can be considered to reflect the senator's own attitude, is a minor contribution to history. That personal venom, exhibited by several senators, had a lot to do after the war with the destructive fight against the peace plan, which was hated and beaten less because of any faults it had than because it was identified with the president.

Famous Pets of Famous People

NAPOLEON AND THE HORSE WHICH ALMOST PERFORMED THE TASK WHICH FELL TO WELLINGTON.



"The Emperor's Staff Charged the Cossacks."

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

During the Egyptian campaign Napoleon took a fancy to a beautiful mare belonging to a poor Arabian. A purchase was arranged, but when the Arab, clad in rags, came to deliver the steed, he suddenly changed his mind.

"To whom is it I am going to deliver thee?" he addressed the mare "To Europeans! Who will tie thee up close, who will beat thee, who will render thee miserable. Return with me my beauty! My jewel! And rejoice the hearts of my children."

So saying, he sprang on her back and galloped away.

Napoleon, the ambitious, probably never loved a horse as deeply as did this poor Arab, but he seems to have had an abundant affection for the equines who shared his celebrity There were many of them—Marengo, Wagram, Montevideo, Emin, Jonsalvo, Roitelet, Tauris, Intendant, Euphrate, Heliopolis, Cordone and Mourad Bey.

Marengo, named for the famous victory, was perhaps the most celebrated of the conqueror's mounts, but he considered Mourad Bey the finest of them all. Wagram was perhaps the most intelligent and affectionate, Roitelet was the most exasperating, and Tauris the best loved.

A pretty story is told of Wagram, who, like Marengo, was named for a Napoleonic victory in which he had carried the 'Little Corporal."

Not long after the emperor was sent into exile at Elba, the imperial guard was dispatched thither, so that there would be protection from the attacks of corsairs. With the guard came a number of the horses which had been the favorite of the emperor. It is related that when Napoleon entered the stables to greet his steeds, Wagram saw him and whinnied and pawed the ground.

The emperor went straightway to him, kissed him, and exclaiming, "There, my old friend," gave him a lump of sugar.

Roitelet, a cross between an English horse and a Limousine mare, must have had in his blood some of the British antipathy for Napolean, for sometimes he disregarded the imperial pleasure and sacrificed the imperial diknity.

At Schoenbrunn, in 1809, while his master was reviewing the troops Roitelet bolted among the grenadiers, hurting many men and nearly unseating the emperor. The latter was so angry that he refused to ride the horse for a long time.

Roitelet apparently cared not a hang for this neglect. In the end Napoleon had to sue for peace. He needed Roitelet more than Roitelet needed him.

During part of the disastrous Russian campaign, none of the imperial mounts could keep their feet on the icy road, but Roitelet. The emperor perforce had to ride him again and was glad to make friends. The sure-footed animal carried him day after day without so much as a stumble.

At Lutzen, in the thickest of the fighting, a ball which narrowly missed Napoleon, grazed Roitelet's hock, carrying away a little section of hair and skin. At Arcis-sur-Aube, a shell burst in front of them and Roitelet, springing to one side, threw Napoleon, who said, as he remounted, 'Eh, we escaped nicely that time, both of us!" After that whenever he visited the stables, he never missed gently stroking the spot on Roitelet's hock where he had been wounded at Lutzen. It had remained barren of hair.

Tauris, a silver grey Persian, slightly dappled, with a long, flowing tail, was associated with perhaps the most dramatic period of Napoleon's life—the days of his greatest power and the days of tragic defeat. This mount was a gift from Alexander at the Congress of Erfurth and had been ridden by Napoleon in the Russian battles of Witepsk, Moskwa, and Smolenswo, and also at Moscow, and had carried him through a part of the retreat.

On the morning when Napoleon was nearly taken prisoner by Cossacks on the Kolonga Road, Tauris almost performed the task that later was to come to Wellington at Waterloo—that of ending the career of the emperor.

The emperor's staff charged the Cossacks. The yells of the latter so excited Tauris that the animal attempted to join the charge. Only the quick wit of Berthier, who seized Tauris' bridle and clung to it desperately, prevented Napoleon being carried into the midst of the enemy.

Tauris was at the battles of Dresden, Leipzig and Hanan, carried Napoleon on the march to Paris and, finally, took part in the battle of Waterloo.

It was there that Marengo was captured by the British and taken to England, where his skeleton was destined to be preserved in the Museum of the United Services Institution at Whitehall.

This indignity was spared Tauris, who remained in the land of his adoption until his dying day.

Before leaving Paris for Elba, Napoleon bid Tauris a sad farewell and turned the noble steed over to M. de Montaran, one of his grooms, to be given the best of care.

As long as Tauris' lived, the steed was led by M. de Montaran every day to the Place Vendome, and there circled the Column.

Passersby, looking on, murmured with emotion:

Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co.,
Lincoln, Nebraska.

Gentlemen:

One of the greatest factors in apprehending criminals is the extensive use of the long distance telephone lines and through excellent co-operation and quick response, we have accomplished excellent results.

Especially, we have received the co-operation from the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Company, of which we have no reason to complain.

Many times we have asked for personal assistance from the Company and have never been refused in any effort that the Company could put forth to give us the desired information.

Very truly,
W. C. Condit

The Musical World

THE ROBBINS STUDIOS.

Paul Pence, baritone, was soloist for the annual meeting of the Nebraska Federation of Music clubs in Omaha this past week.

Marguerite Green, soprano, left Tuesday for the northern circuit of summer chautauqua work. Beginning in North Dakota her engagement as junior supervisor and soloist will continue to the Pacific coast and return.

Miss Margaret Crone has been accepted as one of the accompanists for voice. Miss Crone will combine this with voice study under Edith Lucille Robbins.

Another studio accompanist for voice is desired by Miss Robbins.

Only fifty voices will be accepted for the Bel Canto Oratorio society. Tryouts will be made at once for fall acceptance. All former members, who are to be in Lincoln, have reenrolled. A few vacancies still exist. Telephone the director, Miss Robbins, at the studio address, 1215 O street, B1970.

Edith Lucille Robbins and Floyd Robbins will conduct classes in voice and piano, also pedagogy for advanced pupils and teachers, during June, July, and August. University accreditment for all work offered in voice and piano.

Announcement of the marriage of Miss Helen Virginia Noetling to Mark E. Johnson on Tuesday, June 5, at Rochester, N. Y., has been received. Mr. Johnson, pupil with Edith Lucille Robbins for over four years, won the grand opera scholarship at the Eastman school of opera three years ago. He is now a member of the production staff of the Eastman school of opera, Rochester N. Y.

Grace McArthur, soprano, former pupil with Edith Lucille Robbins, has been elected to the faculty of the Northern Normal and Industrial college at Aberdeen, So. D., as instructor in public school music.

One of the most interesting musical attractions to be presented in Lincoln for some time wil be the St. Olaf quintet, which is to appear in a program of songs Tuesday evening, June 19, at the Temple theater.

Music lovers and devotees of the art in Lincoln, will remember the St. Olaf's choir, which has been heard in Lincoln several times. The quintet is equally as wel trained, and will present an exceptionally splendid program.

History of Carillons Planned for New First Plymouth Church Stretches Through Centuries

There is much interest in the city in the carillon which is to be installed in the new First Plymouth Congregational church. On the upper left, the carillonneur is seated before his clavier, by which the bells are played, and which is constructed on a principle somewhat similar to that of the manuals and pedals of an organ. The picture on the upper right shows the carillon in the frame. Wilbur Chenoweth, shown below, is to play the church carillon upon his return from England.

Carillons, a set of which is to be installed in the new First Plymouth Congregational church building as a proposed memorial to the late Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond, have a long and interesting history. Six generations of the Taylor family of Loughborough, England, have studied the carillons, and the very finest bells in all the world have resulted from their research.

Wilbur Chenoweth, who is to travel in England this summer, will go to Loughborough where the famous carillons are made, to study them. Upon his return, he will play the First Plymouth carillon.

A carillon is a set of bells tuned to the notes of the chromatic scale upon which music in two or more parts may be played, that is, airs with accompaniments, sonatas, fugues, fantasias and similar music. The balls hang stationary and are played either by a carillonneur, a bell player, or automatically.

The smallest number of bells to which the term carillon may be applied correctly is two chromatic octaves consisting of twenty-five bells. The number of bells in a carillon may tend to fifty or even more, and the size of the largest bell distinguishes the character and the importance of a carillon more definitely than does the actual number of the bells.

According to the story of the carillon, historic belfries and ancient spires in Holland and Belgium have long possessed octaves of bells tuned to the intervals of the chromatic scale. When crowned with a carillon, such belfries and spires become known as Singing Towers. Saint Rombold's Singing Tower at Malines in Belgium has forty-five such bells, in the belfry at Mons are forty-four bells and from the belfry of Ghent fifty-two bells still ring, even as they did when the treaty of peace between the United States and Great Britain was signed on Christmas eve, 814.

Now to America.

As generation after generation has come and gone in the low countries, the voice of the carillon in folksong and patriotic melody has sustained the noblest qualities of nationality. Now this superb music has crossed the Atlantic and already there are twelve carillons in America.

Perhaps some day Henry Van Dyke's words will be true of the Lincoln bells:

"High in the rugged nest concealed
The sweetest bells that ever pealed,
The deepest bells that ever rung,
The lightest bells that ever sung,
Are waiting for the master's hand
To fling their music o'er the land
Far floating through the twilight dim
In patriot songs and holy hymn."

For a carillon of thirty-five bells, the total weight is 24,200 pounds. The diameter of the largest bell is sixty and one-half inches and weighs 4,592 pounds. The bells are cast of the best quality bell metal, copper and tin alloy, and are musically perfect in tune, scientifically tuned on a five-tone "true harmonic" system.

True carillons in the United States at this time are in St. Peter's church, Morristown, N. J., Portuguese church, Gloucester, Mass., the first in the United States; Phillips academy, Andover, Mass.; Birmingham Presbyterian church, Alabama; Crambrook, Birmingham, Mich., and a municipal carillon in Albany, N. Y. The foundry is casting carillons for Edward Bok's country home at Mountain Lake, Fla., for the Masonic temple, Indianapolis, and Trinity M. E. church, Springfield, Mass.

Developed in Holland.

The development of the modern carillon was begun about the end of the sixteenth century, and was the work almost entirely of bellfounders in the low countries, the present Holland and Belgium. The culmination of that era was reached late in the seventeenth century and between the early part of the eighteenth century and 200 years later, few carillons of artistic merit were produced. It is only with the present century that their glory has been restored.

In England, the most general use of bells is for change-ringing, the ringing in full swing of a set of bells, usually eight although other numbers may be used, tuned to the major scale, in changes, by means of wheels and ropes, with one person at each bell. Change-ringing had its inception in England about the played in the low countries. From same time that carillons were first the discovery of change-ringing, the "Science," as it is called has appealed to the English, although it has never been emphasized in other parts of Britain or the colonies, and for that reason English bellfounders gave their attention to the casting and hanging of bells for that purpose.

The predecessors of the Loughborough foundry in the early seventeenth century, when change-ringing began to take root, were the Newcombes of Leicester, who cast many of the early rings of bells. They were followed in that work by the Watts, the Eayres, and the Arnold, from whom about 150 years ago Robert Taylor acquired the business.

Long Ancestry.

A geneological chart is no more involved than the ancestry of the present foundry. Johannes de Stafford, about the middle or later half of the fourteenth century, had a bell-foundry at Leicester of which town he was mayor in 1366 and 1370. He was probably the predecessor of William Miller, a bell founder, who was admitted a member of the Merchants' guild of Leicester, 1499-1500. His widow married Thomas Newcombe, whose son, Robert, succeeded to the business, and was followed by his three sons, Thomas, Edward, and Robert.

Edward Newcombe had three sons with him in the business of whom Robert was admitted to the Merchants' guild in 1600. These appear to have been the last Newcombes in the Leicester foundry. Through the seventeenth century and until 1760, the Watts and the Eayres were in charge of the foundry. Edward Arnold, who continued the business after the death of Joseph Eayre, had Robert Taylor for an apprentice.

In due time he succeded to the business at St. Neots, and it has continued in the family since that time. John William Taylor died in 1906, and left the foundry to his eldest son, John William, born in 1853, and his fourth son, Edmund Denison, born 1864. The former died in 1919, and the business is now in the hands of the latter, who is assisted by his nephew, Pryce Taylor, the only one of the four sons of John Williams Taylor to return from the war, three of his brothers having died for England in France.

The founding and hanging of church bells for use in change-ringing was the main business of the concern until toward the end of the last century, when the late John William Taylor, sr., then head of the firm, and two of his sons became interested in carillons. In addition to casting "rings" of bells, the Loughborough foundry has brought the production of carillons to a high aesthetic plane, even superior to the best of the seventeenth century.

Doane Notes

A feature of this year's commencement program was the large number of alumni, both men and women, who participated in musical numbers, including groups of songs by former members of the men's and women's glee clubs, prepared upon short notice after arriving on the campus.

Alumni members returning for the commencement Honor "D" fraternity banquet were enthusiastic over the wonderful record in athletics made by Doane this year. C. Franklin Tully, '10, former track captain, now wire manufacturer of Grand Island, was elected president of the organization for the coming year. Under his guidance and through a committee appointed by him, an Olympic fund will be built up with the intentions of sending Ray Alf to the Olympic try-outs at Boston, should he qualify at either the Chicago or Iowa City try-outs. A considerable sum for this purpose was raised at the banquet. The Honor "D" plans to have a special program at the next commencement banquet, featuring the Doane record-holders in track. Doane's accomplishment in track activities has been remarkable in that it has built up a tradition in this sport for over 40 years, winning the first track state meet in which the University of Nebraska participated; and since that time has never rated below third place in the annual state contest. Doane has now won three out of the last four, missing one contest by one-half point.

At the annual commencement business meeting of the Doane Alumni association, it was voted by almost unanimous consent to enlarge the membership of the association. Hereafter, all persons who matriculated and earned credit at Doane in the collegiate department will be made members and will have permission to vote and hold office, with the exception of those who have not graduated within the past four years and are still within the possibility of returning to the college for additional study. Dudley O. Aller, '20, of Beatrice was elected president of the association.

The fifty-sixth annual commencement has come and gone with an increased attendance over last year. Many more alumni came to stay throughout the full four days, beginning with the baccalaureate sermon.

Mrs. W. H. Shoemaker and Nellie England entertained Myrtle club of past matrons at dinner Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Shoemaker, 4510 St. Paul avenue. Covers for thirty were laid at three tables, on which the color notes were in blue, yellow and green. The place cards were names of garden flowers and each found her place by the flower she drew before entering the dining room. Between courses of the dinner, Mrs. Shoemaker, accompanied by her son, Dale, gave a group of violin numbers. Dale Shoemaker also gave a group of piano solos. In a contest, Mrs. Alva Gaylord won first and Mrs. Sarah Chadderdon consolation. The following officers were elected: Nellie England, president; Mrs. G. C. King, vice president; Mrs. Sarah Chadderdon, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. G. E. Green, press correspondent. The retiring president, Mrs. Shoemaker, and her officers, were given a vote of thanks for their services.

Members of the I. O. O. F. Rebekah, and branches of the order, held a joint memorial service Sunday in I. O. O. F. hall. The program follows: "America," assembly; invocation, Freeman S. Holmes; "Lead Kindly Light" and "The City Four Square," Hazel Bain; address, Rev. Frank Mills, College View; talks, J. T. Fletcher, grand master, and Josephine Bass, president Rebekah assembly. The memorial work was given by a staff of the two Rebekah lodges of Lincoln.

C. W. Motter, vice commander of the American legion gave the address. It was a plea for adequate national defense and conscription of wealth as a measure toward the end of conflict between the nations. He also made a plea for greater consideration by the Veterans Bureau for the sick and wounded of the world war.

Following the services three gold star mothers whose sons were killed in battle overseas, were presented bouquts and small silk flags. This was followed by the singing of the Lord's Prayer, by Mrs. Paquita DeFoort, an overseas nurse who has served in three wars and was wounded in each. She was classmate in the same training school

The next meeting of the post will be Wednesday night, June 20, when the charter will be draped in honor of John Reiter, quartermaster and past senior vice commander, whose funeral is to be held Sunday at 2 o'clock, from Hodgman's mortuary. The ladies auxiliary will assist in the ceremony.

The funeral service today will be in charge of the post members.

To California

Miss Ruth M. Rogers accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Margaret Rogers left Monday for California where they will visit friends in Oakland, San Francisco and Los Angeles. Miss Rogers plans to attend school in California in the fall.

W. J. N. Robertson, junior vice commander will preach the sermon. The ritualistic service will be used at the grave and three volleys will be fired and taps blown.

Julia Welch, past president of Rebekah state assembly, Mary E. Stukesbury, marshal of the assembly, Ella Hatch, district deputy, and members of circle No. 1, and Saline encampment No. 4, presented Capitol lodge No. 11 with new dining room chairs Friday evening. The members of the lodge were escorted to the dining room, whre songs were sung and the presentation talk was made by Mrs. Welch, Mrs. Stukesbury, and the president of the circle No. 1, Mrs. Alice Randolph. The response was made by the secretary of Capital lodge No. 11, H. L. Fitch. The evening was spent with dancing. Refreshments were served by Rebekah circle No. 1.

not been characteristic of modern churchmen. At no time was their indictment of public or industrial evils more swift and sure than now.

Their watchword is that bad morals can never be good economics. The phrase has teeth in it which bite deeply. To be sure, social malefactors, stingy laymen, bootleggers, profiteers, cynics, sensualists and hypocritical rascals detest the churches. But why join this disreputable gang?

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Eidtor—A short time ago I saw the picture, "Ramona." I think it is by far the best picture I have seen this year. On account of the miserliness of the ushers, we were not furnished with programs. Will you be so kind as to give me the cast for the picture?

I would like also to know something of Roland Drew. Where may one write to him? Of what religious denomination is he? Is he married and if so to whom? His acting was splendid. He has most certainly won the hearts of all the students of Spanish.

Adios, Senorita or Senor, whichever it may be, and muchas gracias. Sincerely, SAMMIE.

Which only goes to show that even an American can step to the front in film favor if he acts the part of a foreigner on the screen! And Roland had such a time getting a start in pictures! He seems to be fairly well launched now, however.

Roland was originally known as Walter Goss. He was a graduate of the Paramount School at the same time Charles Rogers, Thelma Todd, Jack Luden and Josephine Dunn got their diplomas. He received a contract with Lasky, but for some reason he never had much work until Edwin Carewe discovered him and gave him the role opposite Miss Del Rio in "Ramona."

Mr. Carewe happened to see him in a barber shop at the Hollywood Athletic club and decided he was just the man for the role of "Felipe."

Your new favorite was born in New York City, twenty-eight years ago. He served in the Navy for two years and became a naval flier. After the war, he went to work as a newspaper reporter.

His good looks finally brought him a screen test and an opportunity to attend the Paramount School. He is about six feet in height and has dark curly hair and b rown eyes. I've never heard of a Mrs. Drew, nor does he state his religion.

The cast for "Ramona" is: 'Ramona,' Dolores Del Rio; 'Alessandro,' Warner Baxter; 'Felipe,' Roland Drew; 'Senora Moreno,' Vera Lewis; 'Juan Canito,' Michael Visaroff; 'The Sheepherder,' Carlos Amor; 'Father Salvierderra,' John Prince; 'Marda,' Mathilde Comont; 'Jean,' by herself.

Dear Movie Editor—Please give me the cast for "Becky."

Of the following, I would like to know where they were born, the color of their eyes and hair Barbara Worth, Walter Pidgeon, Greta Nissen, Anita Page, Helene Costello Kathryn Carver, Fay Wray. Thank you, R. H. S.

The cast for "Becky," follows: 'Rebecca O'Brien McCloskey,' Sally O'Neill, 'Dan Scarlett,' Owen Moore, 'John Carroll Estabrook,' Harry Crocker; 'Nan Estabrok,' Gertrude Olmstead; 'Irving Speigelberg,' Mack Swain; 'Boris Abelard,' Claud King.

Barbara neglects to state her birthplace. Her eyes are grey and she has brown hair. Mr. Pidgeon was born in Canada with dark hair and eyes, and Miss Wray is also a Canadian by birth. She has light brown hair and blue eyes.

Greta Nissen came to us from Norway and she's a real Scandinavian type with her light hair and blue eyes.

Anita Page is a blonde, born at Flushing, L. I., and Kathryn Carver is another blonde, from New York City. Helene Costello was also born in New York City, with dark hair and eyes.

Dear Movie Editor: Here I am again with a question I've been intending to ask a long time, but each time I wrote I'd forget it. Who played "Billy Moran," in "Wild Beauty?"

What is Rex Lease' address: How old is he?

Does Zane Grey direct his pictures? If so, what is his address?

What is Fred Thomson's address? Can you tell me who trained "Silver King." I think he and Tarzan are the smartest horses on the screen?

What is Jack Gilbert's next play and what is his latest? He is just splendid.

Who played as "Dal" in "The Apache Raider." He was a good actor. Why isn't he better known? What is his address?

Can you give me the address of someone who plays in westerns as the villain? He must have black hair, no mustache and have what is described in the book as laughing eyes. In other words he must be altogether good-looking.

I guess that will keep you busy for a while. Will try not to write so much next time. ROMA.

I need something to keep me out of mischief, Roma, so bring on the questions.

I'm sorry that I can't name "Billy" for you, but I fail to find a cast for 'Wild Beauty," among the thousand or so that I have on file.

Address Mr. Lease at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Calif., or 2470 Beechwood Drive, Hollywood. He is twenty-five.

Mr. Grey does not direct the pictures thta are screened from his stories. John Waters has been director of the film version of many of them. Mr. Grey often supervises the productions, however. You might write him in care of the Paramount Studio, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif.

Address Mr. Thomson at the F. B. O. studios, 780 Gower St., Hollywood, Calif. Mr. Thomson, himself, is responsible for Silver King's tricks.

John Gilbert has just started work on "Four Walls." His latest big release is "The Cossacks."

Don Coleman has the part of Dal Cartwright in "The Apache Raider." Perhaps he will be more popular in the future. Just now, he's very little known. Address him in care of Pathe Film Co., Culver City, Calif.

If there were any villains in westerns that answered your description they couldn't stay in the villain class long enough to be known as such. You are describing a handsome young screen hero. No villain could have "laughing eyes." If he did, he'd have to hide them behind smoke glasses.

My dear lady: I read in a notice in the State Journal of May 23, which tells about a dwarf actor who acted with Miss McAvoy in "The Snob." By asking you, I just want to find out if I am getting so old that I can't remember a few months back. "The Snob" was in my opinion one of the best performed plays I have seen in years, but I can not remember Miss McAvoy in it. There was not one in the whole play that did not act 100 per cent and the little girl—the bashful farmer girl, was the best of them all. L. H., Hotel Cornhusker.

Cheer up. Old age is not creeping upon you that rapidly. It must have been a tyographical error, or a lapse of memory on the part of the critic, because Norma Shearer had the leading role of "Nancy Claxton" in "The Snob." May McAvoy was not in the cast at all. Phyllis Haver was "Dorothy Wonsheimer."

Dear Movie Editor—I enjoy reading the movie columns, but this is the first letter I've written, so I'll not trouble you with many questions. I would like to know the address of Miss Patsy Ruth Miller. She's my favorite. Thank you. FROM SOMEBODY, Wilcox, Neb.

Such a wee step into our midst, but we are glad to know we have a friend in Wilcox.

Write to Patsy at 1822 N Wilton Place, Hollywood, Calif., or at the Universal Studio, Universal City, Calif.

Dear Movie Editor—This is my first time I have ever written to you and I hope I will see this in the Lincoln Star next Sundey.

What are the addresses of the following stars: Vilma Banky, Olive Borden, Marceline Day, Jacqueline Logan, Ben Lyone, Lloyd Hughes, Shirl Mason and Viola Dana?

What was the name of the play Viola Dana played in where she was very poor and lived in the slums of a city and a man had her steal money and jewels and he gave her many beautiful clothes?

Why isn't Viola Dana and Shirley Mason more popular? I think they are both real sweet girls, don't you?

I think I have asked enough questions, I will come again soon. A BRUNETTE ADMIRER, Superior, Neb.

I trust you have continued to watch the paper for your letter. When there are many letters ahead of you, it is sometimes two or three weeks after you write before your letter will appetar in print.

Address Miss Banky in care of Samuel Goldwyn, United Artists Studio, 77200 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. Olive Borden is with Fox, 1401 N. Western Ave., Hollywood, Calif. Marceline Day works for Metro-Goldwyn Mayer, Culver City, Calif., and Jacqueline Logan also drives out to Culver City but she parks in front of the Cecil B. De Mille studio. Lloyd Hughes is with First National, Burbank, Calif., and Ben Lyon now applies his make-up at the Metropolitan Studio, 1040 N. Los Palmonas, Hollywood, Calif. Write to Shirley and Viola at Hollywood, Calif. They are not under contract to any company at present.

Both girls have enjoyed their share of popularity in the past, but recently they have been devoting their time to other interests and have made so few pictures that the fans lose interest in them between releases. Only the big stars can make one or two pictures a year and maintain their popularity.

Did any of the fans see Viola in the picture with the above described plot? If so, will you kindly name it for us?

Dear Movie Editor—It has been a long time since I wrote to you, but there are just two things I'd like to know. First, the cast for "Ramona" and second, the address of Don Alvarado. He was certainly wonderful in "Drums of Love." By the way, where did they get the title for that?

Would you mind telling me how old this Don Alvarado is? Also I would like to have the address of the man who played "Felipe" in "Ramona."

Thanking you in advance for all information, I remain yours respectfully, JINGO JUMBO.

The fans have been inquiring about you. They miss your comments in rhyme.

The cast of "Ramona" you will find in "Sammie's" letter today. Address Roland Drew, who took the role of "Felipe" at the Tec-Art studio, Melrose and Bronson, Hollywood, Calif.

Don Alvarado is twenty-five. Address him in care of United Artist Studio, 7200 Santa Monica Blvd., wood, Calif.

"Drums of Love" is from the story by Gerrit J. Lloyd. The title was charged several times before they finally decided upon that as the best box-office name for the picture.

Dear Movie Editor—I have lots of questions to ask you, so I guess I'll begin right away and get it over with.

Please tell me where and when the following were born and who they are married to if they happen to be married: Mary Astor, Belle Bennett, Virginia Branford, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., Neely Edwards, Florence Gilbert, Huntley Gordon, Edythe Chapman, Helene Chadwick and J. Warren Kerrigan.

What are the addresses of Francis X. Bushman, Jr., Charlot Bird, Jocelyn Lee and Constance Howard?

How old is Jeannett Loff, Sally Long and Sally Blane.

Could you tell me the Baby Wampas Stars for 1925 and 1926 or is that asking too much? I hope it isn't.

What is the cast for "Sally" and "Children of Divorce?"

I don't know what I'd do if it wasn't for the Movie editor. I always have so many questions to ask. BETH FERN.

Whew! You ought to feel much lighter now with all of that out of your system.

Miss Astor was born in Quincy, Ill., in the year 1905. She recently became Mrs. Kenneth Hawks.

Belle Bennett is married, also. She was born in Dublin, Ireland, thirty-plus years ago. Virginia is single and was born at Brownsville, Tennessee in 1909

The young Mr. Bushman was born at Baltimore, Md., in 1904. He is married, and so is Helen Chadwick, but not to each other. Miss Chadwick claims Chadwick, N. Y., as her birthplace in 1894.

Miss Gilbert was born in Chicago, Ill., but she's shy about the date. Huntley Gordon is a bachelor and so is J. Warren Kerrigan. Mr. Gordon was born in Montreal, Canada, in 1883 and Mr. Kerrigan is a native of Louisville, Ky. He is thirty-eight.

Edythe Chapmen is Mrs. James Neill. She's close to fifty. Mr. Edwards was born in 1887 at Delphos, Ohio. He is married.

Address Francis Bushman, jr., an Constance Howard at the M-G-M Studio, Hollywood, Calif. The others you will find in care of Central Casting Bureau, Hollywood, Calif.

The three young ladies, Jeannett, Sally and Sally, are all in their ate 'teens.

Screen Siftings

To Shoot Flagpole-sitter— Buster Keaton's role as a newsreel cameraman in his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy, has taken him to New York where he will "shoot" a flagpole-sitter on top of the Woolworth building, and other New York scenes which will form the basis of his plot. Edward Sedgwick, the director, and Marceline Day, leading lady, accompanied Mr. Keaton on his trip East.

Follows Father.—Eddie Foy, jr., son of the late musical comedy star, is to step out from behind the camera at the Warner Brothers studio, to the title role in "The Swell Head." The picture is from an original by Hugh Herbert and Murray Roth. Mr. Foy has been directing pictures, but it is the first time he has appeared before the camera since he appeared in a Mack Sennett comedy with his father ten years ago. Bessie Love will play the feminine lead in "The Swell Head."

A ROLLICKING SATIRE ON COLLEGE LIFE! FROM THE STAGE PLAY BY OWEN DAVIS

A reckless youth goes the limit, bursting the shackles of conventions and college curriculums.

And all the sympathy he gets is a box of raspberries from his class mates.

"Love in a Mist"

A Refreshing Character Study

The chief character of "LOVE IN A MIST" is a charming society woman who consistently, but always with the best of motives, tells fibs. Her incessant prevaricating gets her deep in trouble, much to the amusement of the audiences who follow her through her many escapades.

Miss White has the role of Diana, created by Madge Kennedy when "LOVE IN A MIST" was presented in New York City.

The New Battery.

A new storage battery does not hold the charge as long as a battery that has seen service. The new one requires more frequent charging until it has been in use for several weeks.

Poor Economy to Use Weak Tubes.

Never operate a weak tube along with a good one. If an insensitive tube and a tube in perfect condition are operated from the same rheostate, there will be a tendency to overload the good tube to obtain power from the poorer one. Discard the old tube and put a new one in its place.

Perfect Contact Necessary for Best Results.

In order to receive the best results from the set proper contact must be made between vacuum tube base prongs and contacts within the socket. Sometimes in tightening the terminals the inside contact springs are turned out of position, so that no plate or gird contact is established with the tubes.

KENT PRESENTS RADIO SINGERS

Simmons and M'Quhae Will Broadcast Sunday Night.

Allen McQuhae, tenor, and William Simmons, baritone, will broadcast the concert in the Atwater Kent hour, Sunday night at 7:15 central time. Each will sing three popular solo numbers.

The duets include two operatic selections: The Moon Hath Raised Her Lamp Above, best known selection from "The Lily of Killarney," the operatic version of Boucicault's Colleen Bawn; and Solenne in quest' ora.

The latter, "Swear in This Hour," is from Verdi's opera, La Forza Del Destino (The Force of Destiny) where in the third act Alvaro, dying, calls on his sworn enemy, Don Carlo, to burn a casket of letters without opening. The program follows:

I.

Duet—The Moon Hath Raised Her Lamp Above, (from Lily of Killarney) ..... Benedict
Mr. McQuhae and Mr. Simmons

II.

a. Drumadoon ..... Sanderson
b. Pale Moon—Indian Love Song .. Logan
c. Border Ballad (Sir Walter Scott .. .. Cowen
Mr. Simmons

III.

Duet—Larboard Watch ..... Williams
Mr. McQuhae and Mr. Simmons

IV.

a. Songs My Mother Taught Me .. Dvorak
b. Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms ..... Thomas Moore
c. Mavis ..... Craxton
Mr. McQuhae

V.

Duet—Solenne in quest' ora, (from La Forza Del Destino) ..... Verdi
Mr. McQuhae and Mr. Simmons
Mr. Elmer Zoller at the piano.

This program is broadcast by the National Broadcasting company and the following associated stations: WEAF, New York; WEEI, Boston; WGR, Buffalo; WRC, Washington; WCAE, Pittsburgh; WWJ, Detroit; WSAI, Cincinnati; WGN, Chicago; KSD, St. Louis; WOC, Davenport; WCCO, Mpls.-St. Paul; WGY, Schenectady.

Radio Digest

Futility of Fuses.

Because the thin wire filament in normal service already is white hot and requires comparatively little extra current to burn it out completely, a fuse is inadequate protection against tube blowouts. The fuse wire is not anywhere near incandescene and requires a definite amount of time to heat up and blow out of its own accord. When the filament circuit is heavily overloaded, the thin tube filament invariably parts in two long before the fuse even starts to increase.

Requisites for Charging Battery.

When direct current is used to charge a storage battery at home, all that is necessary is a rheostat, a resistance or a lamp bank to limit the charge rate. Most batteries are limited as to charging rate and an increase of this rate is injurious to the plates of the battery. Always add distilled water before charging so that the solution covers the plates and separators, but do not fill the battery too much so that the water touches the inside of the cover. If the charging rate is high, unscrew the vent plugs, and at all times see that the holes in the vent pjlugs are open. Never add acid or any other substance to the battery except distilled water, and be sure to recharge when test shows battery is to be discharged. If house current is alternating, it is necessary to use a rectifying device of some kind in order to change the alternating current to direct.

For the Notebook.

Chimneys are poor anchors for aerial wires or guy lines.

Dirt on aerial insulators, lightning arresters and wires is one of the main causes of weak signals.

To overcome noises caused by an imperfect contact, see that all battery switch contacts are clean and bright.

Battery life is regulated by its size, grade, the number of tubes it operates and the number of hours the set is used.

Radiograms.

Political speeches on the radio are prohibited in Frances.

One of the most powerful radio stations in South America has been opened at Maracay, the home of President Juan Vicente Gomez.

It is estimated that there are now nearly 12,000,000 receiving sets in the United States, serving an audience of not fewer than 40,000,000 persons.

Some 35,000,000 paid words are being transmitted annually over the Australian, Canadian, Indian and South American radio beam circuits of the British.

So plentiful have private radio sets become on ships of war in the American navy that it has been necessary to place all such installations under the direction of the ships' radio officers.

The Archbishop of Milan, Italy, in a pastoral letter to priests and religious institutions has prohibited the youth in his diocese to use radio apparatus. In motivation, it was declared that the programs of Italian broadcast stations are altogether inappropriate.

With a view to making the Government administration of the radio law self-supporting, a bill is to be introduced in the legislature in Washington calling for an annual license fee of $500 per year to each broadcasting station in the United States.

Alexandria Woman Treasures Newspaper Printed in 1804; Discloses Interests of Era

One hundred twenty-four years ago, when our country was young and newspapers did not shout the news of the latest trans-oceanic flight in black streamer headlines and hastily assembled news dispatches, Thomas M. Pomroy was getting out a little eight-page weekly in Northampton, Mass.—and a good paper it was, too, for that period in American journalism. The Hive, its owner stated, was printed "a few rods east of the courthouse," and was delivered to subscribers in town for one dollar and fifty cents per annum.

A copy of The Hive for September 4, 1804, is the treasured heirloom of Mrs. R. H. Marks, of Alexandria, Neb. Having for some reason escaped the fire, this paper has been handed down from one generation to the next and is no doubt one of the few copies of Pomroy's sheet in existence. It is in fairly good condition, but the faded, cream-brown color of the paper testifies to the years.

It is interesting to look over the old paper's columns and read what was happening in that early period. Though the newspapers of the time tended toward features and political controversy more than news, The Hive makes much of the war in Europe betwene Napoleon and England. Bonaparte had just raised himself to the imperial rank, and under the heading "From France" we find him "becoming more and more unpopular in France, in consequence of his elevation to the imperial dignity."

Another item says: "It has been reported for these two days that the emperor of Russia positively refuses to recognize Bonaparte emperor of the French," and still another mentions his coming coronation.

British Accuracy.

An interesting item: 'A late Irish paper contains the following blundering article: 'By a letter from a gentleman at Philadelphia, dated the 4th of March, we are informed that an important change had been effected in the constitution of the United States. Mr. Jefferson has been made president for life! A new mode of electing the president and vice-president have been adopted; and several other alterations have been made in the civil jurisprudecne of that country. We must observe, that several letters from America of a later date take no notice of this material event'."

The front page has no real headlines, only one article being used there, and that a long, wordy criticism of the policies of Mr. Jefferson and his republican administration. The Hive was federalist, and made no bones about saying so. Here is a sample:

"The least exercise of rational thought would convince even democrats (but if they ever reflected, they would not be democrats) that where the government is nothing, liberty is nothing."

In a column for communications, on the order of our modern "Voice of the People" corner, "Fritzalan" addresses a stream of personal invective against "An European," but he admits that the Editor of The Hive having intimated a desire that the present contest might be speedily terminated, I have under these considerations determined to drop the subject, and leave my suspicious foreigner to wrangle with himself."

Superstitions Ridiculed.

One who signs himself Gravity Risible uses a whole page to discuss with considerable merriment and in a patronizing vein the "Superstition of Mankind." He relates a great many examples, some of which are just as popular today. He tells that "Young misses hardly attain to the age of adolescence before they privately make and eat salt cake, that the image of their future lovers may be presented to their nocturnal visions; or they cautiously sift ashes on the floor of their bed chambers, that their waking eyes may trace the foot steps of him who is to gallant them to the next ball, to invite them to a party of pleasure, or to lead them with blushing consent to the Altar of Hymen. . . . And if perchance a poor straggling stick should appear to float on the surface of a cup of tea, poor Emily's heart has almost smitten her chin, because his speedy arrival is announced with certainty."

Seeing the new moon in the prescribed manner, spilling a spoonful of salt, a lucky Friday, and a surprising number of others are treated in a spirit of fun-poking. According to the author, "the sheep got into a mans turnip-pen, and destroyed all his turnips (tho the tops were left down), for no other reason, but because he sowed the seeds on Friday."

An article on the remarkable memory of a dog, and another entitled "A Sentimental Picture" which is just that, makes up page five. The latter piece, which approaches the modern short story in principle if not in construction, comes to a climax like this:

"The stranger stood confes'd!—he clasped her in his arms, and thus exclaimed, I am thine Armine, who was lost, but now lives to hush the rising sighs of his lovely Delia. Pardon my silence. I little thought of finding thee under an humble oak, clad in the robes of despair. Forgive me heaven! I live to make my Delia happy."

Slow News Transmission.

There was none of the present-day speedy news transmission. New York news had been sent August 25, a week and a half before, dispatches from France were almost two months old, and there was little or no news of the region about Northampton.

The Hive carried a few advertisements, most of them rather matter-of-fact and straight to the point. James Lunham informs the public that he has two four-wheel Carriages and three good Chaises for sale, cheap for Cash or Credit. The publisher, T. M. Pomroy, inserts a want-ad as follows: "WANTED. TWO active boys, as apprentices to the Printing Business, one of about 11 years old, the other from 12 to 15—None need apply unless they can be well recommended for their 'steady habits!'"

A column of very literary-sounding poetry begins. "Where yon tall cypress waves its tow'ring head And casts around the tombs of gloomy shade, 'not a bad start, at that, and it gathers speed as it goes along.

The motto or axiom of The Hive, as stated just beneath the nameplate on page one, was "The rich flowers of Fancy by Genius entwin'd, Form a Bouquet of Sweets for the Classical mind," and the editor accomplished his purpose well. The paper holds one's interest now, just as it must have done in the days of Jefferson and the first steamboat. The Hive may not have exceeded its quota of straight news, but what of that? There were features for everyone, and the sheet was made to read, not to disturb the even existence of sturdy New Englanders by tales of the latest hammer slaying. Considering which, could one ask more?

Doane Notes

The annual race for the Alumni cup, given to the class with the highest registered attendance during commencement, resulted in a walkaway, by the class of 1927. It is seldom that a class, graduating the previous year, is able to rally so many of its members at the succeeding commencement time.

At the commencement exercises on Wednesday, President Dean announced that Ronald Welch of Stanton had earned the highest grade average of any of the members of the graduating class. This is the second year that Stanton has won this honor as another member of the Welch family earned the highest average in 1927.

C. Burdette Wolfe, instructor of violin, who spends his spare time leading the Doane pep band, figured out before leaving for his summer vacation in Wichita, Kas., that the Doane band had traveled over 700 miles this year, making six trips to back the Doane Tigers in their greatest all-round athletic record in history.

Dr. Charles G. Murphy of Lincoln arranged all details for the Young People's Assembly, which opened on the campus Saturday, June 9. The enrollment for the assembly this year has leaped beyond bonds and has swamped all dormitory capacity. Homes in Crete will be used for the extra numbers present.

Hasting Notes

A total of 225 students are registered in the nine-week term of the thirteenth annual summer session of the college, according to the record of Registrar Gertrude M. Glassey. These figures are exclusive of the enrollment in the conservatory of music or the Knute Kockne-Paul Schisslor coaching school which will be held here the first two weeks of July.

President Calvin R. French left Thursday for Lake Forest, Ill., to attend the fortieth reunion of Lake Forest college at the annual commencement on June 12, at which time Dr. French will be presented with his second honorary D. D. degree. He already has the A. B., A. M., B. D., and L. L. D. degrees. Dr. French will join Mrs. French at the Huron college, South Dakota commencement June 14 and proceed for a two-week vacation in the Minnesota lake region.

Joseph H. Baccus, head of the forensic department in the college, and Edward Betz, '30, Hastings, left Saturday by automobile on an all-summer trip through the northern and eastern parts of the country. They will visit the Black Hills, the Great Lakes, Canada, Niagara Falls, Chicago, New York City and Washington, D. C., before their return to college in September.

Twelve students—eight men and four women—are representing Hastings college at the annual summer conference of college students of —Hauck-Skoglund.

Dean B. E. McProud of the Teachers' college at Nebraska Wesleyan university upon whom was conferred the degree Doctor of Pedagogy at the commencement exercises of Baker university last Monday. Dean McProud is an alumnus of Baker university having received the degrees of A. B. in 1900 and A. M. in 1904 from that institution. He has also taken graduate work at the University of Chicago.

Dean McProud is the director of the summer session at Nebraska Wesleyan.

the Rocky Mountain region, held at Estes Park, Colo., June 6 to 16.

University Notes

Fourteen students will be in the annual geology field trip under the direction of Prof. E. F. Schram which will start from Lincoln Monday. The students will study in the field for six weeks, traveling in the Black Hills, Colorado, Arizona and Utah. They are: Lloyd E. Mitchell, 935 E street; Pohn T. Cox, jr., of Howe; Wendell F. Krause of Albion; Gale E. Calder, 125 South Twenty-eighth street; Lewis E. Lutt of Niobrara; Herbert A. Waite, 2144 B street, Joseph E. Bennett of Kearney, John C. Martin of Omaha; Clarke W. Kelley of Beaver City; John Watt of Minden; Phillip Harper of David City; Richard Dunker Walter C. Potts of College View; Earl Wyatt of McGraw.

Prof. J. P. Senning of the department of political science has been appointed by Chancellor E. A. Burnett to represent the University at the sixth Commonwealth Conference to be held at Iowa City, July 9 10 and 11. Professor Senning will be one of the leaders in a round table discussion on one phase of the conference topic, "Political Issues of 1928," and while in Iowa City will attend a meeting of the national executive council of the American Political Science association of which he is a member.

Miss Marrietta Stevenson, until a year ago an instructor in the department of political science, was a recent visitor at the university, stopping for a week in Lincoln while on a special investigation tour. She is now associated with the Federal Children's bureau at Washington, D. C.

Among recent visitors at the college of engineering were: Edward C. Richardson, superintendent of construction for the O'Hagan McVicker Co., Kansas City; Clarence F. Rogers, civil '24, in charge of Mississippi valley work for the United States department of agriculture department of public roads, at Omaha; Sanford W. Sanders, civil '21, American Bridge Co., Ambridge, Pa.; Frederic S. Campbell, electrical '26, Westinghouse company, Philadelphia.

Camp Quivira Opening Brings Joy to Boy Scouts Who Will Take Vacations There

Camp Quivira, one of the four camps maintained for boys and girls by participating agencies in the community chest, this week will be the mecca of dozens of Boy Scouts who come from over Nebraska and seven other states, as well as Lincoln.

June 7 was the day when the "old swimmin' hole, the mess hall, and the woods and bluffs which make up Camp Quivira, were awakened from the lethargy which had been over the camp since the close of the last camp period late last summer. Tents were pitched, boats and swimming suits were given their spring baptism of water, as the Boy Scouts took to the "open spaces" and camp life last Thursday.

The camp will be host to more than the ordinary number of scouts this summer, as it is now the main camp for Lincoln area council which includes about one-half of Nebraska. Changes have been made to care for the increase. A new kitchen which may be considered the latest thing in sanitation and modern equipment and conveniences is being erected near the old mess hall, the latter being remodeled into a dining room. Tents will be added to accommodate about eighty more scouts.

Camp Quivira is located on Cedar creek in the midst of the Platte valley bluffs. The Platte itself is only a short distance from the camp. Louisville is the nearest town. A small lake on the grounds furnishes boating and swimming. The mess hall is in the valley and the sleeping tents are 200 feet above on "Constitution" hill. The camp covers 100 acres, and is a jumble of steep bluffs, rugged hills and trees.

Discipline Maintained.

The same system is used as at the other camps of community chest agencies around Lincoln. Discipline is strictly maintained and the same valuable training in self government, and social, mental, moral and physical training is received by the campers. There is a camp canteen where scouts may purchase stamps, kodak films and fishing tackle, as well as candy and gum at the rate of not more than 10 cents worth a day. Upon arrival at camp each scout deposits his spending money in the camp bank and makes all of his money transactions by check. His bank balance is refunded before he leaves for home.

Archery will be taken up for the second year. An eighteen-hole archery course has been provided this year. In archery-golf, arrows are shot instead of balls being driven. A number of scouts are expected to qualify for archery merit badges.

Compets are a feature of each camp period. The events include inspection, first aid, pacing, tent pitching, signaling, wall scaling, knot tying, fire by friction, bugling, fire by flint and steel, horse and rider and eagle awards. Free period and camp fire are different each day. Archery, volley ball, baseball, horse shoes, tether ball, leather work, track meet, medley relay, woodcrafter's hike, sealed order hike, swimming meets, horseback riding, fishing, boating and sturgeon fighting are some of the things that take up the time of scouts during the free periods. Sturgeon fighting is a new game introduced to the camp last year. Two rival groups of scouts, a boat for each group, take to the water. A boy with a spear attached to a line stands in the prow of each boat and the object of the contest is to spear a log. The winning boat is the one that succeeds in towing the log, or sturgeon, back to the shore which is its base.

Camp fire stunts include Indian pow pow, stunt night, swearing in the braves, camp fire stories, harmonica contests, initiation and games of all sorts. During the scoutcraft period, scouts may be examined for any of the tests up through first class, and a good many of the merit badges. Every boy can go home with his scout belt covered with the honors he has won, and these honors are called scalps at camp. The camp is divided into tribes, the Otoes and the Pawnees, and the troop with the largest number of scouts coming to camp at any period has the first choice of tribes.

Ideal Swimming Place.

The lake is ideal for swimming. One end is fenced off for the swimming pool and there is a diving tower near the center. Every scout must be able to jump into deep water, swim twenty-five yards, turn sharply around and swim back before he can go into the swimmer's pool and deep water. A shallow part of the pool is roped off for beginners and it is known as the "sinker's" pool. Instruction is given every morning to both beginners and swimmers. A feature of the swimming is the "buddy system" to guard against accident, in which every boy must hunt up his buddy every five minutes. Five life guards and a life boat are always on duty during the swimming periods.

Visitors are especially invited on Sundays and the Fourth of July. Sunday morning services are conducted for the scouts each period, but the scouts may attend church at nearby towns if they prefer. In the towns of Manley, Louisville and Cedar Creek may be found Catholic, Methodist, Baptist, Lutheran and Presbyterian churches.

Camp leadership is equal to that found in any camp in the country, according to Scotu Executive Kent of Lincoln. Claud Wiegers is camp chief, having held that position for the past three years. Walter Hildreth is assistant camp chief, or water chief. He is an eagle scout. Alba Briggs, another eagle scout, is second assistant and archery expert. Robert Rait, also so an eagle, has charge of the first aid work. Forrest Spieler, an eagle, is in charge of leather stamping and plaiting. Homer Turner, eagle, is archery instructor. Five junior life savers will assist Mr. Hildreth. The cooking will be in charge of Aaron Ireland, cook for many years at Bates hall, Cotner college.

Camp officials are proud of the record of no serious accident having occurred during all the summer camps. The scout executive, Mr. Kent, is a frequent visitor to camp, as are the members of the camp committee, L. B. Lyman, W. S. Yates, Fred Sanders and G. H. Murphy.

The camp periods are as follows; June 7-16; June 18-27; June 28-July 7; July 9-18; July 19-28.

Three hundred and twenty-five boys were in camp last year, some for more than one period. Among the outsiders who have registered for camp this year is Robert Perkins who will come all the way from Denver. He was also in camp last year.
